Cuba Charges Crime Wave To Machado; 8 More Killed

DeCespedes Government to Be Recognized by Others.

Prison Inmates Shot During Riot

New Leader Authorizes Refinancing Plan for Republic.

Havana, Aug. 15 (AP).—Gerardo Machado and several of his immediate associates today were charged with a number of crimes, including murder, in the two weeks which preceded the downfall of his government last Saturday.

Meanwhile, the new government of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes endeavored to set the republic's house in order, both politically and economically. Eight persons were killed in a continuation of disorders which attended the ousting of Machado.

A cause filed in the second section of the criminal court by Dr. Jose Garcilaso de la Vega, a lawyer, charged the former president and the others with "misappropriation of public funds, frauds and legal exactions, falsities and swindles, homicides, murders, personal attempts and use of firearms against certain persons."

Others Named.

Named with the deposed executive, who has gone into exile at Nassau, the Bahamas, were Octavio Averhoff, former secretary of the treasury; Oestes Ferrara, former secretary of state; Antonio B. Ainciart, former chief of police; Octavio Zubizarreta, former head of the interior department, and Jose Izquierdo, former chief of the central district.

Some of them have fled the country. The whereabouts of the others is not known.

The complaint charged that the alleged offenses were planned at the presidential palace and that all of them occurred since an amnesty law was passed by Congress and signed by Machado about two weeks ago. The killing of 21 persons last week following circulation of a premature report that Machado had resigned was specifically mentioned.

Although the frenzied mob activity which broke out three days ago in celebration of the downfall of President Gerardo Machado had largely abated, enemies of the old regime still sought out its supporters to exercise vengeance upon them. The total number of dead was raised to 35 since Saturday.

Several inmates of Principe Prison were wounded when they were fired upon by guards and soldiers after they had protested the placing in the penitentiary of aids of the former president.

The disorders became so violent that the guard, unable to cope with the situation, summoned soldiers. Several of the prisoners were shot and a number of others were beaten before order was restored.

Evidence became increasingly manifest today that the de Cespedes administration would have the support of other governments and it was considered a matter of certainty that formal recognition would speedily be forthcoming.

Faced by Indebtedness.

One of the outstanding problems which the new regime faces is that of its bonded indebtedness, estimated at approximately $160,000,000, and there was considerable talk of seeking a moratorium or a refunding operation whereby payments may be decreased and extended over longer periods of time.

President de Cespedes authorized Martinez Saenz, his secretary of the treasury, to deal directly with the United States through Ambassador Sumner Welles in all financial and economic questions mutually affecting the two countries.

California Peach Agreement Signed

(Associated Press.)

Secretary Wallace late yesterday signed the marketing agreement for California cling peaches and Farm Administration officials said it became effective immediately.

The California peach agreement is the second put into effect by the Farm Administration, the first being the Chicago milk plan.

Under the terms of the peach pact, growers will receive a minimum of $20 a ton for their product, an average, farm officials said, of 200 per cent more than the price paid last year.

The price at which the canners may sell the peaches is fixed in the agreement and the members of the industry are to be licensed.

Committees are provided in the agreement to allocate this year's pack, which is limited to 218,000 tons.

Mrs. Costello Is Acquitted on Poison Charge

"Not Guilty," Jury Says, Ending Month Trial in Husband's Death.

Salem, Mass., Aug. 15 (AP).—Jessie Burnett Costello, comely 31-year-old widow, was acquitted today after 1 hour and 43 minutes' deliberation by a jury which heard her charged with poisoning her husband, Fire Capt. William J. Costello, of Peabody.

Standing erect at the climax of her month-long trial, the corners of the widow's mouth moved slightly as Jury Foreman James F. Campbell pronounced the words "Not guilty," but otherwise her poise was maintained.

Crowd Cheers Verdict.

When the clerk of court dismissed her she turned, and with energetic stride started for an anteroom. A woman shook her hand and Miss Celia McNeil, who cared for her three children during the five months she was incarcerated, kissed her.

As she burst into the anteroom, where friends and relatives awaited her, she threw her arms around a woman friend and gave herself to unrestrained tears.

News of the verdict was announced from a window of the courtroom and a large crowd that had milled about the entrance of the old courthouse all day cheered loudly.

Home After Five Months.

The widow left by a back door and was driven home by one of her attorneys.

At the little stucco cottage in the Perkins Park District in Peabody, where last February 17, her husband was found dead, stretched across a hallway, the widow was greeted by her father and her three children. It was five months since she had embraced them anywhere but in the Salem jail.

Farley Will Urge Virginia Wet Vote

To Speak in Norfolk Soon; Sees Repeal Victory by November.

(Associated Press.)

Postmaster General Farley yesterday disclosed he would nudge along the repeal movement in two more States as part of an effort to cross the eighteenth amendment from the Constitution within 90 days.

Mr. Farley, chairman of the Democratic national committee, will dip into the South for an antiprohibition speech at Norfolk, Va., September 7. Then he will swing north for a similar address in Portland, Me., two days later.

Although Mr. Farley contented himself with a rare announcement of his two latest efforts, close friends revealed he was confident the repeal goal would be reached by November 8.

Mother of Roosevelt Flies Her Blue Eagle

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—The NRA Blue Eagle can fly from President Roosevelt's Hyde Park estate—the Nation's summer capital.

The President's mother, Mrs. James Roosevelt, today notified NRA headquarters that her 16 employes on the estate had been placed under the Blue Eagle regulations.

A letter from Mrs. J. R. Roosevelt, widow of the President's half brother, has notified headquarters her nine employes on the estate adjoining the President's had been placed under the NRA.

Woman Swaps a Kiss For Kisses, Rests in Jail

Denver, Aug. 15 (AP).—Miss Faith Arnett, 18, Round Grove, Ill., went to jail today to serve out a $60 fine on a vagrancy charge, after she told Municipal Judge A. H. Pickens she had traded a kiss to a candy dealer in exchange for a box of sweets.

She complained to an officer that Gus Christinthos, 36, had volunteered to make the trade, but after she kissed him he refused to give her the candy.

Fliers Aid 300 In Illinois Hunt For Kidnapers

Suspects Linked to Factor, Hamm, Urschel Cases; U. S. Aids Pursuit.

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—Driving wildly through one of the greatest police dragnets ever formed, a gang of kidnap suspects today dodged 300 Federal, city and county authorities directed by airplanes soaring overhead and apparently made good their escape.

The men, dumfounded to learn they were in the midst of a trap when they met emissaries to receive a ransom payment, fled amid a tattoo of submachine gun bullets and answered police fire with pistol shots.

They carried with them a package representing the final payment of the ransom for the release of John Factor, Chicago speculator, who was freed by abductors several weks ago after a promise to pay additional money.

$50,000 Believed Paid.

The Herald and Examiner said it learned from authentic sources that the men obtained about $50,000 in the ransom package. The money, the paper said, was furnished the Federal Bureau of Investigation by Factor to enable the department to catch the abductors with the evidence. Officials declined to comment.

Factor worked with authorities after his release and today the massive trap was sprung—unsuccesfully. The kidnapers were to meet Factor's messenger at a barbecue stand near suburban La Grange.

For miles about police forces massed at the appointed time.

Mutiny of Mine Prisoners Broken

All But 17 of 160 Convicts Who Held Shaft Since Sunday Surrender.

Petros, Tenn., Aug. 15 (AP).—The mutiny of approximately 160 convicts in the Brushy Mountain Prison mines here was broken tonight when all but 17 of the mutineers gave up their two-day strike and came out of the mines.

"I think the whole thing is absolutely settled," said Dr. E. W. Cocke, State commissioner of institutions, who came here after the convicts had refused to leave the mines as a protest against a search conducted Sunday by a new deputy warden, O. C. Hendricks.

Prison officials said a number of dirks, hammers and chisels, along with quantities of civilian clothing, had been found.

Dr. Cocke said he felt no alarm because of the 17 who remained in the mines.

Tugwell and McIntyre Start Tour of West

Poison Kills 4 Found in Car; Lawyer Jailed

"I Told Mama and Papa Not to Eat It," Says Boy Survivor.

Alleged Confession Tells Attorney's Fear of One of Victims.

Malvern, Ark., Aug. 15 (U.P.).—A small roadster bearing six persons, four of them dead, careened off the highway 9 miles north of here late today and crashed into a fence.

Motorists, who ran to the scene, found a man and woman, sitting erect in the front seat, dead. Three children sat in the rumble seat, two of them dead and the third, a 4-year-old boy, unharmed.

The sixth passenger, the driver, fled into the nearby woods.

The four persons obviously died of poisoning. They were not scratched in the wreck.

Bloodhounds on Trail.

Authorities were called. A posse was organized and bloodhounds put on the trail of the man who fled. He was tracked down and captured. He told police his name was Mark H. Shank, an attorney, of Akron, Ohio.

Shank said the dead persons were Allen Cooley; his wife, Ethel Cooley; and their sons, Clement and Clyde, 7 and 10 years old, respectively, all of Akron.

Faces of the victims were distorted, indicating that they died in agony. Doctors made a cursory examination and said they had died of strychnine poisoning.

The 4-year-old survivor, the third son of the dead couple, told police his name was Cline. He said "mama and papa ate some meat after I told them not to touch it, because I saw Mr. Shank put something in it."

Murder Trial Witnesses.

It was reported, without confirmation that the Cooley family had been witnesses in a recent murder trial at Akron.

Shank was held in jail here, and plans were made to take him to Hot Springs. The bodies were taken to Little Rock for autopsy.

Millar Halbert, prosecuting attorney at Malvern, said Shank made a confession.

Shank admitted, according to Halbert:

Shank's law firm, in Akron, was employed by some "big shot" to protect him from a court case that was pending against him. Shank's firm hired Cooley to get some papers in the case from the Akron prosecuting attorney, by "any hook or crook."

Cooley got the papers, and Akron authorities were "hot on his trail," so he decided to leave town. He came to Hot Springs with his wife and children.

Then Shank grew worried for fear that Cooley would "talk." Last Sunday Shank came to Hot Springs, seeking to dispose of Cooley.

Visited Several Towns.

The party started for Hot Springs in the automobile, visiting several towns. Today they passed through Malvern and stopped for food on the road. It included potted meats and grape juice.

It was by this food the four persons were said to have been poisoned.

Sheriff T. S. Fisher and his deputies took Shank to where the dinner was said to have been eaten. The sheriff found remnants of the food. The sheriff also brought back some crystals, which he said resembled poison.

Physicians, Nurses Face Dumb Rabies

Portsmouth, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP).—Twenty persons today were required to begin taking the Pasteur treatment as a result of contacts with Richard Turner, 26, who is suffering from "dumb rabies"—said to be the most virulent type of hydrophobia.

Those exposed to possible infection included doctors, nurses and relatives.

Dr. Jonathan Forman, Columbus specialist; Dr. J. L. Jones, of Louisville, Ky., and eight Portsmouth physicians are working to save Turner's life.

The young man, who contracted the disease in an attempt to separate his pet dog and one afflicted with rabies, is suffering from the paralytic type of the disease, fatal in most cases. Paralysis gradually has been creeping upward in his body.

Gore's Resignation Demands Criticized

San Juan, Puerto Rico, Aug. 15 (AP).—A controversy has been started by Gov. Robert H. Gore's published statement that all his appointees must give him undated resignations before accepting office.

The governor said his purpose was to follow out a policy of President Roosevelt. He indicated the President held his resignation before he sailed for the island.

Antonio Barcelo, president of the Liberal party declared the governor's action was illegal under the organic act sponsored by Woodrow Wilson. There were indications that at least one cabinet member might go to court.

Court Upholds NRA Power In First Legal Blast on Act; Steel Men Quit Code Hearing

Industry Representatives Shun Conference With Green.

Watching Strike Of Dressmakers

5 Modified Agreements Are Given Approval of Administration.

The steel industry, called into meeting yesterday by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins, refused to sit with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and walked out of the conference room in the Labor Department after a whispered explanation to Secretary Perkins.

Green was called to the conference as the official representative of the National Recovery Administration's labor advisory board in negotiations incident to drafting a steel code.

Among the steel men who walked out were W. K. Irvin, of the United States Steel Corporation, and Eugene Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Determination of the steel industry not to deal with organized labor previously was expressed, but its blunt action yesterday startled the labor board, to which Green reported the affair. The board formally adopted a resolution expressing its disapproval and regret and transmitted it to Brig. Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, recovery administrator.

Johnson Unaware.

Gen. Johnson at first deprecated importance of the incident, saying Mr. Green was not the representative of the Labor Advisory Board, that the meeting had been called by Secretary Perkins and it was "her party" about which any comment must come from her. He said last night, however:

"My understanding was that Miss Perkins was Labor adviser on the steel code. I had been so informed by Mr. Simpson and Miss Perkins. I had not heard of the selection of Mr. Green as adviser when I was asked about it at the newspaper conference today, and, therefore, assumed that it was an error. I now find that he was named by Chairman Wolman of the advisory board on July 31, the day of the hearing. Miss Perkins had been

Costes Plans Ocean Flight

Breakfast in Paris and Lunch in New York Frenchman's Aim.

Paris, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Breakfast in Paris and lunch in New York is the daring program mapped out for himself by Dieudonne Costes, French flying hero of transatlantic fame, he revealed today.

Costes said he hopes to make the solo flight back over the trail blazed by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh from New York to Paris in 1927 and to make the flight in 10 hours.

Secret plans for the flight have been approved, it was understood, and Costes is preparing for an early start. He said he believed he could maintain a speed of 300 miles an hour, flying at an extreme altitude of 30,000 feet most of the way.

Costes plans to leave Paris at 8 a. m., Paris time, and arrive at his destination at 1 p. m., New York time, in plenty of time for lunch. He would gain 5 hours in the westward crossing—the difference in time between New York and Paris.

Lindberghs Reach Iceland in New Hop

Map Air Route and Prepare for Flight Soon to Norway Coast.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Aug. 15 (U.P.). Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh arrived here at 7:22 p. m. after an uneventful flight over the North Atlantic from Angmagssalik, on the east coast of Greenland.

They made the 600-mile hop as part of their aerial mapping survey of an air route from North America to Europe.

Oslo, Norway, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—The afternoon Aftenposten said today that Col. Lindbergh was expected to proceed soon to Norway, using the Pan-American Airways gasoline depot at Stavanger, on the coast of Norway. The depot was being prepared by Capt. Riiser Larsen, Norwegian flier.

Johnson Regrets Job Cuts; Sees Little Hope

U. S. Policy Incongruity Granted; Says Budget Balancing Is Vital.

Gen. Hugh Johnson last night viewed Federal slashes in personnel as "regrettably inconsistent" with Government demands that industry raise wages and put the jobless to work.

At the same time the recovery administrator saw no hope for an immediate change in policy if the Government is to set its own financial house in order.

He held with Budget Director Lewis Douglas that a balanced budget is absolutely essential to national recovery; that necessary reductions in Government personnel should not be allowed to stand in the way.

Gen. Johnson denied he has received complaints from industry alleging incongruity in the Government's contradictory treatment of its own employes, but conceded the inconsistency is apparent. He held everything possible is being done by bureau heads at the present time to alleviate the situation.

"Some employes are being let off because it is necessary," he said. "If you do not do that you can not hope to preserve the fiscal solidarity of the United States."

Asked if he would recommend to the next Congress that it take steps to remove the more flagrant inconsistencies in Federal personnel administration, Gen. Johnson replied that he would not.

"That would involve budgetary and fiscal policy that is none of my business," he said.

Recovery Milk Adviser Bared As Price Fixer

Senate Evidence Shows Dr. King Was Rebuked for 1929 Activity.

Evidence that Dr. Clyde L. King, special milk adviser to the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, had sought to effect an agreement between distributors and producers on the retail price of milk was introduced in surprise testimony yesterday before the Senate Milk Investigating Committee.

Dr. King, who is now in the inner councils of the A. A. A., was rebuked by the Attorney General for his activities in the Washington area in 1929, it was disclosed. He was warned by Assistant Attorney General John Lord O'Brian that his plans for arbitration in 1929 would constitute a violation of the antitrust laws, correspondence read before the investigating committee revealed.

King Employment Bared.

Dr. King is now arranging marketing contracts between producers and distributors in the larger milk sheds where there has been considerable haggling over prices.

The investigation is the result of a series of articles in The Post showing the disparity between Washington milk prices and those in other large cities.

Under a rigorous cross examination by Senators William H. King and Pat McCarran and their special counsel, Elwood H Seal, an admission was obtained from John Magill, jr., that the Maryland & Virginia Milk Producers Asociation had invited Dr. King to do arbitration work in 1929. He insisted, however, that this arbitration was on the price paid to the producer, and not the retail price to the consumer.

Brawner Quit Meeting.

Senator King read an affidavit of Robert L. Dickson, secretary of the Alderney - Green Meadow - Fairfax Dairy which told of a secret meeting of distributors and officials of the producers' association.

Henry F. Brawner, head of Chestnut Farms Dairy, refused to sit at the meeting and left, according to Dickson. The Chestnut Farms Dairy was not then an affiliate of the National Dairy Products Corporation. Then, Dickson said, Dr King visited the distributors to form an agreement with the producers. The negotiations stopped after a warning from the Attorney General's office.

$26,000 Found In Gift Satchel

Fulton, Ky., Aug. 15 (AP).—Harry Bushart, 21, and Ikey Reed, 21, returned home today with a satchel containing $26,000 in bonds handed them by mistake while they were in Chicago attending the Century of Progress Exposition.

Accompanied by Carl Mann, of Brownsville, Tenn., they said they were riding in an elevated train and noticed a satchel on the floor near their seat. When they left the car, a man sitting across the aisle handed it to them, saying, "Hey buds, you left your satchel."

They found it contained 26 bonds of $1,000 denomination and a few $5 bills. They said they watched newspapers during the remainder of their stay in Chicago, hoping to find some clew as to the owner, but found none. Local authorities were notified, and the bonds tonight were in a bank safety deposit box pending identification.

Navajos Resent War On Prairie Dog Meat

Gallup, N. Mex., Aug. 15 (AP).—H. C. Neuffer, irrigation supervisor, has discovered why Navajo Indians oppose rodent control work by the Civilian Conservation Corps—the Indians want to eat the prairie dogs.

Prairie dogs, Neuffer explained, are an Indian delicacy. Properly roasted, the meat is sweet and resembles chicken or squirrel. The prairie dog lives on grass, roots and similar foods.

Couzens Called Cause of Bank Not Getting Aid

Detroit Financier Bares Parts Senator, Hoover and Ford Played.

Detroit, Aug. 15 (AP).—The former head of the Nation's largest closed bank startled a crowded courtroom today with a sensational account of parts played by Herbert Hoover, Henry Ford and Senator James Couzens in the negotiations preceding the Michigan—and subsequent national—bank crisis.

Testifying before Circuit Judge Harry B. Keidan's one-man grand jury today, Wilson W. Mills, former chairman of the board of the closed First National Bank, Detroit, said that:

1. Couzens refused to sanction a loan from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation which would have saved the Union Guardian Trust Co. and prevented the Michigan "holiday" which began February 14.

2. Hoover, then President, told him (Mills) that the R. F. C. was afraid to go ahead with the loan in the face of Couzens' opposition and threatened denunciation.

3. Ford at one time was understood by bankers to have agreed to "freeze" a deposit of $7,500,000 in the Union Guardian Trust Co., but later denied he had made such a promise and threatened if the Union Guardian closed to withdraw all the money he had in any bank, including $20,000,000 in the First National.

Senator Couzens, now in Detroit, will answer the statements of Mills when he appears before the grand jury later this week.

Ohio Frees Man Who Made Good

Fugitive, Arrested After Six Years, Pardoned to Resume His Job.

Columbus, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP).—Paul Maxim, who escaped from a Mansfield State Reformatory honor camp in 1927 and made good under an assumed name, was granted a complete pardon today by Gov. George White.

The pardon was granted on the recommendation of the State board of parole. Maxim had become national advertising manager of a paint company at Chicago when he was arrested there August 5 on a tip from authorities at Youngstown, his home. Meantime he had adopted the name "Paul Faraday."

Sentenced to from 1 to 10 years in 1926 for stealing glass pins valued at $100 from a Coitsville, Ohio, school, Maxim escaped from the prison honor camp near Sandusky in 1927.

Boss Tells Woodin To "Take It Easy"

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—The "Boss" having told him to remain away from Washington another month to avoid unfavorable climate conditions, Secretary William H. Woodin will continue to "run the Treasury Department by telephone" from his New York apartment until September.

The smiling Treasury head said he suggested to President Roosevelt at Hyde Park last week that he return to the Capital this month, but the President said "nothing doing."

"The Boss keeps after me to take it easy," Mr. Woodin said today.

But the Secretary of the Treasury can't take things easy. There is too much work to be done.

Justice Does Not Decide Constitutionality of Proration.

Rules Ickes Acts For President

Promptness of Decision Held of Greatest Importance.

"In times of emergency even the Constitution is subject to the laws of necessity."

Thus spoke Justice Joseph W. Cox yesterday in District Supreme Court, and in so saying may have taken the first step toward judicial sanction of the national recovery act.

He denied an attack on a portion of the recovery program—the application of certain Texas oil producers for an order restraining Secretary of the Interior Ickes from inforcing Federal orders prohibiting the interstate shipment of oil produced in violation of State conservation regulations.

Justice Cox did not pass on the constitutionality of Secretary Ickes' oil prohibitions. His decision was on the grounds that the Secretary was acting directly in the place of the President and so could not be restrained or enjoined.

Speed Is Essential.

"The promptness of the decision is more important," he said, "than the reasons for it or perhaps, its correctness."

Argument for the restraining order was made by F. W. F. Fisher, representing the Southport Petroleum Co. and other Texas oil producers. He indicated that he would appeal.

"I do not think that the national recovery act can be sustained on any grounds," Fischer told Justice Cox. "It is unconstitutional for the reason that it is an attempt to delegate power to the President of the United States which can not be delegated, but must be exercised by Congress alone."

Defends Regulations.

Charles Fahy, acting solicitor of the Interior Department, defended the regulations, contending that the Federal Government had the power to control the movement of commodities for the general welfare.

Attorney Fischer told Justice Cox that he had the most weighty question to pass upon since the adoption of the Constitution.

Fahy argued that Secretary Ickes was acting directly in the stead of the President and one so acting could not be enjoined or restrained.

Georgia Road Row Taken to President

Atlanta, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Georgia congressional delegation today asked immediate payment of $10,000,000 Federal highway money to the present State highway board and named Senator Walter George to make an appointment with President Roosevelt in an effort to obtain the money promptly.

Payment of the fund was held up by the Agricultural Department after Gov. Talmadge ousted Chairman J. W. Barnett and Commissioner V. C. Vereen and appointed a new highway board.

Barnett and Vereen started court action to retain their jobs and the Agriculture Department refused to release the money pending a decision from Attorney General Cummings.

Nicholson, Author, To Be Named Envoy

Meredith Nicholson, Indiana author of "The House of a Thousand Candles," will receive a diplomatic appointment under the Roosevelt administration, it was learned yesterday from an authoritative source.

Nicholson has been recommended for a post by Senator Van Nuys, Indiana's new Democratic senator. Mr. Nicholson has been mentioned as new minister to Paraguay. He has been writing since 1900. "A Hoosier Chronicle" is one of his works.

U. S. Abandons Attempt to Peg Wheat Futures

Extra $40,000,000 Given for Reduction of Cotton Acreage.

The Federal Government has abandoned all efforts to peg wheat prices in the futures markets, and will permit the principal grain exchanges to resume normal operations today. This decision was announced by Secretary of Agriculture Wallace yesterday, following a three-hour White House meeting of the Executive Council.

Although the grain exchange rule limiting daily fluctuations in wheat futures to five cents a bushel will continue as a self-imposed policy, the minimum prices schedules established July 30 are to be abandoned.

"We can not maintain prices by any slight of hand or magic," Secretary Wallace told newspapermen.

More for Cotton Farmers.

A second decision touching the national scheme to lift agricultural prices gave the cotton farmers of the South an extra $40,000,000 bounty for reducing their acreage. Government loans to this amount, secured by liens against the 1933 crops, will not be withheld from the acreage reduction bounties paid by the Agricultural Adjustment Administration.

This decision was announced by Henry Morgenthau, director of the Farm Credit Administration. The ruling does not apply, however, to crop and seed loans which were secured through regularly established farm credit agencies.

So difficult was the problem presented the Agricultural Administration in connection with the payment of acreage bounties to farmers already indebted to the Government that a special committee was appointed to write a decision for the approval of the executive council. The committee was composed of Director Morgenthau, Secretary Wallace and Chairman Jesse Jones, of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

Hog Processing Tax.

Secretary Wallace said after yesterday's meeting that the same formula would be followed in the case of wheat loans.

A third decision touching agriculture was announced by Secretary Wallace a few hours before the council meeting. It formally declared the Adjustment Administration's intention of applying the processing tax on hogs effective October 1. Details are to be announced by Secretary Wallace at Chicago Friday. Experts have fixed the hog tax tentatively at one-half cent per pound.

The total cost of the hog curtailment program is estimated at $50,000,000. A Government bonus of $4 will be paid for each of approximately 1,000,000 sows which do not farrow this fall. Packers also will be asked to purchase small pigs for slaughter, instead of allowing them to be fattened on the farms, and it is hoped to reduce the national hog population by approximately 5,000,000.

Steel Men Spurn Meeting on Code

named several days before and indeed has gone on a tour of the steel industry, in preparation to act as such."

Secretary Perkins was equally reticent as were others, although the matter was the subject of a conference late in the day between Gen. Johnson, Edward F. McGrady, Assistant Administrator for Labor; Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the labor advisory board; K. M. Simpson, deputy administrator in charge of the steel code, and Charles Michelson, chief of the publicity bureau of the administration.

Representatives of labor insisted the steel men had forced a showdown which had been foreseen.

The National Labor Board, of which Dr. Wolman is acting chairman, yesterday named Elmer F. Andrews, New York labor commissioner, as its representative to deal with complaints and disputes incident to the strike at the bituminous mines of the H. C. Frick Coke Co., a Pennsylvania subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation. Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania protested to officials against conditions he said existed.

Gen. Johnson said the labor board would take an immediate hand in the New York dressmakers' strike which threatens to involve 60,000 workers in the largest labor disturbance since the President called for a moratorium on strikes. Some of the employers are sympathetic with the strikers and see in the strike an opportunity to wipe out some of the sweatshops and others who have been described as chiselers, the administrator said.

Temporary modified wage and hour agreements were approved for five industries as the administration bent its efforts to bring into line quickly others of the great industries of the country. Modified codes were approved for the Pacific Coast dried fruit, jewelry manufacturing, porcelain enameling, insulator board and jute felt industries.

Conferences were held yesterday with representatives of the automobile industry. Representatives of the coal industry are to meet recovery officials today and the oil men have been called for a conference tomorrow. Progress of the recovery drive was discussed at the weekly meeting of the President's super-Cabinet and Gen. Johnson was said to have been given approval of his drive to speed up codification of industries.

The American Transit Association, representing electrical railways and subsidiary bus lines, submitted a code affecting 191,000 workers. It provided for a work week ranging from 40 to 48 hours and wage minimums ranging from $12 to $15 a week and 40 cents an hour.

Establishment of a division to protect interests of consumers was announced by Mrs. Emily Newell Blair, member of consumers advisory board. Few legitimate complaints of profiteering have been received, she said.

Senate District Committee Investigates Milk Association

Dealings of the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers' Association were told yesterday by its secretary, John Magill, jr., to the Senate Milk Investigating Committee. Around table, left to right, are Senator Pat McCarran, Senator William H. King, the committee reporter, Mr. Magill, and Elwood H. Seal, special counsel to the committee.

U. S. Halts Sale Of Stock Issue By Texas Firm

Trade Commission Makes First Move Under 'Blue Sky' Act.

(Associated Press.)

An order to stop the sale of $250,000 of securities was issued yesterday by the Federal Trade Commission in the first exercise of drastic power conferred by the last session of Congress.

It was directed against the Speculative Investment Trust of Fort Worth for failure to supply information regarding the proposed issue requested by the commission under the securities registration act.

Jail Terms Provided.

Under the order the Texas concern will be enjoined from marketing the issue until it provides the necessary data and receives the commission's approval. Violation of the order, meanwhile, would subject it to a possible fine of $5,000 or imprisonment for five years or both.

The company, organized a year ago to deal in speculative investment in industrial ownership shares, applied for registration July 31.

The commission noted certain deficiencies in the information filed, notified the firm to this effect August 4 and set yesterday for a public hearing.

Through Bert Laubenheim, one of its officers, the company sought postponement of the hearing on the ground it had not had time to comply with the request for more information.

Richard P. Whiteley, commission counsel, contended the company had been given ample opportunity and he was allowed to proceed with the hearing with the company unrepresented.

Claimed Blue Eagle.

Whiteley said the company failed to submit its advertising prospectus, balance sheet and profit and loss statements for the last three years, and made an error in the outstanding capital stock item.

He offered in evidence what he described as an advertisement sent through the mails by the company addressed to "dear friends and backers" and offering "big, quick profit-winnings" on $10 initial investments.

The advertisement, Whiteley said, also contained a large NRA Blue Eagle on its face and a caption claiming registration under the "Truth in Securities Act."

Diana Lumber Plant Opening After 3 Years

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—Purchase of the Diana Lumber Co.'s plant at Diana and plans for putting it into full operation with 150 men after a shutdown of three years were announced today by the Holly River Lumber Co., of Webster Springs.

Preliminary work was started today at the plant, while John A. Ford, manager, said a large crew of woodsmen had already been put to work getting out logs on Big Run, 16 miles up in the mountains.

Dr. King Is Called Fixer of Milk Price

Association was suggested by Senator McCarran after he had heard dairy farmers testify that a better bargain may be made by independent action than by bargaining through the association.

Thompson's Dairy sold 70,000 gallons of bottled milk since January 1 for which the producer was paid the price he usually receives for surplus milk, it was admitted yesterday by Magill.

$500,000 Surplus.

So far, the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Association has not received from the milk distributor the price generally obtained for milk sold in bottle form, he said. This milk brings 26 cents a gallon to the producer. The producer was paid an average of 14 cents a gallon, the price paid for milk used in cream-making.

Mr. Magill disclosed that the organization has on hand a surplus of $500,000, deposited in a bank in Orange, Va., in which F. S. Walker, president of the association, has an interest.

The production of milk in the Washington milkshed, Mr. Magill admitted, is discouraged by the association because "there is now too much milk" produced to meet the demands of the local market.

Health Rules Blamed.

No action has been taken by the association, Magill said, to attempt to force payment to the dairy farmers for the surplus milk used for bottling purposes by the Thompson Dairy. This milk nets the farmer 12 cents more than the 14 cents he receives early in the year for the surplus milk.

Dairy farmers told the committee that exacting health regulations and ever changing rules of the District Health Department kept them "continually in debt."

Canadian Confesses Killing 5 of His Family

Campbell's Bay, Quebec, Aug. 15 (AP).—Provincial police said today that Michael Bradley, 42-year-old farmer, had confessed killing five members of his family on July 21. Bradley has been held here on a murder charge since a week after the wholesale slayings.

The victims included his father, mother, uncle, sister and brother. Police asserted that when asked what his motive was, Bradley replied that the family was having "fun" with money he had invested in the homestead.

Cash Balance Of U. S. Now at Highest Level

Largest Peace-Time Total Accumulated to Finance Recovery Program.

(Associated Press.)

The largest cash balance in the history of the Treasury in peacetime was established yesterday to meet expenditures of President Roosevelt's recovery program.

At the close of business the Treasury had cash on hand of approximately $1,200,000,000 after selling $1,189,901,650 of bonds and notes offered to the public for subscription early this month.

The total subscription amounted to $4,802,568,450, or more than four times as much as the Treasury accepted.

Of the total allotted $469,425,200 was in exchange subscriptions, for which maturing certificates of indebtedness were offered in payment.

In addition, the Treasury had to pay $230,721,000 more on certificates that matured today and $9,400,000 in interest payments on the public debt.

After the huge deal was completed the Treasury had approximately $489,755,150 as the result of the sale. It also had a cash balance on August 12 of $757,634,198.

The cash subscriptions for the bonds were held open several days to permit small investors to share in helping to finance the Government's recovery program. No indication was given as to what portion of the total went to the smaller subscribers.

With only Floyd missing from the count, the vote was 188,206. Of this number George C. Peery, the nominee, received 115,536 votes; Joseph T. Deal, 40,163, and W. Worth Smith, jr., 32,507.

Johnson, City's Busiest Man, Has Secret of Keeping 'Fresh'

He Gets More Out of Sleep and Work Periods Than Others.

It often has been said that Gen. Hugh S. Johnson is the busiest man in the world.

Yesterday he received approximately 4,000 letters. While all of them did not ask for appointments, the majority indicated they would be pleased by personal interviews.

Two hundred of these letters asking for interviews were sufficiently important to come to the attention of his personal secretary. She also received 150 telephone calls asking for appointments.

Gen. Johnson retired at 2 o'clock yesterday morning. After four hours' sleep he had the following schedule:

His Schedule.

7 a. m.—Newspapers and breakfast.

8 a. m.—Telephone calls, keeping him at home until 9:45.

9:45 a. m.—To Postoffice with James Farley to buy the first recovery stamp.

10 to 11:40 a. m.—To meeting of Secretary of Labor.

11:45 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.—At office. Kept 12 appointments.

12:15 to 1:30 p. m.—Conference with his own organization.

1:30 to 2:15 p. m.—Lunch with his staff.

2:15 to 2:50 p. m.—Conference with publishers.

2:50 to 5:20 p. m.—Attended Cabinet meeting at White House.

5:25 to 6:00 p. m.—Conference with the press.

6:00 to 6:30 p. m.—Staff meeting.

6:30 to 7:30 p. m.—Appointments.

7:30 to 8:30 p. m.—Dinner.

9:00 p. m.—Back at his office to work on codes, look after his correspondence and consult with advisers.

The general was still working when the stop-watch was taken off, and it looked as if it would be after midnight before he had supper and called it a night.

Many Not Seen.

The people whom the general was not able to see yesterday nearly equaled the number he did see. They included visitors who came hundreds of miles. They will get priority on his list today.

When they do see him, the thing that will surprise the most, is the fact that he looks fresher than they do.

The general knows how to get more out of four hours' sleep than most people can get out of eight. He also knows how to get more out of a day's work than most people can get out of a week.

Official Thumb-Printing Of Bonds Being Urged

Burlington, Kans., Aug. 15 (AP).—A suggestion that public officials thumb-print as well as sign bonds has been made by Joe Rolston, jr., county attorney of Coffee County, as a means of preventing wholesale bond forgeries such as have recently come to light in Kansas.

If the signature were accompanied by a thumb-print, Rolston said, it would be impossible for any other person to forge both the name and thumb-print of the official signing the bond.

British Expert Coming Here to Discuss Debts

Economic Aid's Visit Seen as Reviving Problem; $127,670,765 Due.

(Associated Press.)

The perplexing war debt problem rose again yesterday before the Roosevelt administration with official word that preliminary discussions on the subject would begin with the British early in October.

With another payment of $127,670,765 due from Great Britain December 15, Secretary Hull announced that Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, economic adviser to the British government, would come to Washington about October 1 to discuss the obligation.

Of the payment due, $85,950,000 is for interest and $41,720,765 is principal. Great Britain made a partial advance of $10,000,000 in silver on its $75,950,000 installment last June, but prior to that had paid in full.

Details Are Unknown.

Mr. Hull did not know whether Sir Frederick would be accompanied by other experts, because the United States had not been advised about the details of the British arrangements.

Great Britain will probably be the first of the European debtors to negotiate for revision of the agreements under which they are obligated to pay the United States more than $11,000,000,000.

Britain's obligation to the United States under its funding agreement is about four and a half billion dollars and it has paid in excess of $2,000,000,000.

Revision Pleas Renewed.

Great Britain and other powers which made partial payments on their installments last June, renewed ther plea for revsion of their agreements, and asked for further opportunity to explain the impossibility of meeting their obligations under present economic conditions.

The debtor nations wrote down the amount of reparations they were claiming from Germany by 90 per cent on condition that the United States revise its claims against them.

Congress is on record against cancellation or further revision of the war debts. President Roosevelt took the same stand.

Senator Robinson Bests Huey Long

Places Candidate in Rice Job Over Man Supported by Louisiana 'Kingfish.'

(Associated Press.)

Another clash between Senator Robinson, Democratic leader of the Senate, and his political foe, Huey Long, of Louisiana, has resulted in a victory for the Arkansas senator.

The latest tilt between the two came over patronage from the Farm Adjustment Administration. It ended yesterday with the appointment of Charles D. Miller, Robinson's brother-in-law, as an official of the administration's rice department.

Senator Long had advanced W. E. Trotter, of Crowley, La.

Miller's headquarters will be at Stuttgart, Ark. His title is "administration expert in production, processing and marketing of rice."

Edgemont Residents Lose Fight for Road

Hagerstown, Md., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—The State roads commission will not change the route of the highway from Smithsburg to Camp Ritchie, erection of which is to be started shortly. Residents of Edgemont sought to have the commission change the route, so that it would pass through Edgemont, contending that that route would be two miles shorter and less grade, and could be constructed much cheaper.

Personnel Classification Expansion to Be Urged

Extension of classification as "the corner stone of a sound personnel system," will be sought in resolutions to be called up at the convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes in Kansas City September 4, Luther C. Steward, president of the federation, said last night.

Resolutions also will be introduced asking establishment of a civil service court of appeals, he announced.

Forest Army Reenlistments Recommended

Three Federal Agencies Request President to Retain Camps.

Three Government agencies charged with caring for the Reforestation Army, have recommended to President Roosevelt the conservation movement be continued for another six months, it was learned yesterday.

The War Department, the Forest Service and the Park Service have approved the reenlistment of the men for another six-month period in reports to the President.

The continuation proposal will be settled between President Roosevelt, Director Robert Fechner of the corps and the Corps Advisory Board at a meeting that probably will be held before the President returns to Hyde Park on Saturday.

Second Cost Cheaper.

There are now 314,000 men in forest work camps whose six-month enlistments will expire in December. The cost of the movement this first period will amount to about $125,000,000. The men could be maintained for an additional six months for only $65,000,000 more.

Army authorities who are responsible for the living conditions of the men report that about 60 per cent of them want to reenlist. This percentage may be lowered after the men have worked in the open during cold weather.

If reenlistment is authorized, it is likely that the 314,000 men may be allowed to enroll again. No recruits will be enrolled to fill the places of those who do not reenlist.

Must Move Camps.

The Army also has estimated that about one-third of the camps will have to be moved to warmer climates for winter work.

These men will have to be moved in any case. In the Northern camps, it will not be possible to carry on out-door work after September 15, due to low temperatures. A number of mountain camps, where snow falls early, also will have to be abandoned then.

The enlistments of comparatively few men will have expired by September 15, so they will have to be moved South. The Army expects to build barracks to replace tents in a number of camps which will not be moved.

Death Traps Seen In Aero Economy

U. S. Warned of Plans to Cut Costs on Mail, Passenger Routes.

Demands that the Government cancel its proposals to economize on the Nation's airways lest it make death traps of them, were voiced last night by representatives of leading commercial aviation operators.

The proposals, designed to reduce by $700,000 annually the cost of maintaining routes over which mail and passengers are flown, were advanced by the Commerce Department yesterday in conferences with the operators. The sessions will be continued today.

The proposals range from elimination of lights on certain airways to discontinuance in some instances of radio range beacons, intermediate landing field lights and teletype weather reports.

Woman Denies Fire Murder of Former Mate

Youth Who Was Seen at Torch Death Location Held by Police.

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 15 (AP).—Police tonight held 19-year-old Bruce Thompson in their investigation of the "torch death" of Earl Hanson, pending comparison of his fingerprints with those found on a pan from which it is believed gasoline was thrown on the automobile in which Hanson was burned.

Thompson was questioned after police learned he and his grandmother, Mrs. Mae Rife, living about a block from the home of Hanson's divorced wife, where the burning occurred last Sunday, were among the first persons on the scene. When other witnesses arrived he was holding Mrs. Hanson, police were told. The woman apparently had fainted.

Thompson denied any connection with the death. He said he and his grandmother heard the explosion and rushed to the burning car.

The divorced wife, Mrs. May Hanson, 38, was subjected to a prolonged inquisition as State's Attorney Robert D. Nash sought to substantiate his theory that Hanson had been slain.

Mrs. Hanson firmly maintained she had nothing to do with the death of her husband.

Kansas City Acts To Curb All Vice

Lid Ordered Clamped on Gambling, Speakeasies, Says Paper.

Kansas City, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Kansas City Star says "the lid goes on gambling, booze joints and other forms of vice" in Kansas City tonight.

"That is the word passed out at the City Hall today and it was said the order came directly from T. J. Pendergast, Democratic boss, now in New York," the newspaper continued.

Sentiment against the activity of racketeers has been focused by the Union Station plaza slaughter and by the slaying of two gangsters by Sheriff Thomas Bash after they had assassinated another racketeer on a boulevard in the midtown apartment hotel district.

Vagrant Is Sought In Woman's Death

Dover, N. J., Aug. 15 (AP).—A tattered vagrant whose recent shelter had been a lean-to made from a billboard and a piece of tarpaulin, was sought today as the possible slayer of Anna Ulm, 45-year-old New York spinster who summered at Lake Hoptacong.

The woman's body was found Sunday night wedged in between two trunks of a tree stump 50 yards from the lean-to and less than a quarter of a mile from where thousands of persons were swimming at the time of the killing.

Police concealed until today the fact a murder had been committed. When the body was found Sunday night, it was announced it had been hanging from a tree, evidence of suicide. This story was intended by investigators to lead the killer into a sense of false security.

British Aircraft Shot Kills Girl

Sheerness, Kent, England, Aug. 15 (AP).—One of the strangest tragedies in British military annals occurred today when a London girl, Jean Chesterton, 17, who was rowing in a boat with her sister off Leysdown Beach, was shot dead by a machine gunner in a Royal Air Force auxiliary plane. The gunner mistook her boat for a target.

The girls were a quarter of a mile from the shore searching for a child's ball which had floated out from the beach.

The planes were manned by territorial volunteers on annual training.

Senators Told Of Methods to Curb Criminals

Enough Money Wasted on Cases to Run Courts, U. S. Judge Says.

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Voluminous advice on the curbing of crime was poured into the record of the Senate subcommittee on racketeering today by judges, prosecutors, lawyers, policemen and criminologists.

State compacts to give courts subpena power across State lines, trials in the absence of fugitives from justice, a national vagrancy act, prohibition on the paying of tribute to racketeers, Federal assumption of crime prosecution where States fail and universal registration and fingerprinting were among the suggestions presented to the committee in the last session of its two-day open hearing.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, chairman of the committee, which is a subunit of the Senate Committee on Commerce, announced that open hearings with the full committee would be held in Chicago on October 3 and in Detroit on October 5.

One of the witnesses of the day was Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey, who told Copeland that Federal courts were crowded "beyond human endurance," and added that "the out-of-pocket money wasted on criminal cases that never get to trial would be more than enough to furnish adequate court machinery."

Lehman Wars on Rackets.

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—Gov. Herbert H. Lehman called on the New York Legislature today to take immediate drastic steps "to curtail and eventually to suppress" racketeering. In a message to the lawmakers the governor said the time had come to take steps to protect legitimate business. He said the laws he proposed would permit a thorough investigation into the New York milk strike, which ended yesterday, although he explained this was not the primary purpose of his message.

Lehman's proposal that the Attorney General's powers be broadened so he could ferret out racketeers was incorporated in a measure immediately presented by Assemblyman William C. McCreery, Brooklyn Democrat.

Churchmen Ban Aid in Rum Cases

Will Extend No Relief for Destitution Caused by Legal Liquor.

Heathsville, Va., Aug. 15 (AP).—Fifteen hundred Northern Neck churchmen at a Baptist camp meeting today resolved against extending church relief to families suffering from the effect of legalized liquors, should the eighteenth amendment be repealed.

The resolution was offered by the Rev. A. J. Reamy. It called upon the Virginia Legislature to make available "such sum of relief money as may be necessary to relieve distress brought on by the use of intoxicants or alcoholic drinks purchased from licensed dealers who pay the State a tax for such license."

"If no distress comes from legalized selling of alcoholic drinks, there will be no relief needed," the resolution added. "If innocent women and children suffer as they did in the days of legalized liquor it is only fair that the State that gets the revenue should care for innocent suffering families."

Kansas Official Held in Scandal

Embezzlement Charged in Million Dollar Bond Forgery Case.

Topeka, Aug. 15 (AP).—Tom Boyd, State treasurer, faced an embezzlement charge tonight in the million-dollar Kansas bond forgery scandal, while Gov. Alf M. Landon promised impeachment proceedings against him and possibly other State officials.

The placing of charges against the official was followed by an increase of armed National Guardsmen on duty in the treasurer's office. The guardsmen took charge of Boyd's private office and personal desk on orders from the governor.

Vaults Under Guard.

State accountants began an immediate search of all files and records, including those in the private desk. The vaults of the treasury department have been under armed guard for a week.

"The investigation which has been conducted so far seems to warrant other impeachments," declared the chief executive, declining to amplify his statement or name specifically the officials involved.

At the request of the governor, the Kansas legislative council created a special committee to cooperate in the bond forgery investigation with a view to recommending the "further impeachments" hinted by the chief executive.

Treasurer Surrenders.

Boyd surrendered himself at the courthouse today, and was arrested on a warrant which charged him with making a technical loan of $150,000 to Ronald Finney, Emporia broker, charged with uttering forged bonds.

He was arraigned and released on $25,000 bond. His preliminary hearing was set for September 8. Boyd did not comment on the charge, or the demand of Gov. Landon that he resign.

Illinois Moves To Try Capone As Racketeer

Habeas Corpus Writ Makes U. S. Bring Gangster From Atlanta.

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—Arrangements for Al Capone to be returned from Atlanta Penitentiary under heavy guard to Chicago to stand trial for racket conspiracy with 23 others were started today.

Chief Justice John J. Prystalski, of criminal court, issued a writ of habeas corpus directing Federal authorities to produce Capone in his court August 29. The former gang chief is serving 10 years at Atlanta for income tax fraud.

Federal officials here said they believed there would be no objections to returning Capone. Attorney General Cummings was expected to accede to the writ upon his return to Washington Thursday or Friday from a trip.

Assistant State's Attorney Grover C. Neimeyer, a leader in prosecutions of the racket case, presented the writ to Judge Prystalski. The document was drawn against Warden A. C. Aderholt of the Atlanta prison.

Local authorities said Capone probably would be present in court on the date specified, that a delay would be granted for defense attorneys to prepare their cases, and that Capone would be incarcerated in the Cook County Jail or the State Penitentiary at Joliet, pending trial.

Indicted with Capone on the charges of conspiracy to restrain trade by preying on legitimate business were attorneys, a prominent alderman, heads of labor unions and trade associations, and gangsters.

Water Fatal to 17; Many Wells Sealed

West Virginia Community Excited by Death of Another Child.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—The Rosemont section was further excited today when the seventeenth death in the outbreak of a disease resembling flux was reported. The victim was Donald Lee Riffle, year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Riffle, who died on the way to an Elkins hospital.

The disease comes from impure water in wells, according to Dr. Rezinstout, county health officer. He has sealed numerous wells and springs in the Rosemont section and has warned the people not to drink any water until it has been tested by health authorities, but the disease continues to claim victims, mostly children. The health department has been cooperating with local officers in trying to stamp out the disease.

Ever Eat Rattlesnake Steak?

Shenandoah Park Landscape Artist Recounts Palate-Tickling Qualities to Virginia Chefs; Resort Owner Booms Reptile Market.

Luray, Va., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—Tender, palate-tickling rattlesnake steak will be a part of the Page County menu if the advice of L. M. Harris, of California, is accepted at face value. Harris is a landscape architect, developing Shenandoah National Park.

He has been imparting culinary information to Page County chefs in the preparation of the Blue Ridge rattler for home consumption. In California, the hom of the big rattler, Harris says, the dish is delectable and highly prized as a brain tonic and bone-builder.

The experience of working in a region where rattlers are numerous, dreaded and deadly, has given Harris opportunity to study the texture of the meat and make a special note of its "finely grained" quality.

Imparting information about the right method of preparing the snake for table use, Harris says care should be taken in capturing the rattler, not allowing the reptile to bite itself, as this may prove dangerous to the partaker of the delicacy.

Care should be taken, the California authority says, in "clipping the hide as soon as possible after the snake has fought its last fight." After parboiling the rattler, further preparation for its table use is easy, if left in the hands of an experienced snake-preparing chef.

G. Freeman Pollock, owner of a summer resort in the Blue Ridge, near Luray, is buying rattlers that are being captured by members of Civilian Conservation camps. The reptiles are trapped with "snake forks" that are easily made.

Bailey's Trial For Murder to Get Precedence

Ace of 'Public Enemies' Formally Accused of Missouri Massacre.

Dallas, Tex., Aug. 15 (AP).—The gallows loomed ahead tonight for Harvey Bailey, one of the chief "public enemies" of the Nation, as Federal and State officials moved swiftly on numerous fronts to bring to justice the perpetrators of the Union Station massacre in Kansas City and the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil magnate.

Department of Justice agents said the captured desperado had been identified positively by eyewitnesses as one of the machine gunners who killed four officers and Frank Nash, convict, in Kansas City June 17. Murder charges were filed late today against Bailey in connection with the slaughter in Kansas City.

Federal authorities indicated Bailey would be turned over to Kansas City authorities instead of being removed first to Oklahoma City with four other prisoners for arraignment on Federal charges of kidnaping in the Urschel case.

Meanwhile, a widespread hunt was being pressed throughout the country for Verne C. Miller, former South Dakota sheriff; Wilbur Underhill, escaped Kansas convict, and others sought in the Kansas City killings, and for George Kelly, named with Albert L. Bates, arrested at Denver, as the actual abductors of Urschel, who was ransomed for $200,000.

Airplanes Direct Chicago Man Hunt

Overhead droned three airplanes equipped with short wave wireless to direct activities of the dozens of squad cars secreted along the highways.

As per arrangements, a taxicab drove to the barbecue stand. In it was a diminutive policeman dressed as a messenger boy. The driver was another officer. A sedan trailed the taxi.

The messenger boy got out, gave the kidnapers the prearranged signal and they took the package. Then Patrolman Frank McKenna, the "messenger," gave another signal. Overhead the men in the planes saw it through glasses and flashed word to all squads. As the kidnapers fled the "chauffeur" of the taxi spatted machine gun bullets at them and was answered by a volley of pistol shots. One of the extortionists was believed wounded. The car was driven into a woods, where it later was found abandoned.

At the same time a wireless warning was sent out that another car carrying other suspected members of the kidnap gang was cruising in the area.

The big dragnet closed in on the woods attempting to trace the flight of the other car and the path of the fugitives.

Fair Traffic Snarled.

Traffic, clogged by incoming world's fair visitors, was snarled for miles as police blocked off the area of the search. An entire square mile of underbrush was combed. The result was the arrest of two men who claimed they were out for a hike. They were taken to headquarters for questioning.

Meanwhile detectives came upon the abandoned sedan and traced its license plates to the proprietor of a West Side saloon. Police sent there arrested five men and took them to the detective bureau for questioning.

Detective Chief William Schoemaker refused to reveal the names of the five.

The identity of four of the quarry sought was given in police reports as Richard (Yuma) Phillips, known here as an underworld "fixer," Vernon Miller, one of the notorious Harvey Bailey gang; Tommy Touhy, brother of Roger, held for the kidnaping of William Hamm, jr., St. Paul brewer, and George Kelly, said by authorities to be wanted in the Urschel case.

Urschel Case Arrests.

The missing automobile carrying other suspects bore a Texas license plate, authorities said had been issued to Mrs. Ora L. Shannon, of Paradise, Texas. It was at Paradise that Bailey, four members of the Shannon family and another person were arrested in connection with the Urschel case.

Miller and Bailey, Federal authorities said, also were suspected in the machine-gun slaying of Frank Nash, escaped former convict, and four peace officers returning him to prison. The killings occurred at Kansas City a few weeks ago.

Police said men meeting descriptions of Kelly and Miller fitted two men in the car. A woman also was reported as a passenger.

State police kept close watch over highways leading out into the State as darkness fell and the posse continued to tramp the woods where the suspects last were seen. But the fugitives, as one suburban police official put it, apparently "evaporated in thin air."

Hunt Kelly in Baltimore.

Baltimore, Aug. 15 (AP).—Baltimore police today sought George R. Kelly, alias R. G. Shannon, alleged submachine gunner, wanted in connection with the $200,000 Urschel kidnaping case.

An operator of the Bureau of Investigation, United States Department of Justice, told the police the man might be in this city.

North Carolina Dry Agents Ready to Quit Arresting Liquor Violators.

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—In the hills where "mountain dew" has dripped since earliest days of "revenoo" officers, the mountaineers consider this 3.2 beer business a rank injustice.

Since the rest of the country has beer, the hillbilly blockaders and 'shiners have decided they should not be molested in manufacturing their well-known potions. The lot of prohibition agents has become correspondingly harder.

In some sections of the State, a check here revealed, Federal and State officers are finding convictions so difficult to obtain that they no longer will make arrests when a jury trial will result.

Capital Bill Collector Dies In Auto Crash

Collision With Truck Kills Frank Airey; Driver of Van Escapes.

Frank Airey, 906 H street northwest, a bill collector, was killed instantly yesterday in an automobile accident, near Halethorpe, Md.

Airey was driving the car of Dr. Charles B. Hall, of Washington. He crashed head-long into a produce truck driven by Leo Wanex, East New Market, Md.

Wanex, who escaped injury, told Coroner John Farrell, of Halethorpe, that Airey apparently lost control of his machine as he rounded a curved approach to the Patapsco River bridge. The car smashed head-on into the truck, Airey being thrown 15 feet by the impact. The truck turned over, but Wanex escaped.

A certificate of accidental death was issued. Airey had taken the car to Baltimore in an attempt to sell it.

Quillen Named Head of State Nurserymen

Virginia Representative for Closer Cooperation by Group and Officials.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Edward M. Quillen, of Waynesboro, was elected president of the State Nurserymen's Association at its annual convention at Arlington Hall yesterday. Other officers elected were Fred Shoesmith, of Richmond, vice president, and William N. Roper, of Petersburg, secretary and treasurer. Members of the executive committee, in addition to above officers, include Owen G. Wood, of Bristol, retiring president, and John B. Watkins, of Midlothian, Va.

Stressing closer cooperation among the nurserymen for roadside improvement, R. F. Roll, assistant landscape engineer, State highway department, stated the department was ready to aid in this work throughout the State.

What is being done by the United States toward reforestation was shown by an illustrated lecture by H. N. Wheeler, chief lecturer for the United States Forestry Service.

Value of the proper display of the nurserymen's stock to increase sales was outlined by President Quillen.

The convention adjourned following an address by G. T. French, State entomologist, who declared careful studies show nursery stocks in Virginia are practically free from the many "pests" that so often destroy entire stocks of all classes of shrubbery.

Two Detectives Exonerated of Beating Charge

Shimon and Christian Are Immediately Reinstated After Own Testimony.

The Police Trial Board yesterday cleared Third Precinct Detectives Joseph W. Shimon and William V. Christian on charges of beating Thomas B. Washington, 26-year-old colored tap dancer, in the Third Precinct Station House several weeks ago.

The detectives were reinstated at once and given assignments by the Detective Bureau.

The board action was announced shortly after they took the stand in their own behalf, relating that Washington was hit in the face in a fist fight with another prisoner in the cell block at the station house.

They told the board that Raymond Pearson, also colored, accused Washington of "squealing." Washington was being questioned in connection with housebreakings and "joyriding" cases at the time of the alleged assault.

Shimon and Christian were represented by Attorney Charles E. Ford. The trial opened last week, but was continued until yesterday to allow the prosecution to bring in new witnesses.

Residents Sue Alexandria for Water Damage

Complaints Also Allege Sewage Backed Into Four Basements.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 333.

The City of Alexandria is named defendant in a suit for $30,000, filed by A. W. Wiley and his wife, Mrs. Hattie Wiley, in corporation court for alleged damages caused by water filling the cellars and sewage backing into basements of four houses owned by them.

It is stated in the papers filed that several city officials were asked to adjust the matter, but the city "willfully and negligently disregarded its duty." It is also recited that the health of the plaintiffs has been impaired, and that they sold one of the houses at a large loss.

Potomac Citizens Protest.

The flooding of cellars and backing-up of sewage has been brought before the city council several times by residents, particularly in the former Town of Potomac.

It is understood that some of the residents of Potomac have raised funds and will employ counsel to bring suit against the city. They claim that under the annexation decree all taxes in the annexed territory should have been spent in that territory for five years. They say this has not been done, but the money was spent in the older portion of the city.

Discussed by Council.

Councilmen Henry O'B. Cooper and E. C. Davison, representing the Fifth and Sixth Wards, respectively, are seeking to have the greater portion of the proposed Government loan spent for sewer improvement in the annexed territory.

One proposal at the special City Council meeting Monday night was to allocate one-half of the street money, or about $100,000 to the annexed territory. The other half would go to the other four wards.

Dr. Farrington Sinks; Believed Dead in River

Vanishes on Fishing Trip After Joking; Noted Here as Athlete.

Dr. John (Jack) Farrington, former star athlete of Washington sandlot leagues and during the past year a Mechanicsville (Md.) physician, was believed drowned yesterday in Bretton Bay, near Leonardtown.

Dr. Farrington mysteriously disappeared when on a fishing trip with several companions. He was last seen swimming near a small motor launch which carried the party.

Members of the fishing party, including Dr. Thomas Bowden, health officer of St. Marys County, could shed no light on Dr. Farrington's disappearance. He was laughing and talking only a few moments before he was missed, and no one saw him sink.

St. Marys County authorities and volunteer searchers continued to drag the waters late last night.

Dr. Farrington was graduated from Georgetown University Medical School. During his interneship at Providence Hospital he made a lasting name for himself on sandlot baseball diamonds.

While at Gonzaga High School he starred in football and basketball. His only shortcoming in sports, friends said, was swimming.

Dr. Farrington had practiced in Mechanicsville for more than a year. The family home here is 302 K street northeast. The immediate relatives are the doctor's wife, Mrs. Ann Farrington, and their 2-week-old infant. The physician's mother died several months ago.

White schools will have classes 187 days, closing June 15. Colored schools will close May 18.

Lottery Abolition Planned by Cubans

Havana, Aug. 15 (AP).—As one of the byproducts of the anti-Machado revolution the Cuban national lottery is tied up, for the time being at least, and may eventually be suppressed.

Because of the general strike the drawing scheduled for Sunday, August 6, was postponed by government decree. Since that time Sebastian Planas, director of the lottery, has joined the numerous Machado adherents forced to flee the island or go into hiding.

Suppression of the lottery was one of the items in the program of the Machado opposition which now controls the government.

Five Men Seized At Rossdhu Castle

Medieval Rossdhu Castle, in Maryland, looked down again on men at arms last night when five men allegedly menaced Nathan Cosmon, occupant of the gate lodge at the castle, with pistol and shotgun.

The men were arrested by Montgomery County police. They gave their names as Bernard J. Wagoner, 27; James Burke, 19; John Bosley, 22; John Graff, 23, and Joseph King, 21, all of Baltimore, Md.

Responding to an alarm that there had been a shooting at the castle, a squad led by Sergt. Leroy Rodgers found the men, they said, threatening Cosmon. He told police the men said he had taken an automobile belonging to them and demanded that he return it. After an attempt at pacification, he signaled an attendant to call police.

District Youth Killed by Blast At Troop Camp

Corpl. E. J. Ice Dies When Hit by Rock; Was Acting as Photographer.

Camp Albert C. Ritchie, Cascade, Md., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—Meeting a tragic death while on duty with the District National Guard here just before noon today, Corpl. Egbert J. Ice, 20 years old, Company D, who lived at 8 Fourth street southeast, Washington, D. C., was killed during demolition training in the woods south of the camp.

The company, commanded by Samuel R. Turner, went into the field early this morning for training, which consisted of setting charges of dynamite to blow obstructions from the road. Corpl. Ice accompanied the men as the official photographer. It was while carrying out his duties that the accident occurred.

Standing on a stump, he exposed his film at the moment the explosion occurred, 335 feet away. Stepping down, he was struck on the head by a fragment of rock. The picture, since developed, turned out perfect.

Sergt. Taylor A. Marsh rushed to his assistance. Marsh and Sergts. Edward M. Morris and Charles A. Dulin and Privates Robert E. Shannagan, Roderick A. Bacon and Paul F. Goetz carried Ice to the camp infirmary. Morris administered first aid en route.

Carried to Hospital.

Maj. Joseph Greenlaw, commanding the medical detachment, ordered the youth sent to the Waynesboro, Pa., Hospital. Ice's injury was a compound fracture of the skull. Nothing could be done to save his life. He died at 4:20 p. m., without regaining consciousness.

Maj. Greenlaw and Maj. George J. Allen, of Washington, attended Ice to the time of his death.

This evening an investigation was held by a board appointed by Col. John W. Oehmann, regimental commander. On the board were Maj. Ralph S. Childs, commanding second battalion, and Capts. William F. Jorgenson and William T. Mushale. Results of the investigation will be made public tomorrow.

Maj. Sidney Morgan inspected the scene of the accident and will report to the board.

Born in Memphis Tenn., Ice moved to Washington about two years ago. He was employed by the U. S. Weather Bureau. In January, 1932, he joined the National Guard, being assigned to Company D. Previous to camp this year, he was appointed corporal and made company clerk. Owing to the fact that there were no experienced photographers in the company, he was prevailed upon to take pictures of the activities.

Father Is Notified.

His father, E. Clarence Ice, of Richton, Miss., and Miss Zelda Carter, of Millboro, Va., reported to have been his fiancee, were notified of his death by Capt. Arthur L. Smith, regimental chaplain.

Following a conference with Maj. Gen. Anton Stephan this afternoon, Col. Upham, Lieut. Col. Peyton G. Nevitt and Maj. Sidney Morgan left for Washington, where they will present information to the District Commissioners regarding the building of a new armory for the National Guard.

Gen. Stephan has written the Public Works Commission urging that funds be granted to construct the armory. Not less than $2,500,000 was requested. Copies of the letter also were sent to the Commissioners and the Secretary of War.

Maj. L. McD. Silvester, regular Army instructor, addressed the Twenty-ninth Division staff this morning.

Hagerstown, Md., Aug 15 (Spl.).—In order to avoid trouble with 30 peach pickers who went on strike in the orchards of Roy M. Daniels, Hancock, the grower asked Sheriff W. Bruce Downin to send several deputies there while he recruited new pickers today.

Two deputies were dispatched to the scene. The pickers walked out after demanding an increase in wages.

In asking for assistance in maintaining order, Daniels told the Sheriff that a large quantity of ripe fruit must be picked immediately to avoid a heavy loss.

Motorist, Hurt, Spirited From Scene of Crash

Washington and Virginia Hospitals Combed in Fairfax Accident.

A search of Washington and nearby Virginia hospitals was started by police of Fairfax County last night, after the sufferer in an automobile accident, apparently seriously injured, was spirited from the scene, on the Lee Highway, earlier in the day.

Police said the injured man was P. J. Gentry, of Cherrydale, Va., and that his car crashed into the machine of W. S. McClintic, of Pittsburgh, Pa., near Fairfax, careened off the road and overturned. Witnesses said Gentry was carried unconscious from the wreck and placed in a passing car for transportation to a hospital, the location of which was not known late last night.

He failed to arrive at any hospital in the vicinity and Washington authorities were asked to be on the lookout.

McClintic and W. S. Arduthnot, also of Pittsburgh, a passenger in his car, were unhurt.

A committee was appointed to call on Judge John F. Brown, of the Twentieth Judicial Circuit, seeking an injunction to prevent the levy.

The association claims $46,000 is now being held in the defunct People's Bank and in the frozen accounts of the Buckhannon Bank and the Central National Bank. B. C. Radabaugh is president of the committee and the members are Frank E. Harne and T. J. Liggett.

Godwin-Knight Battle Will Aid Labor Day Fete

Light-Heavies to Go Into Action at Twin City Next Tuesday.

Two of the ring's hardest hitters and most stout-hearted boys—Bobby Godwin and Joe Knight—are going to smack one another around Twin City Arena next Tuesday night for the National Firemen's Labor Day Parade.

Here is a fight, a grudge battle, not a benefit, although the fire fighters are going to be helped considerably through the efforts of the fighters and Promoter "Fats" Cornell.

Both are light-heavyweights, and both have and can give Mr. Maxie Rosenbloom, the title holder, very uneasy ring moments. In fact, there are plenty of the boys who will put lots of their currency up to attest their belief in either Godwin or Knight as opposed to the champ.

Godwin Is Fireman.

The Godwin-Knight go, of course, won't be the only attraction on the card, although from an entertainment standpoint it would be more than the much-touted plenty. Cornell is going to have several hundreds of prize-fighting pounds in action that night.

To add to interest in the Godwin-Knight go is the fact that Godwin is volunteer fireman of the Herald Harbor company. He has already made his parade plans to be in Washington with his unit. This means he will have hundreds of firemen out to see the fight.

Both From Georgia.

Another feature is that both Godwin and Knight hail from the same State, Georgia, and that their homes are not so far from one another. In other words—two boys from the old home country trying to make goo on the same night and for the same cause.

District firemen and Sergt. A. J. Bargagni, parade marshal, were elated yesterday when they learned of the fight for the parade fund.

There will be a radio talk at 5:50 o'clock tonight by Private Harry Bell over Station WRC. He will talk about the big Labor Day celebration and announce some of the latest developments.

Gen. Malone Speaks Before K. of C. Picnic

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 14 (Spl.).—Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, commanding the Third Corps Area, U. S. Army, with headquarters in Baltimore, tonight addressed the Knights of Columbus picnic at Crystal Park. He discussed NRA activities, of which he is in charge in Maryland. Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, of the Fourth Maryland Circuit, also spoke.

The picnic, marked by a program of sports and entertainment, drew several thousand people. Gov. Albert C. Ritchie was forced by illness to cancel his plans to attend.

The plan calls for formation of a new bank, with trust powers, to be known as the Hagerstown Trust Co., and for liquidation of the old organization. Minimum capital would be $150,000, represented by 15,000 shares capital stock of $10 par each, to be sold at $12 to provide a surplus of $30,000. The greater part of the capital is said to have been subscribed.

AMERICA FEELS BETTER

SOMETHING wonderful has happened. We are coming out of the dark. We looked so long at the clouds, we forgot the blue sky beyond. Now we see it again. And it looks good . . . America feels better!

Smiles are back. Watch the crowds. They're looking up; dressing up. Faces are brighter; heads higher . . . America looks better!

There's bright new paint and the sound of hammers. Cash-registers are playing an old sweet song, "Happy Days Are Here Again." Somebody's doing better. Payrolls are growing bigger. We're going somewhere—and getting there . . . America is doing better!

Something more than Beer is back . . . It's time to be friendly and gracious, to enjoy life openly, freely, with Budweiser, King of Bottled Beer. For it is to the happy, human side of things that Budweiser makes its perfect contribution. It's a great drink for these great days of a great people.

Studying State Expenses.

Gov. Ritchie, of Maryland, is making a careful study of proposed expenditures by that State under the Federal public works program. Before indorsing any large program of expenditure he wants to know what the effect upon Maryland's credit will be.

Much of the responsibility for the projects that are to be constructed by the States will fall upon their own officials. The Public Works Administration is making an effort to approve only such public works as may be justified by community or State needs, by the financial condition of the political unit in question, and by the soundness of the project itself. But its judgment will undoubtedly be influenced by the reports of State agencies created for the special purpose of scrutinizing such projects. In the last analysis public works undertaken by the States with funds supplied by the Government become the responsibility of those States. They must provide maintenance costs, which in some cases will be very heavy.

There is a disposition in some States to sponsor projects of questionable value in an effort to create jobs in a hurry and to secure a generous allotment of the public works fund. Promoters of these projects sometimes take the attitude that this money to be advanced out of the Federal Treasury to the States is a virtual gift. It is needless to say that such an attitude has a bad influence upon the agencies which are seeking money. If the $3,300,000,000 fund is considered easy money, less care in the selection of projects and less economy in their construction can be expected.

There is no warrant for the assumption that these loans will be converted into gifts. If States make blunders in the expenditure of this money, their taxpayers may expect to suffer the consequences. In taking extra precautions to make certain that Maryland's share of this fund will be expended wisely and that this increased debt will not reflect upon the State's credit, Gov. Ritchie sets an admirable example for other State executives.

Fact vs. Law.

If a man charged with driving while drunk proves that he drank only beer, which is held by law to be nonintoxicating, can he be convicted?

This question arose in a western court. Defendant's counsel insisted that since beer is a nonintoxicating beverage, so defined by Congress, whatever eccentricities his client may have indulged in while driving could not be described as intoxication. The presiding judge met this anomalous situation, according to the Los Angeles Times, by giving this instruction to the jury in one sentence of 132 words:

> This court holds that intoxication is a question of fact, not of law, and while the fact, if it be a fact, that the person charged with driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, drank only the so-called legally nonintoxicating beer, may well be considered by the jury in determining whether or not it is a fact that defendant was intoxicated, nevertheless the jurors have the right to pass on that question of fact, and if they find it to be true that the defendant was in fact intoxicated and drove an automobile on a public street while intoxicated, then the defendant may legally be found guilty of driving an automobile while under the influence of intoxicating liquor, even although such defendant drank only the so-called legally nonintoxicating beer.

In short, the jury is to deal with fact, and not with law. Congress was not on trial. Neither was legalized beer. If the man was drunk he was drunk, whether he drank beer, water or perfume. Whatever it was, it was intoxicating liquor, Congress and the law to the contrary notwithstanding. In instructing the jury to regard fact and leave law to others this judge was on solid ground. History does not record whether the jury found the defendant guilty or not, but if he was drunk he could not have been sober.

Toil for Gangsters.

A great variety of suggestions as to how law enforcement can be made more effective are being presented to the Senate subcommittee investigating rackets. Quite a number of suggestions revert to harsh methods used in handling criminals in past years, but now discarded. These no doubt represent the public resentment against crime which is sweeping over the country.

Edward P. Mulrooney, chairman of New York's Alcohol Beverage Control Board, recommended public whippings for gangsters and exile to a penal colony similar to "Devil's Island." The idea of exiling prisoners was repeated by Police Commissioner James S. Bolan, of New York. Warden Lewis E. Lawes, of Sing Sing, advocated a modified form of martial law. Grover A. Whalen, former police commissioner of New York, and several others suggested a constitutional amendment extending the jurisdiction of the Federal Government over certain crimes.

Other recommendations of a more moderate nature were made, but the general trend of the suggestions seems to be toward extreme penalties. A reaction against the recent tendency to deal with criminals as unfortunate victims of social maladjustments may be noted. Organized crime has grown to a point where, officials believe, drastic measures are necessary to curb it. Today emphasis is placed upon protection of the public more than upon reformation of the offenders.

Some of the suggestions which were presented to the Senate committee are obviously aimed at removal of the glamour from crime. There is a tendency in some circles to exploit powerful gang leaders as heroes. Such an attitude becomes a powerful deterrent to public cooperation in enforcement of the law. Officers who favor revival of the whipping post and exile for malefactors doubtless aim at humiliation of these criminals in order to destroy the false glamour of gangdom.

Cruel punishment, however, tends to arouse sympathy for the victim. There are other ways of humbling malefactors, one of which is toil. It is very unfortunate that so many convicts are maintained in idleness. One of the prime needs of the American prison system is facilities for putting criminals to work. If gangsters realized that toil on a rock pile would be their certain ultimate fate, organized crime might experience a sudden depression.

There is an appropriate element of justice in toil for malefactors. Many professional racketeers indulge in crime because they are not willing to work for a living. It is quite fitting that they should learn the meaning of work behind prison bars or under armed guards, aside from the fact that work may remove the burden of their maintenance upon taxpayers. The Senate committee might well inquire into ways and means of putting the parasites of gangdom to work at menial tasks as partial antonement for their offenses against society.

Another Wheat Confab.

Another session of delegates representing wheat-exporting countries is to be held in London on Aug. 21, to which delegates from practically all nations in Europe will be invited. The purpose of the conference is to reach an agreement which will adjust wheat production to consumption, and to facilitate exports from nations which have too much to nations which have too little.

Secretary Wallace is quoted as saying that the United States is prepared to accept any reasonable plan for European co-operation involving reduction of wheat production which is satisfactory to Canada, Australia and Argentina. He added that unless an agreement were reached this country was prepared to adopt a program of "subsidized exporting" in order to dispose of its surplus wheat. Secretary Wallace is said to hold that an assurance from this country that it would not export more than its normal surplus would leave no ground for reprisals on account of alleged dumping.

The difficulties involved in any plans for restriction of production are almost as numerous as the countries affected. Some of the small countries of Europe rely upon their wheat exports for revenue, while others which import wheat are fearful that a restriction program would raise the price of bread to their consumers.

Soviet Russia is one of the countries asked to participate in the conference. Its wheat-producing capacity is potentially very great, but sometimes it actually lacks sufficient wheat to feed its people. It was charged with dumping wheat only two or three years ago. Subsequently it was reported that negotiations were on foot to purchase wheat on credit. Doubtless wheat-exporting countries would be on guard against the possibility of Soviet Russia importing huge quantities of wheat and then dumping it upon other countries, as was done in the case of cotton purchased in the United States.

It seems to be very doubtful that foreign countries would accept without complaint a plan for "subsidized exportation" of American wheat. The means of defense are so easy, and the demands of their wheat producers would be so insistent, that their markets probably would be closed to wheat offered at a lower price as the result of a subsidy. Countervailing duties equal to the subsidy undoubtedly would be demanded for the protection of their wheat industry. The United States in that event would be hard pressed to find a foreign market, even for subsidized low-priced wheat.

Regulation of Buses.

Preparation of a code to cover the operation of intercity buses discloses the fact that there are 32,000 of these common carriers in service in the United States, and that last year they carried 422,000,000 passengers, collecting in revenue nearly $250,000,000. When the buses engaged in city, school and sightseeing service are counted the total rises to more than 100,000. The somewhat surprising situation is found that, while local, city and State services of public vehicles are, as a rule, quite strictly regulated, interstate transport lines on the highways have been comparatively free from regulation.

Long distance buses have only become real competitors of rail transportation within the last ten years, but the business has now reached such proportions that the necessity for closer supervision is generally recognized and is not opposed by the operators themselves. In preparing their code the National Association of Motor Bus Operators recommend the licensing of bus lines, compulsory insurance to cover passengers, and the establishment of uniform rate schedules between the principal cities. Officials of the association say that the code agreement endeavors to bring about a stabilization of operation which has been impossible without regulation of interstate buses.

While the District of Columbia and all but one State regulate the local operation of buses, cross country traffic is subject only to the usual police regulations of the various States. Few States require such carriers to provide bonds or insurance for the protection of passengers, and are equally lax in the matter of tariffs, rebates, schedules, or the settling of claims between lines. The proposed code aims to bring these buses under the same character of regulations as now govern those in intrastate business, and operators feel that they as well as passengers will be benefited under the new system.

Dole Psychology.

There was a time when doles and gratuities were looked upon with great disfavor in the United States. The average man took great pride in standing on his own feet, even though he might be a bit wobbly. Whoever could take care of himself made a practice of doing so. Ambitious students who had no funds to pay their way to college were anxious to work their way through. Families who found their income shrinking cut down their expenses and endeavored to make the most of it until they could effect an economic comeback. Cities unable to finance all the extravagant projects fostered by political groups clamped down the economy lid on their treasuries.

A very different tendency seems to be abroad in the land today. Breadwinners are quicker to fall back upon relief agencies. Municipalities do not hesitate to go to State capitals to beg for funds. Both city and State governments are appealing to Uncle Sam to supply cash for expenses that should be met from their own revenue. We may admit that this is a complicated age, and that it is more difficult to be self-reliant than it once was. Nevertheless, the waning of this great American virtue cannot be lightly passed over.

Whenever one group establishes a right to dip into the public purse, even though such expenditures may be necessary to prevent hardship and suffering, other groups are attracted to the same idea. Some educators are now toying with the thought of a dole for students. The National Conference on the Financing of Education has resolved that "a democratic society is under obligation not only to provide adequate education for youth at public expense, but livelihood if necessary up to the age when society is prepared to offer employment." It appears, however, that no one has figured out the cost of paying students a dole until they are offered "proper employment." There is not much likelihood that such a plan will be translated into action. Nevertheless, it illustrates the present tendency to look more and more to the Government for the solution of every problem.

In cases of emergency it is sometimes necessary to draw upon the public purse to avoid widespread suffering. But the ultimate result of such a venture should not be overlooked. When public benefits begin to flow in through the door individual initiative too often flies out of the window. The dole habit is both expensive and demoralizing.

Some financial genius should invent a parachute for margin accounts that are suddenly dumped overboard.

When Times Were Hard.

From the Bandera (Tex.) New Era.

George McKee, Anderson, S. C., says times are not hard. Here's the way George puts it:

"Don't talk to me about hard times. I was born 8 miles from a railroad, 5 miles from a schoolhouse, 9 miles from a church, 885 miles from New York, 200 yards from a wash hole, 15 feet from a cornfield and 8,767 miles from Hongkong.

"Our nearest neighbors lived two miles away and they couldn't read or write. I never saw a suit of underwear until I was 17 years old, and that revelation didn't belong to anybody in our family. The only book in the house during my early childhood was a Bible and a catalogue somebody sent us.

"There were twelve members in our family, but, you see, we had three rooms to live in, including a dining room, which was also the kitchen. Everybody worked at our house. We thought everybody else in the world had gravy and bread for breakfast, liver and cracklin' hoecake for dinner, buttermilk and corn pone for supper, 'cause that's what we had—and liked it.

"Some of us wore brogan shoes occasionally in the wintertime. We had nice white shirts for summer time use. We slept on straw ticks, and pillows were not thought of or required. I didn't know that money would rattle until I was nearly grown. Father got hold of two half-dollars at the same time, and let us hear them rattle. Taxes were not higher, but harder to pay then than now.

"We owned two kerosene lamps, neither of which had a chimney. Our house wasn't ceiled, but two of our rooms had lofts in them. We had a glass window in our 'company' room. Our nicest piece of furniture was a homemade rocking chair. Our beds were of the slat or tight-rope variety. The 'trundle bed' took care of all the yunguns under 5 years of age, and it stayed full all the time.

"We went to school two or three months in the year, but not in a bus. We attended church once a month, but not in a car; we used a two-mule wagon. We dressed up on Sundays, but not in silks or satins. We neither wrote letters nor received any. We made our own lye hominy, distilled our own lye from our own ash-hopper. We drank sassafras tea and never had a yearning for coffee.

"We sopped our own molasses; we ate our own meat; we considered rice a delicacy for only the preachers to eat; we had heard of cheese, but never saw any; we knew of some store-bought clothes, but never hoped to wear any; we got a stick of candy and three raisins for Christmas and were happy; we loved ma and pa and were never hungry, enjoyed going naked, didn't want much, expected nothing. And that's why our so-called hard times ain't hard on me."

"Well, I see they got President Avacado out as the head man in Cuba."

"Yeah. I knew he'd have to quit eventually. The horse racing he gave the people was terrible."

"He did a lot of things that made the Cubans pretty sore, didn't he?"

"Sure. But what really finished him was those orders expelling the Jews from the colleges and forbidding the people to name their babies after him."

"I see by the papers he fled by airplane and landed safely in Italy with his whole armada."

"It means a new deal for Cuba. The acting President is a good man."

"Carlos Weetamoe, you mean?"

"Yeah. But I think that in the next election they will put in some strong leader like Eamon Matanzas."

"The American Ambassador, H. G. Wells, did a good job there."

"He certainly did. It was his handling of the crisis that made President Avacado give up his Blue Eagle."

"I see where this fellow Balto got back to Rome with that big fleet of airplanes."

"It was the finest thing he did since he carried the serum to Nome."

"It was a glorious flight, all right."

"Yout bet. Why, when he fell into that swamp at Bridgeport I thought he was done for."

"Is it true that Mahatma De Valera has gone on another hunger strike?"

"No; he thinks he can win the Philippines their independence without it."

"Say, what ever became of the Chinese-Japanese war?"

"They're still holding it, but England has notified China that she must stop sending bombing planes over Austrian territory and dropping photographs of Gen. Mah Hitler."

"What do you think of all this code business?"

"I think it's going fine. I see where the President has refused to exempt married business men from the draft on the ground they've got dependents or bad feet."

"Well, he ought to. In a war like this nobody should be let out just because he ain't single."

"This man who is directing NIRA is doing a swell job, ain't he?"

"Walter Johnson, you mean?"

"Yeah."

Thirty-five million women are to be organized in a doorbell-ringing drive to get the women of America to pledge purchases under the Blue Eagle only. The interference with the washing, ironing and baking is expected to be terrific.

The slogan chosen for this drive is "Every woman a consumer signer." It is a pretty terrible slogan, and will never go over.

There is no kick to it. This department suggests its immediate scrapping and offers the following (choice of any one with cereal and coffee):

CAPABLE CATERPILLARS.

Not long ago a man in Munich taught caterpillars to spin lace veils, says Collier's. He spread a food paste over a flat stone and then drew a delicate design upon it in an oil they would not touch. As the caterpillars ate the paste, they wove the pattern with the silk which they spin through the lower lip.

The Free Man Isn't Free to Loaf When the Levees Are Threatened

By Robert Quillen.

SINCE the beginning of its history, this civilization has suffered from an excess of liberty.

Years before the Revolution, Americans conceived the idea that men possessed the right to ignore laws they did not approve. When the king's edicts displeased them, they simply refused to obey—thus affording the world its first example of passive resistance.

The idea that a free man is privileged to oppose his government when he thinks it wrong has made treason respectable.

In every American war, with the possible exception of that with Spain, minorities that opposed and resented the conflict have done their utmost to hinder and embarrass the Nation's defenders.

In theory, that attitude is defensible. When freedom is qualified at all, it ceases to be freedom. If a free man disapproves some course adopted by his neighbors, he has the theoretical right to oppose it and thus insure its failure.

But rights end where they infringe on other rights.

Suppose ten men pool their funds and form a partnership to speculate in the stock market. Each morning they meet to decide whether they shall buy or sell. Each partner has the right to urge either course. But if the majority decides to sell, has any member of the firm a right to buy and thus work against the interest of his partners?

To say that a minority has the right to interfere with the successful prosecution of a war is to say that one man has a right to hinder others who are fighting for their lives.

Citizenship is a partnership. And to be a citizen of a free land is to accept the principle of majority rule.

Every citizen is free to advocate the course he prefers, but his freedom ends when a course is chosen. Thereafter he must cooperate. If he doesn't, he violates the very principle on which the partnership is based. He becomes an enemy.

Today men are wondering whether it is right to boycott those who will not cooperate with the recovery act.

Much depends on circumstances. Some men cannot do as they are asked without bankrupting themselves. And no man is qualified to judge another, for none knows his neighbor's business.

But this much is certain. When the Nation is fighting for its life, no citizen has the right to hinder it. When the water is needed to fight the fire, none has the right to water his lawn.

A free land can't live if it can't control those who would secede.

Motor Moratorium Ends.
Houston Post.

Making the car do for a while longer seemed to be a favorite pastime of American motorists during 1930, 1931 and 1932. Millions of them were waiting for the depression to pass before they would buy the new automobile they knew they really needed. Those years witnessed the accumulation of a great multitude of old cars.

The present summer sees the waiting attitude of motorists passing. The time has come when replacement is absolutely necessary in the case of millions of cars. And whether the motorists have become accustomed to the depression and have decided to go ahead and replace their old machines with new ones or whether they think the depression is passing and they can again risk buying on credit, as most motorists do, they are now buying new cars at a rate faster than at any time since 1929.

Gypsy Hoarders.
Cleveland Press.

The Government began its arresting of gold hoarders at a peculiar point.

On July 14 the Department of Justice announced that 974 of the 4,400 persons it had interviewed had refused to give up their gold. Those 974 persons, it was estimated, held about $8,500,000 worth of the gold money.

One would have expected the first arrest to be made inside that list.

Instead the Government operatives swooped down on a tribe of gypsies in Virginia and took to jail some gypsy women who were carrying gold coins worth a total of $2,000 on their persons.

Without going into the question of the Government's policy on gold hoarding, it certainly seems that the first action might more sensibly have been taken against well-warned and obstreperous offenders than against a group of nomads who don't know what it's all about and have a weakness for wearing necklaces made of gold pieces.

The Government Enlists.
Kansas City Times.

It is entirely consistent and automatically follows that the Government, in its own public works operations, should proceed in accordance with the recovery act. With respect to wages and hours of labor, that is specifically required in the public works section of the act itself. The President's executive order, then, placing all Government contracts under wage and working hour terms of the act is readily understood. But this order goes further and is interpreted to mean definitely that the Government supplies for public works, and for all other purposes as well, shall be purchased from firms that have come under the recovery act and are displaying its emblem.

Nellie.

After seven and twenty years,
Nellie lovely still appears,
And I sometimes sit and wonder,
As her smiling eyes I see,
How she's managed to contrive
Such vexations to survive
As were bound to be her portion
Living all that time with me.

Such a restless thing am I
That a patient saint I'd try.
Half forgetful, half impulsive,
I've rushed headlong on my way,
That I marvel that her face
Shows of fretfulness no trace,
And she welcomes me with smiling
At the ending of the day.

Oh, we've had our ups and downs
And our hours of sighs and frowns,
And we've had our share of sorrow,
When the pair of us have wept,
But the strength of her has stayed
My frail nature, when afraid
I looked out upon the future
And the seas were tempest-swept.

Now I look at her, and she
Is as lovely as can be,
And I glory in her beauty
As I did long years ago;
And I'm grateful and I'm glad
That so fair a wife I've had,
Who could live the years so bravely,
But I marvel that it's so!

Along the Potomac

With

Carlisle Bargeron

IT is my opinion that Charlie Curtis doesn't think highly of the intelligence of the people who voted him out of office last November. Certainly he considers it poor appreciation of the 30 years' service which he gave. And on this philosophy he apparently intends to act in the future.

Bargeron.

It is a complete turn about for him. No one had a higher regard for the people than Charlie for the 30 years that he was in office. I think one of his favorite expressions used to be that the people are always right.

But if you think Charlie is to continue wedded to a people that are not wedded to him then you ignore his practical qualities.

I am moved to this expression by Charlie's recent excursion into Mexico as the representative of Dr Brinkley, the Kansas goat specialist who is operating an outlaw radio station from the other side of the border.

One can easily understand Charlie's solicitation for the doctor a few years back. The doctor, operating a station in Kansas, was raising cain in Kansas politics. On one occasion he ran for governor as an independent, and although the voters had to write his name on the ballot he came very near to being elected. Thereafter, for a time, he was a political threat.

The Republicans were even afraid of him long after he had lost his influence and had been made by the Federal Radio Commission to close up his radio station.

* * * *

SO afraid of him were they, in fact, that pressure was brought to bear upon the State Department to make no protest when he moved his station to Mexico. It was an unnecessary solicitude on the Republicans' part, as the doctor was then politically dead, but a solicitude nevertheless.

Now our Government, considering the doctor's station, along with other outlaw stations operating across the border, a menace, has been trying to get the Mexican government to close them up.

Only recently there was a radio conference in Mexico City for this purpose. We sent delegates down there, and they hoped they would be able to accomplish their purpose.

* * * *

But what did the good doctor do but employ Charlie, the former Vice President of the United States to represent him. It wasn't, of course, because of any peculiar knowledge of Charlie's on radio law; indeed, it was not because Charlie's knowledge of law of any kind. It was, most certainly, because Charlie had been Vice President.

When Charlie showed up at the conference he subordinated it entirely. One read in the newspapers of a statement that Charlie issued, not a statement having anything to do with the conference or with radio, but on conditions in the United States. Charlie said, as I recall it, that the United States was on the up and up. The point is that Mexico City received Charlie, not as a radio attorney, not as an attorney for Dr. Brinkley, the goat specialist, but as an authority on the United States being on the up and up.

* * * *

FOLLOWING this initial statement of Charlie's there appeared newspaper accounts of his being received by the president, of his being dined and feted by Mexican officialdom. None of the other attorneys were so treated, neither were the official representatives of this Government.

* * * *

I do not know, but the impression is that these boys had to eat at the restaurants and out of the $6 per diem which the Government allows at that.

This is, of course, as Dr. Brinkley intended it should be, and as Charlie intended it should be.

Incidentally, our representatives came back with no agreement or accomplishment of any kind. What it takes to fix the people who didn't appreciate him, Charlie has.

Letters to the Editor.

Death for Kidnapers Prescribed in Mosaic Law.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: With interest I read the article which appeared on the editorial page of August 12, stating that "death for kidnaping" is not a new penalty and quoting the law promulgated by the Duke of York, March 1, 1665. The quotation as given reads very similar to the Scriptures.

The penalty, according to the Bible, dates back to the fifth dispensation and began with the Exodus, 1706 B. C.

Exodus, chapter xxi, verse 16, reads: "And he that stealeth a man and selleth him, or if he shall be found on his hand, he shall surely be put to death."

Deuteronomy, chapter xxiv, verse 7, still under the codification of law, reads: "If a man be found stealing any of his brethren of the children of Israel, and maketh merchandise of him or selleth him, then that thief shall die; and thou shalt put evil away from among you."

Death has been the penalty for kidnaping, according to history, for 1,400 years before the Christian era.

Turtle Nabbed for Blocking Traffic Doesn't Give a Snap

"Oscar" Was Just Hiding in Shell From Dog at Busy Corner.

"Oscar" is one District of Columbia turtle that has taken a ride in a police car for obstructing traffic.

"Oscar" made his debut in police circles at Rock Creek Church road and New Hampshire and Georgia avenues northwest. Beset by a dog in the middle of the crossing, he retired into his shell just as a squad car from the Tenth Precinct Station arrived.

"That," said Private R. V. Murray to his partner, Private R. F. Goodwin, "will never do. That turtle is parked in an intersection and is liable to get hit by a car. Let's arrest it."

"Okay," said Private Goodwin. "We'll book him for obstructing traffic. Put him down as 'Oscar.' I had a landlord once by that name who looked just like him."

"Oscar" never reached the precinct jail, however. Giving him a warning about crossing intersections, the police released him in nearby Soldier's Home field, safe from automobiles.

Convention at Frederick Will End Tonight With Parade.

Frederick, Md., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—New officers were elected for the ensuing year, committees appointed and reports adopted at the business session today of the second day of the annual tristate convention of Elks. The association embraces Maryland, Virginia and the District of Columbia. Delegations arrived today from West Virginia and Pennsylvania.

A resolution was adopted pledging whole-hearted support of the President's NRA plan. A resolution was also adopted placing the Order of Elks on record as opposed to the eighteenth amendment and urging every Marylander to vote for repeal September 12, when the question is to be submitted to the voters of this State.

A committee composed of Maxwell Suls, Baltimore, chairman; Adolph Braun, Annapolis; J. Morris Guider, Hagerstown; Louis N. Frank, Baltimore; Lawrence Ensor, Towson; Benjamin Rosennour and Alfred W. Chicken Yarn

Jailed for Roost Robbing, Prisoner Snares Fowl From His Cell.

Tappahannock, Va., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—This quiet river village can now offer the prize chicken story of the decade.

A Negro was convicted in the Justice Court of Essex County for chicken stealing. After he was committed to jail, it was discovered that some chickens running at large in the courthouse yard contrary to a town ordinance, were missing.

A check-up revealed that the Negro prisoner had ensnared these chickens through the bars, by means of a pin hook and line. He used bread crumbs for bait, caught and ate the fowl during his enforced idleness and stuffed the feathers in a sewer pipe.

New Booklet Tells Driver What to Do

Changes Govern Right-of-Way Defined; Police Distribute Rules.

William A. Van Duzer, director of vehicles and traffic, announced yesterday there are 25,000 reasons why every District motorist can and should familiarize himself with traffic regulations. In explanation, he pointed to the 40-page rules booklet just off the Government presses.

Everything from scooters hanging on to vehicles to overtaking a street car is covered in the brochure, which is being distributed at police stations and the Traffic Department. Twenty-five thousand were printed.

Among the principal changes in regulations are those that give to a vehicle which has entered an intersection right of way over one which is approaching; right of way to the car which is proceeding into or across a street after heeding the "stop" sign, and forbidding commercial vehicles to park double or at an angle on arterial highways or boulevards between 8 a. m. and 9 a. m.

Modernistic Page Apartment Blends Vivid Color Scheme With Restfulness and Charm

Shoreham Suite Features Chromium Furniture and Vari-Colored Walls.

Costs Low on Architectural Type, Owner Declares; Few Built-ins.

Homes are so much more than just houses. They reflect the originality, the tastes, the ingenuity of their owners. The following article is the third of a series which will describe especially individual Washington homes. The sequence will include large houses, small houses, country houses, town houses, even some interesting apartments, but all homes of distinction. The Washington Post presents this series with the belief that it will be of especial interest to home makers.

By Mary Law Harris.

Though audiences gaze admiringly at the ultra-modern interiors that form many movie backgrounds, the average person hesitates to adopt such a scheme in his own home.

Rather, he is shy of names. The words "modernistic" and "futuristic" have been attached to so many nightmares in art and interior decoration that the mention of a modern interior conjures up a fata morgana of cubistic figures and warring colors.

"I'd be fit to be tied if I had to live in a modernistic room," one often hears.

This is a mistaken idea. Your good modern interior is both restful and stimulating. It has coolness, clean color and clear line. It is not cluttered. It is very comfortable.

The apartment of Commissioner Thomas Walker Page, of the Tariff Commission, and Mrs. Page, at the Shoreham, is one of Washington's best examples of livability and charm in the modern theme.

Mrs. Page leased her apartment while the Shoreham was under construction, so she was able to have a clear field for her home creation.

Had Clear Field.

The living room "in the raw" with plain white plaster walls, was ready for that bold treatment of color and plane that makes or breaks a modernist apartment.

In showing the apartment, Mrs. Page said, hesitantly.

"If you mention the colors, I'm afraid people will think they're impossible."

And truly it is hard to convey the serenity and clarity that have been achieved by coloring one sector of wall a velvety black, another canary yellow, another in peacock green, bookshelves cover another wall, still another is covered with mirror panel and another is made pure white.

Add to this the cool glitter of cromium furniture, some combined with vermilion and some with black fabrics, a wide studio couch covered with a rough putty-colored fabric and with putty and vermilion colored pillows. Also a broadloom carpet in putty tint.

The answer to the successful combining of such striking colors lies in that you don't realize they're all there until you begin to look carefully. Thus, the interviewer said, "The yellow wall? Why, I don't see the yellow wall," and then suddenly realized that she'd been looking straight at it.

Atmosphere Created.

"Now you've said something I really like to hear," said Mrs. Page. "Modernist combinations of color aren't any good at all if they hit you right in the eye. There should be plenty of clean, primary color, but the whole effect should be of proportion and atmosphere rather than just raw color."

Venetian blinds are used at windows and French doors overlooking Rock Creek Park. At either end of this windowed wall are putty-colored curtains of roughish fabric. These hang from an invisible runway in the ceiling and may be drawn over the entire wall, forming a putty-colored wall.

The lighting treatment is a revelation in appearance and practicality. The ground glass, cylindrical wall lights, are partially embedded in the plaster. There is a chromium torchiere reflecting a flood light from the white plaster wall. Also ingratiating is a German lamp of chromium and black enamel. This last is a very acrobatic lamp and can be adjusted in all manner of ways.

Mrs. Page has not used much built-in furniture, but she has not ignored this modern trend. The wall of book shelves is built over a series of cabinets with ground glass doors edged with chromium. There are two white-painted chests set side by side to achieve a long line. Instead of forming one unit, these chests could be used in a balancing furniture group.

There is a set of nested tables, each with a different colored top. There is a square table, the exact duplicate of the breakfast-room table. When these two are placed together they form a dining table large enough for six people. Neat idea? The extreme modern lines of the Austrian chairs are only equaled by their comfort. Their seats are slanted like those of the popular Gibson Island chairs. When you sit in one of them, it simply "takes" you.

Restraint and Vigor Blend.

Both restraint and vigor are seen in decorative touches. Standing on a table is a picture by Juan Toma- vermilion and henna colorings are accented by a wide frame of cobalt delli, artist-inventor-impresario. Its blue edged with silver. Little pewter ash trays have hinged lids to keep ashes from blowing about. The white mantel stands out against a solid background of black and on it is a single white vase holding some exotically shaped gladioli.

There are a few plants, all of the cacti family. And a big rubber plant! The rubber plant, with its wide, fleshy leaves, is just right in a modernistic setting.

The attractive breakfast room merits study. Here is a soft gray background, Delft blue painted chairs and a chromium table. The built-in closets have glass doors and are painted cobalt blue inside. A Japanese chest of drawers is lacquered a deep red and holds a vase of giant cat-tails.

One hall in the apartment fairly makes the eyes pop with its gayety. It is finished in Spanish colors of vermilion and yellow. Its freshness and sunniness would make anyone fall in love with these sharp primary colors.

Correct Color Is Problem.

Getting just the right colors, Mrs. Page says, was a chief problem in arranging her apartment.

"It seems to be more difficult to get clear, bright primary colors," she said, "than to get all sorts of pastel variations. I finally had to stand right by the painter and watch him do his mixing and stop him when he arrived at just the color I wanted."

The notion that modernist homes are very expensive to create was deprecated by Mrs. Page.

"I wouldn't say that this apartment was at all expensive to fit up," she said. "The materials, including carpets and hangings, did not amount to any more than one would expect in furnishing just the usual sort of apartment. Costs hardly entered into the problem. The question was one of the best ways to work out what you might call a design for living."

Bishop Ingram Ill in London; Visited Here

News of the rather serious illness in London of the Right Rev. and Right Honorable Arthur Ingram, lord bishop of that metropolis, recalls the fact that Bishop Ingram paid his second visit to Washington several years ago.

His second Washington tour was part of a world tour in which Bishop Ingram covered some 28,000 miles, more or less.

On his return to London a friend told him that he looked very tired.

"Yes, I am a trifle tired," admitted the bishop. "I have been very busy."

"Take my advice," said the kind-hearted woman, "and go for a short tour abroad. It will do you a world of good!"

"Rats," Said Silent Calvin; Dates Gone

The late Calvin Coolidge could boast that he never wasted a word in his life. He could pack an ordinary paragraph into a single word, at times. Those nearest to him claim that he possessed a real sense of humor, of the dry New England type.

A friend sent some stuffed dates to the Coolidges one day while he was Vice President. Mrs. Coolidge has made what happened then one of her favorite after dinner stories.

Calvin Coolidge, jr., thought that the dates were somewhat wasted on his taciturn and rather-inclined-to-a-plain-diet father.

So one by one the dates disappeared. Mrs. Coolidge noted the shrinking of the box's contents but said nothing.

In marched the Vice President one day. "Guess I'll eat a date," he announced.

Up spoke Calvin jr. "Why, Dad, I ate them. I thought they would give you indigestion."

"Rats," said Calvin senior.

Culbertson on Bridge

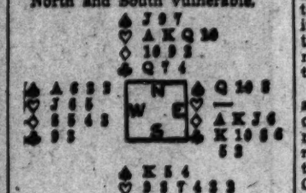
Difficult Play.

MOST Bridge players assume that if they hold a King without other supporting honors in either hand, practically the only chance to make a trick with it is to make a lead toward it and trust that the Ace will be found on the "right" side. There are situations, however, in which the bidding and play clearly indicate that this fortunate location of the Ace does not exist, and then the chance of making the needed trick with the King depends upon an entirely different line of play. Such a situation arose in the final rounds of the Southern New England Team-of-Four Championship, held recently at New London, Conn., and was the determining factor in the winning of a match for a player who found the correct solution. The hand:

East, Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



The bidding: (Figures after bids refer to numbered explanatory paragraphs.)

East	South	West	North
Pass (1)	Pass	Pass (2)	1♡ (3)
Dbl. (4)	Redbl. (5)	Pass (6)	Pass
2♠	3♡ (7)	Pass	Pass

Pass

1—A poor pass. This hand should be bid, but the East player had adopted the theory that either his partner or opponents would protect his Opening pass.

2—Obviously West is too weak to take any action.

3—The only justification for North's Fourth Hand bid is the possession of honors and the strong feeling that if he passes the hand out he will lose the match.

4—East now decides to enter the bidding.

5—With strong distributional values, South's Redouble is clearly the best call.

6—Perhaps West should bid diamonds, but he decides that inasmuch as East had started the trouble he will let him find his own solution.

7—Possibly too strong, as, with a Redouble, two hearts would be a very strong Raise.

The Opening lead was the diamond King, which was followed by the Ace and another diamond, as East felt sure that his partner did not have a five-card diamond suit or he would have shown it in response to the Takeout Double. This was trumped in the Dummy and two rounds of trumps were taken. Now the finesse in clubs was taken, and the Ace of clubs laid down. The Declarer returned to his own hand with a trump, picking up West's last trump, and then ruffed his last club in Dummy. It was obvious to him that in addition to the Ace-King-Knave of diamonds, which East had already shown, and the King of clubs, East could not hold also the spade Ace, so a lead to the King would serve no useful purpose. Instead, from the Dummy he now led the spade 4, and when West played low, put on the nine from his own hand. This trick East won with the Ten, but could not play the cards in such a way as to prevent the Declarer from winning two more tricks and thus fulfilling his contract—a result brought about by a careful plan, carefully carried out.

It will be noted that not only is the spade play, as outlined, essential, but the winning of the trump tricks and the ruffing of the club in Dummy must also be carefully timed.

Asa Candler's Widow Sues Heirs of Fortune

Decatur, Ga., Aug. 15 (AP).—Mrs. May Little Candler, widow of Asa G. Candler, sr., has brought suit against the heirs and executors of the late Coca-Cola millionaire for an additional $250,000 she alleges was bequeathed her in his will and for a one-fifth share of the residuary estate.

The suit was brought against Charles Howard Candler, William Candler, Asa G. Candler, jr., Walter T. Candler and Mrs. Lucy Candler Heinz, other heirs, and against the Citizens & Southern National Bank, executor of the estate.

St. Louis Starts Great Sleeping Sickness War

Six Have Died and 65 Are Suffering From Mystery Epidemic.

St. Louis, Aug. 15 (AP).—An offensive against the "sleeping sickness" epidemic here which has taken six lives and attacked sixty-five other persons, was begun tonight in the Washington University laboratories.

All data bearing on the disease, which has baffled Federal, State and city authorities, was brought to the laboratories from St. Louis and its suburbs to be studied by experts.

While little is known of the origin or transmission of the disease, health authorities said reports on the first twenty-five cases disclosed it attacked all ages. The evidence, they said, showed that neither milk nor drinking water is an agent of transmission.

These cases were all found near surface water, polluted streams or open sewers. Several physicians reported at a conference today that mosquitos were more numerous than in other years in St. Louis County.

Dr. J. P. Leake, senior surgeon of the United States Public Health Service, here to aid in the fight, said the first line of attack was isolation of patients.

Cafe Man Forced To Kiss Blue Eagle

St. Louisan Beaten After Failure to Sign NRA Agreement.

St. Louis, Aug. 15 (AP).—Max Komen, whose restaurant serves breakfast for a nickel and lunch or dinner for 15 or 20 cents and who has not signed an NRA agreement, has been beaten and forced to press his lips against the Blue Eagle emblem.

The attack occurred late yesterday. One man struck Komen repeatedly while a crowd of 50 persons looked on. After pressing the restaurant man's lips to the emblem the attacker fled. The reputed assailant later was arrested and charged with disturbing the peace.

Komen said he had agreed to increase his prices next month and attributed the beating to an attempt of competitors to force him to act now.

Clothes for the Children

(All rights protected by the George Matthew Adams Service—Trade Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Marie looks very French in her mint green frock of satin crepe de chine with applique design made of the dull side of the same fabric. Sister also has a border of appliqued ribbon in pink on a pink voile. She has tucked sleeves and a crossed fichu which ties in the back.

Brother is glad they are not sailing yet, as it gives him some time to train his dog. He wears a cool suit of white linen trimmed with red peasant embroidery and red matching buttons to fasten his shorts. He has new sandal shoes and very short socks.

Brother, in a brief sun suit of blue jersey top and blue and white striped shorts, is studying the flossy knitted suit a new friend is wearing. He is told that Bobby's mother knitted it from white cotton yarn. Brother is inclined to be scornful because it has ruffles.

Sister is all hot and bothered, and is making straight for the beach to get cool. She is wearing a red and white gingham bathing suit with an inset vest of wide red and white striped cotton. Red shoulder straps cross in the backless back and match her hair ribbon.

Dainty Dolls Stand Guard Over Boudoir

Rainbow Colored Napkins and Modern Mode Mirrors Shown.

By Ruth Anne Davis.

A local manufacturer saw no reason why doorstops shouldn't be as ornamental as they were serviceable. He saw no reason why milady's boudoir shouldn't boast one of the loveliest. He sketched, he erased, he studied the color charts. At length he completed his design.

The great wheels of the factory began to turn. The workers pinned, pasted and painted. They cut and clipped and finally completed some weighty little dolls all dressed up in oilcloth, carrying bouquets of colored flowers. They stand guard at milady's door, daring any draft to slam it, dainty little fragile looking figures. On sale in a towntown store, $1.

Rainbows have lent their colors to many things ranging from dresses to compacts. Now a department store is displaying packages of 125 paper napkins tinted in pastel colors and wrapped in celophane. Ask for the rainbow package. Price 25 cents. You'll find these dainty touches for bridge, picnics or informal suppers, to say nothing of midnight feasts.

The largest stores, the smallest shops are all displaying a varied assortment of house furnishings in the modernistic scheme of things. Drop into a Connecticut avenue gift shop, and there on the wall, in a position to tempt the customer, you'll see a mirror. Not just a mirror, but a particular mirror designed especially for a room in the modern trend. The square, shiny surface is ornamented with black stripes around the edges which lend an effect altogether as different as delightful.

Macaroons are slightly confused. "What have we done to deserve it?" they want to know. A few months ago they sold for 30 cents a dozen, and now they're 27 cents for two dozen. The proprietor of a Fourteenth street bakery says they've been raising a hue and cry, but this week at least he has them under control. Ask for coconut macaroons, in chocolate, orange and cherry flavors.

Have you spanked Junior lately? Well, of course, that's all right. But have you spanked him and then found out that your husband picked the icing off the cake, or spilled the preserves on the table cloth, or whatever it was? If so, you should make amends. Here's a 25-cent suggestion. A Twelfth street candy store offers a novel candy package. It's a little wire basket filled with milk bottles, each filled with assorted pure sugar candies. Wouldn't Junior like this? You bet he would!

No traveling equipment is complete without an individual case to carry your creams and astringents. Guard against having any of these spill all over your new outfits, down on to the lining of your bar gain bag by carrying them in one of the new tourist cases on sale at a large department store. They are made a handy size to fit your suitcase, or they're pretty enough with their gay pigskin or kid covering to carry in your hand. Price, 50 cents to $1.

When she first walked into the room she couldn't understand why it had such individuality. The bedroom suite was like many others she had seen, the chintz coverings lovely but not unusual. When she glanced at the windows she realized the why and wherefor. The hostess had appreciated what a view could do for a room, so instead of using heavy drapes, which would naturally cut off much of the outlook, she had chosen delicate orchid net curtains. They were carefully hemmed and gathered to give an effect of fluffy daintiness.

It had been no trouble and very little expense. A Connecticut avenue shop had taken the entire responsibility. They had offered a wide choice of colors and materials to select from and made the curtains right there according to directions.

Let us suppose that some one of us is building air castles about luncheon sets, and that these ethereal dreams materialize, what will they look like? A Washington store answers the question by displaying a luncheon service for six, which it calls the "castle set" after the pictures printed on them. They come in mulberry and pink, and include six luncheon plates, six bread and butters, six dessert saucers, six cups and saucers, a meat platter and a vegetable platter. Thirty-two pieces for $5.95.

The shopper ventured into a tile specialty shop and found an unusual and delightful display. The proprietor with eye already on the fall and the probable new homes and decorative schemes has built a model bathroom with Chinese red faience floors and black glazed walls. The effect is fairly breathtaking! Can't you imagine it complete with mirrors and white accoutrements? If you want a treat drop by and take a look.

Call Ruth Anne Davis, of the Woman's Department of The Washington Post, National 4205, Extension 66, for further information. Or write, inclosing a stamped, addressed envelope.

What's in Fashion?

1890 Weaves and Wools Inspire New Dress Silks

Directed by Amos Parrish.

Watch women (including yourself) while they select new silk dresses for fall wear and you'll see them buy with their fingers as well as with their eyes. Almost always they'll feel the dress as well as look at it.

Sometimes it's to see if the fabric is really silk. For so many of them look like wool. Sometimes it's just because the weave is so intriguing they can't keep their fingers off. (You know how that is!)

1890 Ribs.

Many of the "feelingist" silks are those ribbed or corded ones which remind you of the silks that went rustling to church when mother was a girl and her mother in her prime.

Bengaline, for instance . . . as great a favorite in the '90s as it is going to be this fall. Paradoxically it is used for two very different kinds of dresses . . . tailored daytime ones and stately evening gowns.

Less pronounced in its rib is a heavy crepe faille. Not stiff as oldtime faille was. The crepey weave softens it. It's a fine choice for early fall.

And there's also a still finer faille rib that makes up beautifully in any kind of dress.

Look Like Wool.

Then you'll come across dresses (or yard goods if you're in a dressmaking mood) that you feel because just looking leaves you thinking they're wool. (Even feeling doesn't always tell. Sometimes you have to pull out a few threads and examine them.)

One of these looks like wool poplin . . . firm and heavy yet light and cool for tailored dresses.

Another resembles a fine wool serge and still another a ribbed wool, and the woman who likes the look of wool but prefers the weight of silk will think these great finds.

Several of the new colors look as though they had been planned with these silks in mind . . . especially the 1890 ribbed silks. For many colors are 1890, too.

Send for Color Leaflet.

If you'd like to see these colors before you shop . . . and the other new ones as well . . . why not do what many other women have already done—send for our fall color sample chart. The coupon and enclosures will bring it to you.

Child Refuels Energy Supply During Sleep

Older Children Frequently Need Rest Budget to Supply Deficiency.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

The perpetual activity of little children is a constant source of surprise to adults. If a grown person tried to keep up with a small child for one day he would be completely exhausted before evening.

Of course, the child is tuned to his particular form of exercise and the adult is not, but making all due allowance for this, the child does use a tremendous amount of energy during all his waking hours.

While he is very little he restores it by sleep. A child may at any moment be found napping among his toys or may even put a sudden end to a wild romp by falling asleep.

Falls Asleep Quickly.

He is very much like an animal who seems to sleep when there is nothing to do, and so stores up energy for future activity.

But as the child grows older and becomes more and more aware of the world about him he receives constant stimulation of mind and nerves, which tends to keep him interested and at attention, to the exclusion of the desire or opportunity for rest.

There results an increased nerve strain from weariness, and this again interferes with sleep. So there may be set up a vicious circle which tends gradually to undermine the child's health and happiness.

Real Rest Needed.

The only antidote is an enforced period of relaxation every day for children up to high school age. It need not necessarily be a period of sleep, but it should be a time of solitude and silence, to rest the eye from moving objects, the ear from noises and the mind from suggestion.

The child may choose to read, to write or to play with his toys, but whatever his occupation he probably will prove easier to get along with, both for himself and others, for the temporary retirement and the break in his ordinary activities.

Commemorate 19th Amendment

The thirteenth anniversary of the ratification of the woman's suffrage amendment to the Constitution of the United States will be celebrated tomorrow night by the showing of historic lantern slides of the suffrage campaign in the gardens of the Alva Belmont House, 144 B street northeast, the headquarters of the National Woman's Party.

These slides are the only authentic ones showing the picketing of the White House and the other suffrage campaign activities of the party.

Miss Maud Younger, of California, the present Congressional chairman of the organization, who was also Congressional chairman when the suffrage amendment was ratified, will preside at the meeting and lecture on the slides.

Among those in charge will be Mrs. Edwin Lubin, chairman of the District of Columbia Woman's Party; former Assistant District Attorney Rebekah Greathouse, Mrs. Florence T. Heath, Mrs. Wyman Bradbury and Miss Mabel Van Dyke.

The present campaign for economic independence of women, now being waged by the Woman's Party, will be stressed at this meeting.

About Feeding the Dog.

Not only will you save yourself a lot of work, but you will get many a pleasant chuckle, if you follow one woman's idea and set out your doggie's daily platters on a two-by-two square or colored oil cloth, in an unbreakable dish colored to match, with his water in an unbreakable cup, also en suite. The aftermath mess is practically nonexistent, and the picture is intriguing.

Portrait

By Katherine W. Smith.

Once I saw your face in shadow
Like a portrait with veiled eyes.
Silence brushed her vague hushed hues
Upon your mouth, where stifled sighs
Have been too long forbidden.
Clouds
Of starlight dust were sifted where Silence laid her brush upon
The quiet beauty of your hair.
And then you spoke to me, your voice
Mingled with the shadowed hush
Of evening, and the artist smiled
And softly laid away her brush.

Hot Weather Relieves Oily Skin Trouble

Treatment to Correct Conditions Easier to Follow Then.

By Elsie Pierce.

All that we said about reducing being simple during the summer applies to the treatment of the oily skin as well.

To begin with, the light summer diet, with its abundance of fruits and vegetables is a splendid start in the oily skin treatment, just as it is in the reducing regime.

Then liquids—plenty of clear, cold drinking water is a fine tonic for the entire body. It flushes the kidneys, carries away waste. And water without; a grand freshener and perfect cleanser for the oily skin. Then there's exercise to tone the system, generally. And the sun's rays to dry up the excess surface oil.

Yes, summer is kind to the oily skinned individual. It's the drys that suffer and shrivel, become parched and wrinkled and old. But we'll turn to them tomorrow.

Soap and Water Needed.

For local treatment to counteract oiliness, there's the good old soap and water cleansing. Most women like to wash their faces with soap and water. Many tell us they don't feel truly clean and fresh otherwise. But quite a number find the treatment too drastic.

Here we are talking about the dry skins again. The woman with an oily skin can use soap and water to her heart's content, providing the soap is bland and the water soft. Work up a good lather, friction it over the face and neck, massaging upward and outward just as you would a cream. Then just as carefully rinse, rinse and rinse again, first in warm water, then cool—quite cool.

A complexion brush or softwash cloth may be used to good advantage.

The cleansing bath and stimulating shower followed by friction with turkish towel will keep the oil glands all ever the body functioning properly.

Skin Tonic Freshens.

During the day, a skin tonic can be used as a freshener. A liquid cleanser substitutes very nicely for soap and water.

For the excessively oily skin the beauty mart offers ever so many astringents. An ice rub following a cleansing and preceding make-up will freshen the oily skin up beautifully.

As for make-up, liquid rouge may be used to excellent advantage by the individual with an oily complexion. This type of rouge stays on longer than any other. It is often waterproof, too. A heavier type of powder may be used, and before it an adherent lotion to give the skin a smooth, flattering finish and leave a base that beckons to the powder to cling, closer and longer.

Want my general, well balanced diet? Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for it.

What Today Means

By Mary Blake.

"Lee"

If August 16 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11:45 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 5 to 5:50 p. m. and from 7 to 7:55 p. m. The danger periods are from 6:45 to 8:20 a. m. and from 8:55 to 10:20 p. m.

Employes will in all probability have a strong sense of loyalty to their employers on this day; they will be unusually industrious and will respond readily to pep talks and other forms of stimulation. Less than the normal degree of sales resistence should be apparent on this date, and the alert salesman will in all probability consummate some worthwhile deals.

The child born on this August 16 will in all probability be disinclined to listen to the advice and guidance of a curious nature, he will just have to find out things for himself and on more than one occasion he will get himself rather badly burned. Exceptionally good health.

If August 16 is the date of your birth, you are undoubtedly a very hopeful person; no matter how bad things may look for you, you manage to keep up your spirits. You are not one to become easily discouraged or to get down on your luck. Things seem to have a way of working out right for you, and this in spite of the fact that you usually follow the line of least resistance instead of trying to manipulate things yourself. You probably have great faith in the ever presence and guidance of a Supreme Being. As a matter of fact, you are a very religious person and more than likely are a regular attender at some church. Regardless of how fervent and sincere may be your belief, you do not attempt to convert others. You speak little about your own affairs, be they good or bad, and you have no curiosity about what others are thinking or doing.

Born on August 16, whatever your work may be, you will put your best efforts into it. You derive a great deal of pleasure from doing things well and as a result your work is such as to make you known among your business associates and friends as a most reliable, industrious and thorough person. Many people seek your friendship, but you give of yourself to only a few. You are inclined to be somewhat aloof in the presence of strangers, this being due to a shyness which is a most attractive part of your makeup.

Successful people born on August 16:

John Peirce, scientist.
George Jones, journalist.
Miss Sarah Porter, educator.
Daniel Manning, politician.
Mathew Carey Lea, chemist.

Veal, Lamb and Pork Prices Increase Sharply During Past Week; Beef and Poultry Unchanged; Several Substitutes May Be Found for Meat.

By Hoyt Barnett.

The sharp advance in the price of veal, pork and lamb during the last week leaves beef and poultry virtually the only meats selling at economical levels.

Veal cutlets, for example, advanced from 31 cents a pound to 41 cents in less than a week. Veal chops were 2 cents higher on Tuesday than Monday, and select pork chops, rib chops of lamb, leg of lamb and lamb shoulder also advanced.

Retail shops say the NRA is responsible for the rise. Another factor is the low prices of last year which dissuaded producers of such meats from raising live stock at what apparently would be a loss.

But whatever the reason, the fact remains that these meats are costing the housewives more today than a week ago. And the end is not in sight.

Beef Remains Inexpensive.

Beef cuts, still remaining at relatively low levels, may be served in many ways. Brisket, for example, is an inexpensive cut and when prepared with care is excellent.

Another thing to be remembered is that leftover portions of meat may be utilized.

Here is a simple recipe which provides a substantial and practical addition to the menu.

Grind about two pounds of almost any kind of meat. You may include leftover meats if you wish. To the ground meat add two eggs, parsley, one large chopped onion, one green pepper, chopped fine; a 5-cent box of crumbled crackers, salt and pepper to taste and mold into a loaf.

When this meat loaf is placed in the oven, pour a can of tomatoes over it. Then bake until brown. The loaf may be served hot or cold. Still another way to serve is to slice and fry the slices.

May Substitute Vegetables.

Another solution, or at least partial solution, to the problem of higher meat prices lies in the abundance of really good vegetables which may be served as meat substitutes.

Although it would be difficult to entirely eliminate meat from the diet, it is possible to utilize vegetables to a much greater extent than most persons realize.

Such vegetables as eggplant, lima beans, string beans, heavy-type salads, yellow squash, carrots and sweet potatoes contain many nutritive elements also found in meat. Eggs are another product which may be used. And then, of course, fish is an excellent food.

And while on the subject of fish, it is well to point out that many nutritive elements are present in seafoods which do not appear in such abundance in any food produced on land. Among these elements are minerals, such as iodine, and several of the vitamins, particularly vitamins A and D, which are present in clams, oysters and fish roe.

Among the fruits and vegetables in abundance on the local markets are new arrivals of California plums. The quality of these probably will be better shortly.

California pears are arriving in fair volume. But the better ones are from Oregon and will not be on the market here for a few weeks.

Better Peaches Expected.

Better peaches are expected before the end of the week. It is possible, however, that one will be justified in waiting until next week before buying supplies for canning. Watch The Washington Post food advertisements for further information on this fruit.

Grapes are coming into Washington from Maryland now. The first offerings are enticing because they are new. But it pays to wait until shipments become heavier and the price declines.

It is too early for California grapes. Some shipments, generally containing small quantities, are coming in from the Carolinas, however.

Corn, beans and tomatoes are plentiful. It seems impossible that the price will be lower or the quality better. In other words, now is the time to buy.

Eggplant is plentiful. Excellent quality is obtainable at low prices.

Cucumbers are plentiful, too. They work in well with many summer-type salads.

Retail Food Prices.

Eggs—Government inspected, 29 to 30 cents; extras, 25 to 27 cents; loose, mediums, 23 cents.
Butter—Prints, 29 to 31 cents; tubs, 26 to 27 cents.
Poultry—Broilers, 25 to 30 cents; fryers, 25 to 30 cents per lb.; spring baking chickens, 24 to 25 cents per lb.; heavy hens, 22 to 25 cents per lb.; medium hens, 23 to 25 cents per lb.; light hens, 19 to 21 cents per lb.
Potatoes, 3½ to 4½ cents per lb.
Peaches, 15 cents per 2½-lb. basket.
Cantaloupes, 5 to 10 cents each.
Corn, 10 cents for three ears.
Peas (California), 5 to 9 cents lb.
Lima beans (shelled), 25 cents a quart.
Tomatoes, 5 cents lb.

Militant Quakeress Had Love of Beauty

Susan B. Anthony Made Many Friends as She Fought for Rights.

Susan B. Anthony, the great emancipator of womankind, is still remembered in Washington, where she appeared before Congressional session after session to push her claims for suffrage before the solons on Capitol Hill.

She met few advocates of her cause, for it was an unpopular issue at that time. But her personality was so winsome that she won many friends here.

Among those friends was Washington McLean, of Cincinnati, publisher of the Enquirer in that city, who with his family had opened a winter home in Washington some time before.

At an evening party he had as a special guest Miss Anthony. The demure Quakeress, despite her militant ideas for woman's right, had a real feminine love of beauty.

During the evening one of the gentlemen present got so eloquent in a political argument that he knocked from one of the sofas a beautiful purple velvet cushion. It lay on the floor unnoticed until Miss Anthony's eye fell upon it.

Quietly she crossed the room, picked up the cushion, smoothed it out and replaced it almost tenderly on the sofa. Then she joined with fervor and decisiveness into the argument of the foment, her hand caressing the soft folds of the rescued cushion as she spoke.

Custard Refrigerator Cake.

Here is a basic recipe for custard refrigerator cake from which you make your own variations. First soak 2 tablespoons gelatin in ¼ cup cold water. Then scald 3 cups milk in top of double boiler, and stir this soaked gelatin into it. Next, beat up 3 egg yolks with ½ cup sugar and ¼ teaspoon salt. Stir a little of the hot milk into this, then turn the egg and sugar mixture into the milk in the double boiler. Cook over hot water till the mixture coats a spoon (stirring constantly).

Next, remove from fire, and stir in 3 tablespoons of sweetened cooking wine, or 1 teaspoon of any flavoring extract. Let cool a few minutes. Then fold in the three egg whites, stiffly beaten. Let mixture get cold but do not let it harden. Stir occasionally so that egg whites won't all rise to top. Next, line the bottom and sides of a spring form with lady fingers, and turn the mixture in. Let stand in the regrigerator 24 hours. Serve with sweetened whipped cream.

Save Furniture and Steps.

You can spare yourself that mad dashing to cover with armsful of tumbling pillows, at the approach of the unexpected summer shower. Nor is it necessary to haul indoors, at bedtime, all removable accessories from your porch furniture. They can be amply protected by one of the new rubber or rubberized covers.

Angel Cake Supreme.

8 pieces angel food cake
3 cups sliced peaches
½ cup confectioner's sugar
1 pint vanilla ice cream
1 cup whipped cream

Mix peaches and sugar. Place over cake which has been arranged on serving plates. Top with ice cream and whipped cream. Serve at once.

"Plots" to Slay 2 U. S. Envoys Told at Tokyo

Naval Officer Aimed to Stir Hatred, He Says at Terrorist Trial.

Tokyo, Aug. 15 (AP).—Details of alleged attempts to assassinate an American Ambassador and Consul were disclosed today in testimony at the trial in a naval court of ten officers charged with killing Premier Suyoshi Inukai and other terroristic activities in May, 1932.

The plotted assassinations were designed to provoke friction between Japan and the United States and in this way encourage a nationalistic and militarist revolution. Lieut. Kiyo Ito, one of the defendants, declared in giving testimony. A plot with this in view was seriously considered by two naval officers, he said.

Arrests Foil Plots.

Lieut Ito said he had not been able to participate in the Tokyo raids at the time of the assassination of Inukai because he had been wounded in the Shanghai campaign early last year and was still in a hospital.

After his release from the hospital, Ito testified, he and Lieut. Haruo Oba planned to contribute to the terrorists' program by further assassinations, but they were arrested as accomplices in the Tokyo outbreaks before they could carry out their projects.

When the plan to kill the American diplomat was made, Ito testified, the ambassadorship was vacant, Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes having departed for the United States, and Joseph C. Grew, his successor, not yet having arrived in Japan.

Buildings Attacked.

In the outrages which took place at the time Premier Inukai was slain in his official residence, a number of buildings in Tokyo, including the office of the Metropolitan Police Board, were attacked by terrorist groups.

It previously had been testified by Lieut. Horishi Yamagishi, leader of the 10 officers on trial, that fears of what he termed "America's ambition" were the motive of the acts of terror.

Boy Kills Convict, Captures Another

Oklahoman, 17, Holds Man at Bay Until Jail Posse Arrives.

Granite, Okla., Aug. 15 (AP).—A 17-year-old farm boy killed an escaped convict from Granite Reformatory and held another at bay with a rifle until a posse reached the scene and captured him today.

Royal Tope, alias Ralph Johnson, serving a 10-year term for robbery of a Tulsa theater, was killed when he tried to take A. A. Godfrey's rifle from him. Godfrey then held the weapon on Ernest Moffatt, serving 8 years for forgery from Osage County, until the posse arrived.

The pair escaped over the west wall of the reformatory early this morning. Approaching young Godfrey on his farm 10 miles north of here several hours later, they attempted to take his rifle.

Bus Clew Trailed In Sanborn Killing

New Haven, Conn., Aug. 15 (AP).—Two New York detectives sent to Connecticut to trace the movement of Henry F. Sanborn, slain railroad executive, who was found slain at Bayside, L. I., August 5, paid a second visit to New Haven today.

The detectives, who came to run down a slender clew supplied by Miss Magnhild Almskaar, fiancee of Sanborn, who said she had seen him board a bus at East Haddam, visited that community last night and also made inquiries in New Haven.

Lieut. W. E. Bushey, in charge of the Westbrook Barracks of the State police, said the officers stopped at the barracks late last night.

Lowell Case Pends, Duffy Tells Group

Toledo, Ohio, Aug. 15 (Spl.).—"I do not believe a Federal judge should be impeached because of what he thinks of the law," said Representative Warren J. Duffy, of Ohio, addressing the National Alliance of Postal Employes, Colored, here today.

"As a member of the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives," he said, "I voted against an appropriation for an inquiry in the case of Judge Lowell, who denied extradition of Harry Crawford from Massachusetts to Virginia, because of this opinion.

"This matter will come up for final decision in January. I do not think it is proper for Negroes to make too much of such an issue. The case will be taken care of properly."

Brother's Release Won by His Sister

Indianapolis, Aug. 15 (AP).—The trip Mrs. Chaffin made here from Webb, W. Va., in a midget automobile and with only $12 for expenses to testify before the State clemency commission was not in vain.

The commission today voted to release Mrs. Chaffin's brother and his two friends from the Indiana Reformatory, where they are serving 2-to-14-year sentences. They are Frank Morgan, the brother; Lace Belcher and Noah Brumfield. They were convicted May 20, 1932, of holding up a restaurant in Lafayette.

When Mrs. Chaffin appeared before the board yesterday she told of washing and ironing to obtain funds to make the trip.

Flashes From the Radio Dial

By Robert D. Heinl.

IT is the patriotic, if not the legal duty, of all licensees of broadcasting stations to deny their facilities to advertisers who are disposed to defy, ignore, or modify the codes established by the NRA, Federal Radio Commissioner Harold A. Lafount declared yesterday.

"Under the radio act the commission has no right to censorship. However, the commission has the right to take into consideration the kind of program broadcast when licensees apply for renewals," Commissioner Lafount said.

"In the present crucial time, when the Government is making a determined effort to restore prosperity and to provide employment for vast groups, by establishing codes for industry, tending to provide more jobs, by reducing working hours and advancing wage scales, it is questionable, in my individual opinion, if the commission should ignore NRA protests."

Carolyn Conant Van Blarcom, an outstanding authority on the care of the baby, will give the second in her series of talks on "Building the Baby," this afternoon, Woman's Radio Review, WRC, 2.30 o'clock.

Jacques Renard, the rotund musical director, had an unexpected moment of bliss last week. In the midst of rehearsal a voice came from the control room loud speaker. It said, "You're pretty thin, Jacques." But the thrill was only momentary. Jacques realized suddenly and sadly that the voice referred to the accompaniment his orchestra was playing for one of Howard Marsh's songs.

PRIVATE HARRY BELL, of the District Fire Department, and one of its most enthusiastic workers, will speak over Station WRC this afternoon at 5:50 o'clock about the National Firemen's Labor Day parade.

Developments since the beginning of the work on the big celebration will be related by the firefighter, and also many of the plans for the gala celebration.

Bell has long been identified with the firemen's parade and has served on various committees during the eleven years the parade has been held. He is the chairman of the radio committee this year.

Al Jolson may do a radio version of David Warfield's "Music Master." David Warfield, by the way, is one of the few celebs who hasn't broadcast. At least we have never heard of him being on the air.

GEORGE M. COHAN, composer of "Over There," may spring a new NRA song when he broadcasts next Sunday night. When asked to write such a song Mr. Cohan is said to have replied that it might be an entirely new composition or a rewrite of "Over There," entitled "Over Here," with the refrain, "And we won't lay down until its over, over here!"

Cohan is to broadcast twice, with the price reported to be $5,000 for each appearance.

Eddie Cantor again faces the mike Sunday night, September 3.

The doping of three horses at the Arlington race track in Chicago will furnish the plot for "Doors," a Washington dramatic production directed by Violet Wachter. (WRC, 10 p. m.).

Nino Martini, young Italian tenor, sang his way into an engagement at the Metropolitan Opera House via the radio. Henry Nestor, Washington's Singing Cop, by radio has sung his way into a week's engagement at the Fox Theater. As a result of this he will not be heard on his usual period over WMAL Friday night.

IF you want to know what are most popular in band selections glance over the following program which Edwin Frank Goldman will play tonight in his farewell concert on the Mall in Central Park (WMAL), 8 o'clock:

"Marche Slav," Tschaikowsky; overture, "Tannhauser," Wagner; "Fugue in A Minor," Bach; excerpts, "Lohengrin," Wagner; overture, "Sakuntala," Goldmark; "Inflammatus," Rossini, Del Staigers, cornet; waltz, "Die Fledermaus," Strauss; "Hungarian Rhapsody No. 2," Liszt.

The program has been compiled as a result of requests from listeners and constitutes a season's encores. The concerts have been sponsored by the Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation.

There is a never-ending controversy as to the relative merits of our system of broadcasting and those of the European countries. If anybody can answer the question surely it is Bill Hard, transatlantic tic broadcaster and Washington commentator, just back from a long stay abroad. He will forget international politics tonight and give his opinion of the "Latest Developments in European Broadcasting" (WRC, 5:30 o'clock).

ANOTHER scene from Eva le Gallienne's stage production of "Alice in Wonderland" will be broadcast by the noted actress over WMAL tonight at 6:15 o'clock.

The six American and Canadian boys who are the winners in the Automobile Craftsman's Guild competition will be announced over WRC at 8:45 p. m.

Better times will be celebrated musically by George Olsen and his orchestra when they broadcast a new song, "Brother, Here's That Dime You Had to Spare," at 7 p. m. over WRC. Fannie Brice will be heard in new sketches concerning Mrs. Cohen and others.

D. C. Man Beaten, Robbed of $250

Anne Arundel Police Are Seeking 2 Attackers of J. Carl Harrison.

Annapolis, Md., Aug. 15 (Spl.). Anne Arundel County police officials today are searching for two men who are alleged to have beaten and robbed J. Carl Harrison, of Washington, late Sunday night shortly after he left his summer home at Back Bay Beach, West River, to drive to the Capital. Harrison says he was beaten unconscious and his assailants took $250 in cash and $50 in checks.

Harrison's automobile was found on the Sudley road, about a mile from the scene of the holdup. He could say only that one of his assailants was short, and the other tall. His face is badly swollen.

Deputy sheriffs found the door of nearby Oakland Church open and a pool of blood on the floor. They believe Harrison sought refuge there from his attackers, but was overpowered.

Penthouse Slaying Is Laid to Florist

Pasadena Police Plan Arrest in Death of Beauty Parlor Worker.

Pasadena, Calif., Aug. 15 (AP).—New evidence in the "penthouse mystery slaying" of Helen Bendowski, 28, blonde beauty parlor operator, led Deputy District Attorney Hugh McIsaac to announce today he would issue a murder complaint against Harold Wolcott.

Wolcott, 33, florist and asserted sweetheart of Miss Bendowski, held on a suspicion of murder charge, clung to his claim that the woman took her own life on the roof just outside his penthouse early Sunday.

Police Chief Charles Kelley said a check of the .32-caliber automatic pistol found near Miss Bendowski's body showed fingerprints on it were not hers, precluding the possibility of suicide.

Train Kills 2 Tennesseeans.

Johnson City, Tenn., Aug. 15 (AP). The mangled bodies of Ernest and Will McInturff, cousins, were found early today on the Clinchfield Railroad's tracks near the city limits. A coroner's jury found they were killed by a northbound train.

Racketeers Seen Nearing 'Last Mile'

Mrs. Ross Tells Cleaning Industry's Fears May Soon Be Dispelled.

(Associated Press.)

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the United States Mint, told the dyeing and cleaning industry yesterday, "We have every reason to believe we have broken the back of the racketeer."

Mrs. Ross, representing the NRA, addressed the convention of the National Cleaners and Dyers Association, which yesterday entered on final study of its code, containing several provisions aimed at the elimination of the "racketeers" and "chislers."

The dyers and cleaners' tentative code placed the age limit on workers at 17 years, proposed a yet undecided proportion of each cleaner's income go to workers, tentatively listed a 45-hour week and set minimum hourly wages from 20 to 40 cents.

Miss Palmer Withdraws Suit Against Film Official

Los Angeles, Aug. 15 (AP).—Corliss Palmer, "Georgia Peach" of a screen beauty contest, today withdrew her $25,000 suit against Alfred J. Cohen, film executive, after a number of household articles had been returned to her.

Miss Palmer, estranged wife of Eugene V. Brewster, former millionaire film magazine publisher, claimed Cohen had refused to return the articles which she said he had obtained when the couple was on more friendly terms.

Kentucky Officer And Wife Killed

Murder and Suicide Theory Held by Police; Bodies Found in Home.

Paducah, Ky., Aug. 15 (AP).—K. Brooks Williams, 27, constable, and his pretty 24-year-old wife, Pauline, were found dead in their home in a suburb early today by Mrs. Nell Graffen, mother of Williams, when she went to the house to deliver Williams' two children, whom she had been keeping at her downtown home. Williams, shot above the right ear, was lying on a couch. The body of his wife was sprawled at his left on the floor.

Police sought to determine a motive that would substantiate the theory that Williams killed his wife and then himself. Relatives of Williams said he and his wife had quarreled and only last night had been reconciled.

Williams had carried on a strenuous battle against truck law violators for the past year.

Velez Hides Niece From Kidnapers

Los Angeles, Aug. 15 (AP).—Threatened with kidnaping, Joan Del Valle Velez, 4-year-old niece of Lupe Velez, film actress, has been taken secretly to an unnamed convent in Mexico.

Miss Velez revealed today that her niece, adopted by her a year ago, had been taken by the actress' mother to a Mexican convent. The girl is the daughter of Miss Velez' sister, who lives in Mexico City.

"I have received four threatening letters," Miss Velez said. "I was absolutely frantic. I decided the safest and surest thing to do was to send Joan away where nobody could find her."

Mother of Johnson Given Silken Eagle

Okmulgee, Okla., Aug. 15 (AP).—The first "Blue Eagle" pennant, of silk fringed with gold, was presented today to Mrs. S. L. Johnson, mother of Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, by employes of the Recovery Administration in Washington.

The pennant was transmitted with a letter from Miss Frances M. Robinson, secretary to Gen. Johnson, which said:

"The mother of our Blue Eagle is the one who should have the first pennant bearing the bird which carries the slogan of the new era. It was hung in our offices here for several days, but we felt it would be happier in your home."

Ellerman, Ship Baron, Left £17,000,000

London, Aug. 15 (AP).—An estate of £17,000,000 (currently $74,800,000) was shown today when the will of Sir John Ellerman, shipping magnate, was probated. Expectations were that the entire estate would aggregate £30,000,000 ($132,000,000), bringing the government half that sum in death duties. This would be the largest amount on record for a single estate.

Employes of his steamship lines were bequeathed one month's pay, plus 25 per cent.

By Morgan Baker.

TOMORROW the first list of nominees in The Washington Post's Federal Diary Popularity Contest will appear in this column. It remains to be seen whether the winners of two all-expense one-week tours to Chicago and other prizes are in this list or have not yet been nominated. Nominations will be open through Sunday.

Baker.

The most popular woman employed by the Government will be given a trip to Chicago and A Century of Progress Exposition with all expenses paid. The most popular man also will be awarded the Chicago trip with a companion, with all expenses paid, as in the woman's division of the contest. This makes a total of four all-expense tours of Chicago to be awarded as first prize.

The second most popular woman and man will be given an all expense week-end trip to Virginia Beach. Two gold watches await winners as third prizes.

Chief clerks or their superiors are not eligible to participate.

Details of the schedule for the winners of first two prizes, treats awaiting them at Chicago and Virginia Beach and progress of the balloting will appear later in The Federal Diary. The winners will be chosen by votes. Rules and procedure in the contest are given below.

Despite many requests reaching the Postoffice Department asking for issuance of a special stamp to commemorate the 250th anniversary of settlement of Westchester County, New York, Postmaster General Farley has been obliged to veto these suggestions.

If such stamps were authorized at the present time it would add to the work at the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The bureau is busy at work turning out 2-cent stamps. Besides, the bureau is printing millions of internal revenue stamps as result of legalization of beer.

THE additional salary cut of 16 2-3 per cent entailed in the recent order placing the Navy Yard and stations on a 40-hour week basis draws another protest from V. M. Johnson (*), president of Local No. 250, N. F. F. E.

"This reduction makes a total reduction in pay of 31 2-3 per cent, or nearly one-third of our gross pay," Mr. Johnson points out. "We sincerely hope that President Roosevelt will have the order placing the Navy yards and stations on this reduction rescinded and the 44-hour week reestablished until Congress convenes and necessary legislation can be enacted to provide changes which he might desire, without loss of pay in addition to the 15 per cent which he has authority to adjust every 6 months.

"It might be well to consider the fact that the drafting, inspection, clerical, technical and messenger forces, who are all on a per annum basis," Mr. Johnson continued, "may be required to work any additional time without extra compensation, if and when their services may be required."

Free State Hunts Contraband Arms

Dublin, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Irish Free State government decided today to establish a military tribunal to deal with political offenses and started a round-up of all firearms held without authorization.

This action came as Gen. Owen O'Duffy's Blue Shirt National Guard started a membership drive after the government banned its proposed demonstration Sunday.

Events moved swiftly with relations of the Blue Shirts and the followers of former President William T. Cosgrave becoming serious. It was believed President De Valera would call an election to combat the Blue Shirts.

Mrs. Mollison Interested in Plane 'Gadgets'

British Aviatrix Amazed at Innovations Here for Handling Planes.

Mrs. Amy Mollison sat in the cockpit of an Eastern Air Transport plane flying into Washington yesterday and was amazed at the "gadgets" Americans have in daily use.

Received formally at the headquarters of the National Geographic Society, she was most animated when discussing her observations of the routine operations of a typical airline.

Interested in Radio.

The radio by which the pilot can talk to any other plane or to his ground stations, and which gives him up-to-the-minute information on weather, and at the same time, keeps him on a straight line between points by means of special signals, is unlike anything in England, she said. She avoided any other direct comparisons of English and American methods or equipment.

She pointed out that American airlines do not have the difficulties that beset European lines in crossing so many frontiers.

Mrs. Mollison and Elvy Kalep, Esthonian flier, flew to Atlanta as guests of the airline, and returned here yesterday for an official welcome in Washington.

They will go sightseeing today, have lunch with F. D. G. Osborne, counselor of the British Embassy, and Col. Maurice Fitzmaurice Day, military attache, on Thursday and then return to New York. Mrs. Mollison expects to sail for England before the last of the month.

Will Get New Plane.

When she and her husband cracked up at Bridgeport, Conn., at the end of their transatlantic flight, their De Haviland plane, the Seafarer, was destroyed. It represented most of their capital, and its loss made their proposed flight to Bagdad impossible. But their intimate friend in England, Lord Wakefield, cabled that he had ordered another plane of the same type for them. He asked Jim Mollison to come home to supervise its construction. He is now in England rushing the ship to completion.

If the plane is completed before prohibitive weather sets in, the two will try their flight from New York to Bagdad, Mrs. Mollison said yesterday.

The fliers were received at the offices of the Geographic Society by John Oliver La Gorce, vice president, and Mrs. La Gorce.

Goods Markets.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Cotton goods continued weak in the gray goods division today with inquiries for finished lines gaining slowly. Blankets have been advanced again. Rayon yarns are stated to be closely sold among some producers for October delivery. Silk goods are in a little better request for fall. More interest is developing in new wool goods swings with more doing in dress goods and some types of coatings. Threatened strikes are expected to delay deliveries. Burlaps showed little change.

Trade Trends.

(Associated Press.)

Copper—Despite a small consumer interest in domestic and foreign markets the price of the metal is being firmly held. The market here continues at 9 cents a pound for shipment to the end of October.

Sugar—Distribution in the United States during the first seven months of the year, according to a preliminary calculation by Lamborn & Co., Inc., sugar brokers, amounted to 3,523,062 long tons, raw sugar value. This compares with 3,393,340 tons distributed during the same period of last year.

Steel—"Mill operations are maintained moderately well," says the American Metal Market, "because backlog business is supplemented by new orders, but the pace of the current buying is seen to be restricted by extreme conservatism of buyers who are awaiting light on how the steel code will operate."

Newsprint—Production in the United States and Canada in July increased 19.7 per cent over the same month last year, the Newsprint Bureau reports. Output of mills in both countries totaled 259,869 tons, against 255,803 in June and 216,993 in July, 1932.

Woolens—It is reported in the trade that buyers of dress goods and cloakings who have placed substantial orders are pressing for quick deliveries to meet the currently good demand for finished garments.

Bond Market Drifts Lower In Quiet Sales

One-Tenth Loss Recorded as Turnover Drops to $7,997,000.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—Definite price trends generally were lacking in the bond market today as most listed loans mulled about in a spiritless manner.

Sales totaled only $7,997,000, par value, against yesterday's less than normal aggregate of $8,645,000, and the average price for 60 domestic corporate issues was off .1 of a point.

News of interest to bondholders was rather meager and most of the recent favorites were inclined to follow an extremely narrow range. A few secondary railway liens sagged, but prime carrier maturities were steady to firm. The best utilities and industrials also showed unimportant variations.

Western Pacific first 5s recovered 3 points of their previous loss, and issues of Denver & Rio Grande, under pressure yesterday, came back about a point. Some loans of Santa Fe, New York Central, and Chesapeake Corporation improved. Liens of Nickel Plate, Burlington, Illinois Central, Frisco, Southern Pacific, and Southern sagged.

Bonds of some of the amusement companies, reflecting an upturn in motion picture boxoffice receipts, were in demand. Paramount Publix 5½s gained 3½ points, and Warner Bros. 6s were up 2, on a relatively large turn-over.

In the foreign section rallies of 1 to 3 or more points were held by some obligations of Argentina, Denmark, Dutch East Indies, Germany and Japan. French and Roumanian bonds were off more than a point, and British 5½s were down 1½ on a medium turnover.

United States Government securities were steady to firm. The recently listed Treasury 3¼s, traded on a "when issued" basis, advanced 2-32 of a point to a new high at 100.24.

Foreign Markets.

(Associated Press.)

London—Despite the holiday influence a fair business was transacted on the stock exchange today. Gold shares and industrials were the outstanding features and distracted attention from gilt-edged securities which were inclined to ease. Roumanian bonds was the weak spot in the foreign section, the 7 per cent bonds declining 6 points on the moratorium action. Transatlantic issues were cheerful, especially nickel, steel, molasses and distillers' shares. The market closed quiet.

Berlin—Lack of orders caused a quiet opening on the bourse. Business was stagnated by sagging prices. However, activity increased slightly at the close owing to the sudden demand for dye trust shares.

Paris—Closed for holiday.

Stocks Sag One-Tenth In Dull, Light Trading

Professional Dealing Dominates Day's Listless Session; Some Leaders Mark Up Small Gains; Sales Dwindle to 907,300 Shares.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The stock market gave another slow and listless performance today with the ticker generally droning out price changes of fractional unimportance.

Apparently dominated by the grain situation, most stocks attracted only meager professional followings. The turnover was only 907,300 shares and the Associated Press-Standard statistics average for 90 selected stocks gained one-tenth of a point.

Even a stronger dollar—attributed partly to the normal seasonal demand to cover fall commercial transactions and to a lessening of inflationary psychology—created no more than a ripple of interest in the financial community.

At Winnipeg wheat was "pegged" for the first time this year, and prices recovered for net gains of 1⅜ to 1⅞ cents a bushel. Washington dispatches were followed closely in Wall street for a possible clew as to future policies with respect to commodities on the dollar, but the budget of news seemingly contained no convincing stimulant.

Corporation reports, on the whole, continued to emphasize the beneficial effects of the extraordinary spurt which general business enjoyed in the second quarter of this year.

While still operating at a deficit, the American Locomotive Co.—in its six months' report—showed that it had improved its position substantially over a year ago. Moreover, unfilled orders, as of June 30, 1933, were more than double the amount on the corresponding date a year ago.

In the share market, gains of fractions to around a point were retained by Allied Chemical, American Tobacco, Auburn, Mack Truck, Du Pont, U. S. Gypsum, United Fruit and Union Carbide. American Locomotive and many others were unchanged. Chesapeake Corporation, International Harvester, Goodyear, Endicott Johnson preferred, Western Union, United Aircraft, Union Bag & Paper and Associated Oil were off moderately.

U. S. Dollar Rallies On Foreign Marts

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The upward trend of the American dollar continued today in foreign exchange transactions.

The British pound sterling dropped 2½ cents at $4.41½ for cables, French francs sagged .01½ of a cent to 5.24 cents, Dutch guilders yielded .15 of a cent at 54 cents and Belgian belgas and Swiss francs declined .06 and .08 of a cent, respectively.

German marks, the Scandinavians and Far Eastern funds were moderately lower. Canadian dollars, however, firmed ⅛ of a cent at 94.37½ cents.

Bankers accounted for the strength of the dollar partly as reflecting a seasonal commercial demand, a lessening of inflationary psychology and a huge world-wide "short" interest.

Wall Street Briefs.

New York, Aug. 15 (A.P.).—The Fairchild Aviation Co. reported today that its export business to South America and the Far East has increased sharply during the last three months. Sherman Fairchild, president, said foreign sales during the past six months have been greater than for any similar period since 1928.

The Dun & Bradstreet, Inc., insolvency index stood at 92.3 for the first ten days of August, compared with 165.8 a year ago and 90.9, the 5-year average for the 1925-1929 period. The ratio was somewhat higher than in July, which was true also in 1931 and 1932.

A slight slackening in the machinery business during the first two weeks of August was noted by American Machinist, which attributes it to the NRA and uncertainty concerning the administration's policy regarding new equipment. New York is a bright spot because of several large orders in the State.

United States beet sugar distribution for July amounted to 103,536 tons, raw sugar value, a decrease of 23,092 tons from the July, 1932, total, reports B. W. Dyer & Co.

Electric power output of the American Water Works & Electric Co. in July was 43 per cent larger than in the same month last year, the company announced today.

An order for 3,500 tons of steel rails has been placed with the Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad, it was announced today.

Chicago Hails Wheat Jump In Dominion

American Trading at Standstill as Dealers Await End of Pegging Rules.

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—Cheering from crowds of idle brokers on the Chicago Board of Trade today accompanied posting of quotations showing 4 cents jump in wheat prices at Winnipeg.

Not all of the Winnipeg wheat gain was held, but largely as a result of the Canadian advance a decidedly more optimistic tone in grain trade comment developed here.

Much of the rise of prices at Winnipeg was attributed to export buying there on a big scale, overseas countries purchasing practically all wheat offered for shipment abroad, upward of 2,000,000 bushels, making about 7,000,000 taken by Europe during the last three days.

Decline Is Expected.

In some quarters, a price decline at Winnipeg today, instead of an advance, had been looked for because the Winnipeg exchange had followed the example of Chicago and adopted a continuous absolute minimum schedule of quotations.

Expectation, however, was that this course at Winnipeg would be abandoned after the Chicago Board of Trade tonight quit such a schedule, and returned to a fluctuation limit of 5 cents up or down in any one day.

Pending expiration of the continuous minimum price limit in Chicago, all business here in future deliveries of grain and provisions was virtually at a standstill today. The recent usual ceremony of blackboard exhibition of fictional quotations took place, but the figures were stationary, with no high or low point, and in each case were unaltered from those of yesterday and of Saturday.

Pegging May End.

However, as the day progressed, a general feeling became manifest among traders that with abolition tonight of continuous absolute minimum prices, the normal factors of supply and demand would soon again become the dominating market influence.

Notwithstanding relief prevailed that there might be irregularity in the markets for several days, a widespread tendency was shown to consider primarily the domestic grain situation, especially as to corn and oats, with the outlook for the poorest crops in many years.

Much attention was given to a statement by a large brokerage concern asserting that, although selling orders would doubtless predominate coincident with lifting of minimum-price pegs here, purchases on a scale down would prove extremely profitable in the end.

Healthier Market Expected.

It was urged that if the market had not already digested the load of grain thrown upon it, the removal of pegs would speedily accomplish such a result, and bring about healthier conditions based on Washington administration promise of 1909-14 agricultural values, including 88.4 cents a bushel for wheat on farms.

Intimations were received from Winnipeg that hedging sales of wheat there would be taken care of by strong interests in case of prices declining to minimum figures.

A large amount of spreading between different future deliveries was done in Chicago today, and prices for immediate delivery wheat here were firmer.

New York, Aug. 15 (Spl.).—Investment trust securities registered a further advance during the past week registering a new high point for the recovery from the low levels touched in July. The average for the common stocks of the five leading management trusts, influenced by the leverage factor, as compiled by Allied-Distributors, Inc., stood at 17.63 as of August 11, compared with 16.58 on August 4, an advance of 6.3 per cent. The low for the current year to date was 8.22 on March 31.

The average of the non-leverage stocks stood at 15.09 as of the close August 11, compared with 14.75 at the close on August 4. The average of the mutual funds closed at 11.25, compared with 10.79 on August 4.

Winnipeg Market Pegs Grain Prices

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Aug. 15 (AP). Members of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange at an emergency session today unanimously decided to establish minimum prices for grain futures and thereby peg the prices of wheat and coarse grains. With a minimum fixed at last night's closing figures, wheat prices opened sharply higher over a wide range on the grain exchange.

Opening quotations showed gains of 1⅛ to 4⅛ cents over the previous finish. October wheat started the new day at 73 to 74½, December at 75¾ to 74 and May at 79½ to 78. The action of the members was taken because of "abnormal conditions surrounding other markets," it was stated.

The following resolution was unanimously passed:

"Resolved, that in view of the abnormal conditions surrounding other grain markets and the effect that these conditions might have on this market, to the detriment of the producer, the closing (clear) prices on Monday, August 14, 1933, for contracts of all grains for future delivery be and are hereby established as minimum prices. Until further notice, no trades in grain for future delivery shall be made below these minimum prices."

October future wheat closed yesterday at 70⅛. December ended at 71⅝, and May at 76⅜.

Rail Rate Rules Stir Hopes of New Program

Roads Believe Decisions Indicate Fair Attitude on Income Issue.

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—Two recent rate decisions, capped by an order from the Federal coordinator of transportation for a traffic survey, may spell the birth of a new regulatory attitude toward the iron horse.

At least, that is the opinion of transportation quarters here. In its first major ruling, the Interstate Commerce Commission—after extended hearings prompted by applications of some of the country's leading industries—refused to grant a blanket reduction of all freight rates.

Shortly thereafter the commission voted against lowering charges of bituminous coal moving to destinations in Eastern and New England territory. In both cases the commission said the roads were not financially able to stand a cut.

Too often in the past, say railway specialists, rate decisions have been based on factors which failed to allow fully for the earnings position of the railways. The credit position of the carriers, it is believed by these experts, may now stand paramount in future rate proceedings.

In his order for traffic data, Federal Coordinator Eastman has gone direct to shippers with pertinent questions as to their use of particular kinds of transport service. Transportation circles here believe the survey was undertaken to ascertain if more traffic might not legitimately be developed for the railways.

The general freight rate level, according to Interstate Commerce Commission records, is at present substantially below that immediately after the general 10 per cent reduction of 1922. The average ton-mile earnings in the first quarter of 1933 were approximately 22 per cent below the 1920 peak, and 11 per cent below the level resulting from the 1922 cut.

Huge Herring Cargo Opens Holland's Trade for Season

New York, Aug. 15 (Spl.).—Nearly a thousand tons of Dutch matjes herring, the first seasonal shipment of the year for American consumption, arrived on the Holland-America liner Statendam here on Saturday.

Dutch herring are famous the world over for their very special flavor which no other people seem to have been able to develop. For centuries past, Dutch fishermen have been putting out to sea in their little sailboats, going sometimes as far as the Arctic Ocean. Of recent years, motor boats have been supplanting the picturesque sails, enabling the fishermen to travel farther and bring home a fresher catch.

During the past five years America has eaten an average of $500,000 worth of Dutch herrings a year. The Holland-America Line has been a vital factor for more than 50 years in the development of this important industry for the Netherlands, transporting to these shores annually the largest proportion of the herrings designed for America. In fact, each liner carries several employes, some of whom have seen a quarter of a century's service with the Holland-America Line, whose principal tasks have been the handling of the shipments of Dutch herrings.

Holland exports an average of 80,000 tons of herrings, valued at approximately $5,000,000, each year. The matjes herring, according to one authority, is the second run of herring. The first run consists of the very young herring, too perishable for shipment to America. Dutchmen say that this is the most delectable of the whole herring tribe, but you can eat it only in Holland.

According to Dr. Neil Van Aken, secretary of the Netherlands Chamber of Commerce, it was an obscure Dutch fisherman, one Jan Beukels, who, 200 years ago, discovered a method of cleaning herring at sea, thus making it possible to preserve the fish and its flavor for a greater period of time.

An hors d'ouvre composed largely of herring is a favorite luncheon dish in Holland. And for breakfast, if you ask any Dutchman, there's nothing like a good Dutch matjes herring. It also is highly recommended as an infallible cure for "that morning after" feeling.

Geneva, Aug. 15 (AP).—A world wheat agreement is the object of a conference called today by the League of Nations to be held in London, August 21.

The four principal wheat exporting countries—the United States, Canada, Argentina and Australia—will be the outstanding participants.

"The conference, which will be held within the framework of the World Economic Conference, will be devoted to seeking an international agreement on production of and trade in wheat, on the basis of conversations begun at Geneva, May 10, by the four chief exporters, and continued at London," an official communique said.

The following States were invited to attend: Austria, Belgium, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Denmark, Estonia, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain, Greece, Holland, Hungary, the Irish Free State, Italy, Latvia, Lithuania, Norway, Poland, Portugal, Roumania, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Turkey, Soviet Russia and Jugoslavia.

Exchange Born In Hard Times Will Liquidate

Midwest Institution Plans Exit as New Prosperity Makes Bow.

Yellow Springs, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP). The Midwest Exchange, Inc., born of the depression and reared on the Nation's monetary and employment troubles, soon will pass out of existence.

Arthur E. Morgan, its founder and president, said today a systematic liquidation would be attempted during the next six weeks.

Large stocks of goods have been placed on the shelves of the Yellow Springs Exchange Store, a subsidiary, to retire the scrip hundreds of persons used in "swapping" things they had for things they needed more. Morgan said the scrip would be redeemed dollar-for-dollar in staple merchandise.

Turnover Is Heavy.

At the height of its popularity, the Midwest Exchange had a turnover of thousands of dollars worth of goods each week. Many of its patrons received scrip for labor and exchanged the paper for foodstuffs delivered by farmers who lacked the cash to pay for hired help.

The exchange dealt in nearly every type of commodity, merchandise and service, including medical and dental attention.

It attracted Nation-wide attention at the time last year that organized bartering systems sprang up throughout the Nation.

Activities Extend Far.

Some of its activities extended far beyond this immediate territory. Its success prompted Morgan, president of Antioch College, where he has introduced numerous cooperative ideas among students, to advocate the organization of a central exchange through which all the Nation's bartering organizations could trade.

The liquidation, Morgan said, was made necessary largely because of the time and energy required by the chairmanship of the Tennessee Valley Authority, to which he recently was appointed by President Roosevelt.

A few of the exchange functions will be continued by his elder son, Ernest Morgan, former manager.

(Associated Press.)

Cotton mills maintained high-speed production during July, with consumption of the staple reported by the Census Bureau yesterday at 600,143 bales, compared with 278,568 bales for the same month last year.

Race Horse Prices Decline at Auction

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—Business has fallen off again at the annual Fasig Tipton sales of yearling throroughbreds where horse owners gather yearly to replenish their racing stables.

From the $13,000 high of Friday night, the top price dropped last night to $1,200, paid by Capt. P. M. Walker for a chestnut colt by Dunlin—Exalted Ruler. E. Hall bought a colt by Dunlin—Lady Emmeline for $1,000, second best price.

Several yearlings went for as little as $75 each and many were were sold for $100 each. An assortment of 55 head brought a total of only $12,175 averaging $348.

New York, Aug. 15 (Spl.).—Sales of quarterly income shares for the month of July totaled 1,737,049 shares, bringing the total number of shares outstanding to 8,873,753, according to figures made public today by Ross Beason, president.

The number of shares outstanding at the end of the first seven months of 1933 are as follows:

February 28	1,671,111
March 31	2,986,197

Cotton Pushed Down in Drive Of Liquidation

December Closes at 9.10 as General Market Drops 15 to 22 Points.

New York, Aug. 15 (AP).—A renewal of liquidation pushed cotton prices into new low ground for the movement today. December contracts, after selling up to 9.38 early, or about 7 points net higher, broke to 9.10 in the later trading and closed at that figure, with the general market ending easy at net declines of 15 to 22 points.

Opening 2 points lower to 3 points higher, the early offerings were fairly well taken by covering or trade buying promoted by relatively steady cables and talk of an improved technical position.

Later selling was encouraged by a favorable view of the weather and crop news and unsettled grain markets. Trade interests were credited with buying on the scale down but the demand from that source was evidently limited and, as prices worked off during the afternoon, some stop orders were uncovered. Closing prices were the lowest of the day.

Orleans Good Seller.

New Orleans was a considerable seller, while some observers reported a little more scattered selling from the South. The report of the Census Bureau showing domestic consumption of 600,143 bales for July, against 278,568 last year, was rather above expectations, but it had little apparent effect on the market. Exports today, 19,343, making 277,479 so far this season. Port receipts, 18,450. United States port stocks, 2,918,581.

The report of the Census Bureau placing stocks on hand of all growths in this country on August 1 at 8,170,133 bales, compared with 9,677,754 last year, were evidently not far enough out of line with expectations to have any particular market effect.

Liverpool cables attributed the steadiness of the early market there to London buying and trade calling, combined with the improved technical position following recent liquidation. Houses with Liverpool connections were among the early buyers here, but the business from foreign sources was less active than recently.

Mary Pickford Wants to Produce Stage Play, Act in One, or Both, This Season

Has Written a Light Comedy Now on Market

'Slim' Veteran of 20 Years; Arliss Opens at Met.; Amusement Chat.

By Nelson B. Bell.

Mary Pickford, it seems, is in New York telling all!

Not about her domestic difficulties—if any—or the possibility of a formal divorce between her and her equally celebrated husband, Douglas Fairbanks, pere, but concerning her immediate plans for a season of professional activity in the East.

Mary Pickford may either appear in a play on the legitimate stage, and thereby fulfill a constantly growing desire that has been gnawing at her vitals ever since her appearance for the late David Belasco in "The Good Little Devil," or she may produce a play, according to her recent statements to Manhattan interrogators.

Then again, so it is said, she may do both—but not at the same time.

In this connection, Miss Pickford reveals a little-suspected penchant for writing and lets it become known that, like a vast number of others, she is in New York at present to arrange for the production of a comedy-drama of her own authorship.

"If I can get a good chance," she is said to have said, "I might stay in New York and do a play. Of course, the play would have to be one I liked myself."

According to Miss Pickford's own confession, she has been writing since she was 15. Let's see, now, that would be——. Well, we won't go into that at the moment.

Strictly Legitimate.

"My play," Our Mary chatters on, "calls for strictly legitimate performance by the players. Every one who sings in it will have a logical reason for singing. No member of the cast will just burst into a song about the moon because somebody happens to mention the word 'moon.'"

While her present objective palpably is to find a spot for her play, or a spot for herself in some other play, Miss Pickford was emphatic in her declaration that she expects to continue her picture work.

As for the screen, she expressed the conviction that pictures need "more movement, more drama, more music, instead of so much talk."

"Dialogue," says Miss Pickford, further, "should be used like the captions in the old silents. When people go to the theater, they tire of this ceaseless jabber. I'm tired of it and I imagine the great American public is much more tired than I am.

"Dialogue is all right on the stage, where you can't see the player's face past the sixth row. But in pictures you can see the faces and they, after all, are the most eloquent media."

Well, yes and no, Mary. If you ask me, there are a few of both genders on the screen who could turn their backs to the cameras and talk like all get out, to the distinct advantage of themselves and all concerned!

And good luck with your play.

Soused Again!

That incomparable inebriate is in again!

By this time I have forgotten the lad's name—although on a remote previous occasion City Manager Carter Barron of the Loew interests in Washington telephoned New York expressly to find out for the benefit of this column—but he is the same stupendous souse who scored so decisively in "Me and My Gal," with Spencer Tracy and Joan Bennett, many months ago.

You may recall that when his intoxication reached its complete and formidable zenith he accosted a cop and, pointing out that a fish had stolen a bait off his hook, demanded to know what protection the law was prepared to offer him!

His material in "Arizona to Broadway," in which he appears again with Joan Bennett, with Jimmie Dunn pinch-hitting for Mr. Tracy, is not to be mentioned in the same breath—not his, anyway, please—with that supplied him in the earlier picture, but he is just as drunk as ever.

And that's plenty drunk!

Keystone Kop.

"Slim" Summerville, who comes to the screen at RKO-Keith's tomorrow with ZaSu Pitts and Una Merkel in Universal's production of "Her First Mate," is one of a comparatively small number who really deserve to be referred to as "screen veterans."

"Slim" has been in pictures, either before or behind the cameras, for an even 20 years. That is quite a stretch in any man's life. More in any woman's!

At times he has been a director; at others, actor. As both he has been successful.

Summerville's first screen work was done in 1913, after he had hitch-hiked across the country and fallen in with a Los Angeles prize fighter who improved his spare time by renting himself out as an "extra" in Mack Sennett's early comedies. Through the good offices of this histrionic leather-pusher, "Slim" became an extra at the same studio and shortly afterward became one of the original Keystone Kops, that slam-bang force of comedy policemen that used to tumble out of a ten-passenger patrol wagon to the number of about 150, greatly to the amusement of the assembled yokelry!

Later "Slim" was successively featured as both comedian and director for the same producer and, still later, directed comedies for both Fox and Universal.

Entering the field of feature productions on his return to acting, Summerville scored an unequivocal hit in "All Quiet on the Western Front," and since that time has gradually worked himself into that enviable position where he may almost be said to be in a class by himself.

No one among the masculine mimes can look quite so forlorn as he. And that, to the cinema, is an accomplishment that renders its possessor worthy of his hire at what the ladies at the sewing guild refer to as heavy jack!

No Hits, No Runs, But Errors.

Having remarked during a chance meeting on the street yesterday afternoon that he had noted in yesterday's column that an important ball game was being played by the members of the concert orchestra at Loew's Fox, Phil Lampkin, conductor, and Bill Strickland's Chevy Chase Lake Dance Orchestra, down on the Ellipse back of the White House, Dr. Frank T. Shyne, the actor's friend in time of physical trouble, calls up to remark that upon returning to his office he was surprised to find it full of musicians painfully awaiting his ministrations.

The boys, it appears, were principally out of the brass and tympani sections of the Fox orchestra and their ailments ranged through a long catalogue of diamond ailments, embracing charley horses, sprained ankles, fallen arches, misplaced reflexes and divers other minor injuries, mostly to the pride.

It has not been openly confessed, as yet, but I am given to believe that the boys from Loew's Fox took a licking to the tune of about 17 to 1!

At any rate, Dr. Shyne was able to jimmie their vertebrae with sufficient adequacy to insure yesterday afternoon's and last night's audiences at the Fox their usual concord of sweet sound.

Under the circumstances, I dare say the board of judges in the "Eight Girls in a Boat" contest, sponsored by The Washington Post and Loew's Fox Theater, in conjunction with the Wilson Line, can afford to call it square with Prof. Lampkin for compelling them to suffer violent attacks of stage fright by being made to stand on their feet before all those people Monday night! Justice evidently isn't as blind as you think.

"Greater Show Season."

A wire from Manager Hardie Meakin of RKO-Keith's, attending the executive pep meeting at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York, designed to put a good strong mainspring in the RKO Greater Show Season, to be inaugurated August 25 to 28, advises that this late summer drive will be initiated in the Capital by first presentations of "Morning Glory," at RKO-Keith's for the week beginning Friday, August 25.

This is a much-touted production, boasting the joint talents of Katharine Hepburn, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., and Adolphe Menjou

The second of the Greater Show Season offerings on Fifteenth street probably will be Columbia Pictures' "Lady for a Day," the screen version of Damon Runyon's "Madam la Gimp," with May Robson, Warren William, Glenda Farrell, Walter Connolly, Guy Kibbee and Jean Parker.

It was directed by Frank Capra, a young man who makes very few mistakes.

Beating the Gun.

Speaking of "Her First Mate," the "Slim" Summerville-ZaSu Pitts vehicle, as we were somewhere back there, word comes officially that RKO-Keith's is taking a page out of the Metropolitan's book and opening this feature ahead of its original booking date. Just as George Arliss in "Voltaire" celebrated an advance opening at the Met today, so will "Her First Mate" at RKO-Keith's tomorrow. Both were originally announced for Friday.

And just to put your mind to rest, the management has definitely announced that the engagement of Marie Dressler and Wallace Beery in "Tugboat Annie" will continue through a second week, beginning Friday. This rousing rhapsody of the waterfronts has "caught on" with the public no less overwhelming than was the case when the same stars appeared in "Min and Bill," deemed by many the superior of "Tugboat Annie," but not by any such margin as to make much difference in the final score.

"Going Native" Going Strong.

Closed rehearsals today, no rehearsals tomorrow and a full-dress rehearsal with music, lights and scenery at 8 o'clock Friday morning mark the final few hours of "Going Native," the all-Washington revue, which opens at Loew's Fox Theater Friday.

Gene Ford, producer of the revue, and Ned McGurn, his assistant, are agog and a half about the success of the show. The way things are going now they believe that this revue will be the biggest success Washington ever has viewed.

Everything and everybody connected with the revue is now a live wire of activity. Stage hands and electricians are busy getting together props and storing scenery. Men in the projection booth are getting their lights set, and Phil Lampkin and the Fox Orchestra are going over the musical routines.

At rehearsals everyone is on tension. Principals and members of the ensemble can be found either at the Joe Brown Studio, 1210 G street, or in the rehearsal hall at the Fox polishing up for their specialties and routines.

Only one call has been issued for tomorrow and that is for some of the principals to take part in a radio program to be broadcast from the studio of WJSV from 4 to 4:45 p. m.

At that time Mr. Ford will present a special program, both instrumental and vocal, with Brook Johns, Evelyn Tyner, Clare Borjes, Henry Nestor, Almira Sessions, Joseph Bernne, Mildred Cherot, the Four Dots and others participating.

Among the scenes, skits and blackouts announced by Mr. Ford for "Going Native" are the "Butterfly Ballet," featuring the Yates Sisters and Frances Rands, toe dancer; "Seeing Washington," with Jimmie Mulroe acting as barker on a sightseeing bus, and a comedy bit, "It's Too Hot for Me," with Brook Johns, Almira Sessions and several others, reputed to be one of the biggest laughs in the show. We shall see.

It has been bothering me for some days whether this sign appearing on an upper Fourteenth street business window might possibly be construed as a little on the side of gliding the lily cup.

The Reunion of a Famous Team

Although Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had frantically cabled Laurence Olivier to catch the first boat for America and Hollywood from his native England, to play opposite Greta Garbo in her next picture, "Queen Christina," the glamorous but silent Swede, put her foot down and expressed a decided and surprising preference for John Gilbert in the leading male role. Although Mr. Gilbert has not done too well in talking pictures, Greta and Jack seem happy enough about the reunion, as here depicted by Artist Whiteway.

Metropolitan

"VOLTAIRE." Warner Brothers picturization of a story by George and E. Laurence Dudley, starring George Arliss, with Doris Kenyon, Margaret Lindsay, Reginald Owen, Alan Mowbray, and Murray Kinnell. Directed by John G. Adolfi. Reviewed (return engagement) by W. A. Whitney.

Ever a consummate master of histrionics, regardless of the antiquity or modernity of the role, George Arliss seems to reach even greater heights when he assumes a "costume" part. In "The Affairs of Voltaire" (of which there is really only one), Mr. Arliss again scales the exalted heights of almost another "Disraeli."

Of the play, woven around the Calas affair, little need be said, and of Mr. Arliss' performance therein still less is necessary. For, if one should "go the limit" with an Arliss picture, he would surely lay himself open to such accusations as, "It couldn't be that good." But "Voltaire" is not only that good, it is even better.

Not only has Mr. Arliss again proved himself the master of his art, but the Warner Brothers have surrounded him with an incomparable cast. Reginald Owen, as the luxury-loving Louis XV; Doris Kenyon, more beautiful and alluring than ever, as Mme. de Pompadour, the king's premiere courtesan; Alan Mowbray, as Count de Sarnac, Louis' "snake in the grass;" Margaret Lindsay, as the naive Nannette Calas, and Murray Kinnell, as Emil, Nannette's lover, seem to be inspired by Mr. Arliss' presence to greater achievements than they have previously attained.

"The Double Crossing of Columbus," an inspired bit of nonsense, with Charles Judels and Vanessi, and a release of Paramount News round out a program of unblemished brilliance.

Accompanied by Mrs. Ragatz, he will do research work in France and England on social and economic conditions in the French Antilles in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries.

Five typewriters, valued at $530, were reported stolen yesterday from the second floor of the Y. M. C. A. Building at 1736 G street northwest.

Mimic Warfare Fought on Vacant Lot With Baby Guns

Army officials inspect the new midget 75-millimeter gun fired yesterday on a small vacant lot at Twentieth and C streets northwest. Upper, Brig. Gen. Francois Pillon, French Military Attache, loads the gun, while Capt. Harold W. Blakeley, in charge of the firing demonstration, and two of the gun crew look on. Below, Maj. Gen. Harry G. Bishop, left, Chief of Field Artillery, the inventor of the gun, describes how it functions to Gen. Peyton C. March, wartime Chief of Staff.

Miniature Guns Enable Artillery Practice on 100-Yard Lot.

The first mimic battle under the economy program was fought here yesterday.

A battery of four miniature 75-millimeter guns was trained on a house on a vacant lot at Twentieth and C streets northwest by a detachment of Field Artillery from Fort Myer. High ranking officers watched as Capt. Harold W. Blakeley gave the order to "commence firing." The first gun barked and the shell fell short. The next shell overshot the mark, nearly carrying away the chimney. But the third shell found its mark and the house was completely destroyed.

Officers rushed up to congratulate Capt. Blakeley and his men on their marksmanship and praise Maj. Gen. Harry G. Bishop, chief of Field Artillery, for his invention of the "gun," which permits target practice by a battery of 75's on a lot less than 100 yards wide.

Shoots Like Big Gun.

The real 75 mm. gun has a range of 9,000 yards. Gen. Bishop's new 75 will shoot exactly 90 yards. But it functions just like the big gun and is expected to prove valuable for training purposes.

Under the economy program the field artillery was allotted little money for ammunition. Each 75 mm. shell costs Uncle Sam $18. Obviously, there would be little firing of these guns this year under current appropriations. Gen. Bishop conceived the idea of a midget gun while lying on a sick bed at Walter Reed Hospital. When he was discharged from the hospital he supervised the construction of the first battery of the guns. Yesterday he watched them fire. It was declared a great success.

Ball Bearing Used as Shell.

Everything about the training guns is scaled down to one one-hundredth of the dimensions of the famous 75. The soldiers looked out of proportion bending over the gun, which they could have picked up in their hands.

The shell is a commercial ball bearing. It is propelled by a blank .22-caliber cartridge. The firing procedure is the same as for the 75.

Thus Field Artillery units of the Regular Army will have their annual target practice this year. Also, it is planned to issue the trainers to all units of the National Guard and the Officers Reserve Corps.

And speaking of economy, it costs just four-fifths of one cent to fire all guns of the battery of the midget 75's against $72 for four of the shells of the big 75. The ball bearings are gathered up and used over again.

Friend of Cuba Aids Islanders From District

Col. Rubens Credited With Solving Difficulties While Here in Capital.

By John J. Daly.

While America wondered what "all the shooting was about" in Cuba during the past fortnight, a large, heavy-set man in his early sixties wandered about Washington carrying inside information in his heart.

No one on the streets knew of this power behind the throne, and few suspected he was the last surviving member of the Cuban Revolutionary Junta, started here almost half a century ago—to win independence for "The Pearl of the Antilles."

Meanwhile newspaper headlines told that Col. Horatio Seymour Rubens had conferred with State Department officials, officials at the Cuban Embassy and leaders of both sides of the argument in Cuba.

Worked 45 Years for Cause.

For 45 years Col. Rubens has been known as "El Gran Amigo de Cuba," and this title, "the great friend of Cuba," was won after a lifetime of pleading and fighting for the cause of Cuba.

Only a few old-timers here knew that the colonel was in town during all the turmoil. Just a few of the boys now writing for the press remembered that Col. Rubens was the inspiration behind the Cuban revolt, that he had become legal adviser to the junta, headed by the patriot, Jose Julian Marti, and that he never lost interest in the Cuban cause.

Those who are on the inside declare that were it not for this American Cuba today would still be under the domination of Spain. He is the unofficial adviser of Cuba and the United States. He is the only man both sides to a squabble will listen to. This is on the sacred word of those who know what the colonel accomplished during the past few days—for to him is attributed the peaceful outcome of a war-like situation.

Visits Cuba Twice Yearly.

Twice a year the colonel goes to Cuba—to look over the situation. He has been doing this for 30-odd years. He is president of the Consolidated Railroads of Cuba and is rated "an adopted son" in every large city of the island.

This is the man who is credited with bringing about the present situation in Cuba—whereby an old friend of his, Gerardo Machado, stepped aside for the new president, Carlos Manuel de Cespedes.

The story is told that this little island changed his entire career: When the trouble first brewed "down there," Rubens was a young attorney in complete charge of Elihu Root's law offices. He gave up all that to fight the battle of the underdog. He became the sincere friends of such Presidents as Cleveland, McKinley and "Teddy" Roosevelt.

Col. Rubens walked last week through the streets of Washington, recalling to the few who knew him what he had done in former years, when almost single-handed he helped win independence for Cuba.

Nats Take 7th Straight, Rallying to Beat Chisox, 5-1, as Yanks Win

This Morning

With Shirley L. Povich.

Chicago, Aug. 15.

AL SIMMONS, nee Szemanski, the potent Milwaukee brewer of base hits, was the author of a statement six weeks ago that the Nats were a flash in the pan, that they would fold up in the stretch, and that the Yankees would walk in with the pennant.

Runner up to Jimmy Foxx in the American League slugging race, Simmons isn't batting so high in the Prognostication League. At present, the Nats are folding up to the extent of seven straight victories, own a 5½-game lead, and the Yankees are walking in with nothing but second place.

While in a predicting mood, Simmons also forecast that the White Sox would wind up in third place. At the moment, they are a very much run-down sixth-place club. But Simmons has an alibi on all three predictions. He didn't say what season all his forecasts were to take place in. It was only assumed that he meant 1933.

Afraid to Have X-Ray.

With Joe Judge, in the regular lineup of the Red Sox, playing first base in the same inimitable way, a story anent Judge now can be told.

Those four months he spent with the Brooklyn Club were months of torture for the first-base idol of Washington fans. Judge was spiked by Dick Bartell, of the Phillies, in the first game of the season, and stayed in the lineup despite an ankle that pained him excruciatingly at every step.

"I thought it was chipped," said Judge. "But I didn't dare to have it X-rayed. The pictures might show it was broken, and I'd be all washed up as a ball-player. It didn't improve for three months, and by that time the Dodgers had bought Sam Leslie from the Giants to play first.

"It finally hurt me so much I had to know the truth. It was nothing serious, only a bad bruise. But for three months I was crazy with pain and didn't want Max Carey to know it."

Crowder Important Nat.

If anybody is looking around for another reason why the Nats are where they are, he can lay a heavy finger on Gen. Al Crowder and identify one of the chief heroes in the club's success.

The general is the real workhorse of the Nats' pitching staff. After the team lost a double-header to the Yanks last week and showed signs of crumbling, New York writers pointed out that Crowder was being overworked.

Cronin laughed.

"Crowder is complaining to me he isn't getting enough work. He could pitch every day if he had to. He's got a rubber arm, all the fellows on the club know that. 'Gen.' never pitches out of turn. When I work him with only a couple of day's rest, it is because he wants to work. He's always asking me for the job." Crowder has appeared on the mound in six of the Nats' last nine games. He pitched in both games of the Monday twin bill in Yankee Stadium, pitched Thursday and Saturday in Boston, pitched Sunday in Washington and today in Chicago. That's one reason he's leading both leagues with 19 wins.

Runs, Hits and Errors.

Heinie Manush is making serious motions in the direction of another sensational batting streak . . . hitting safely in his twenty-second consecutive game today . . . it was in Chicago that Heinie was stopped on the Nats' last invasion of the West after hitting in 26 straight games . . . the bunts that Manush and Myer beat out today were identical . . . both dragged the ball past Jones . . . Rhyne ran in for both . . . attempted to pick both up with one hand . . . missed both . . . and both were legitimate singles . . . Bluege was having a tough time at bat . . . three times he grounded to Jimmy Dykes . . . on his fourth appearance he attempted to duck one of Jones' pitches and the ball bounced off his bat into the glove of Rhyne . . . the Sox are thinking of converting Pitcher Ted Lyons into a first baseman . . . Lyons can hit and is a swell fielder . . . With Red Kress on first for the Sox, the life of the first base coach is in extreme danger . . . Clark Griffith is here with the team . . . They'll chase him home if they lose two in a row.

Bob Godwin (seated at right) puts his signature on the papers to fight Joe Knight, who is looking over his shoulder, at the Twin City Arena next Tuesday night with a goodly portion of the receipts going to the Firemen's Parade to be held in Washington on Labor Day. Promoter Charlie Cornell is watching. Both Godwin and Knight have been recognized as National Boxing Association champions and are ranked two and three behind the present title holder, Maxie Rosenbloom, and their clash is the classiest fight proposition ever offered in the vicinity of the Nation's Capital.

Two-Set Match Captured by Mrs. Moody

Miss Jacobs Wears Her Shorts and Wins at Forest Hills.

By Gayle Talbot.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—There was the customary absence of fireworks today as the women tennis stars of this country and Great Britain got down to business in the forty-sixth renewal of the women's national championship at the West Side Tennis Club.

The principal impression gathered from an unexciting opening round was that Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, seven times queen of this country's courts, still can spot her opponents a lame back and very probably give them a collective lesson in the finer points of the pastime.

Moving about easily and unhurriedly, apparently still a little cautious of the spinal injury which kept her out of the recent Wightman Cup matches, Queen Helen nevertheless disposed of her initial rival, Dr. Esther Bartosh, of Los Angeles, 6—1, 6—2. She looked, if possible, better than ever, and her strokes were greeted with the familiar "Oh's" and "Ah's" from the gallery of several thousand.

Helen Jacobs Rival.

Mrs. Moody's only rival in the favor of the crowd was the same girl who has been her most tenacious opponent for almost a decade, Helen Jacobs. In addition to turning loose a powerful game to crush Eunice Dean, of San Antonio, Tex., 6—0, 6—0, the defending champion gained what may prove lasting fame by playing in "shorts," the first woman ever to eschew the conventional skirt and blouse on the Stadium court.

The "foreign" scare subsides somewhat because of Dorothy Round's uncertain showing in her first start against Eugenie Sampson, an unseeded player from Winnetka, Ill. The British star, considered the most likely of the visitors to reach the finals, played wildly and dropped a set before recovering her form. The scores were 4—6, 6—1, 6—2.

Suit Referee Calls Primo Dumbhead

"He'll Be in Court on Aug. 29 or Else!" Bankruptcy Official Thunders.

New York, Aug. 15 (U.P.).—Referee in Bankruptcy Peter B. Olney, who is slight of build and stoop-shouldered, called the heavyweight champion prize fighter of the world a "dumbhead" today.

Primo Carnera, the champion, was to have appeared in court in the bankruptcy case filed as a result of a London waitress' suit against him. His attorney said that the Italian fighter had become mixed up on his dates and was in Bangor, Me., filling a vaudeville contract.

Referee Olney, after referring to Carnera as a "dumbhead" and a "bumble-headed person," ordered that the fighter appear August 29.

"He can't," said the attorney, "because he'll be making a movie in California on that date."

"He can't go galivantin' around the country while I'm holding court," snapped the little referee. "He'll be here on August 29 or else——!"

Walk and Three Doubles Off Marberry Cost Him Decision.

Detroit, Aug. 15 (AP).—In a game of heavy clouting that saw nine doubles and one home run, the Boston Red Sox defeated Detroit, 5 to 3, today to even the series at one game each.

Fred Marberry, Detroit's hurler, was breezing along with a 3-to-1 lead when the eighth inning opened. Then he walked a man and three doubles followed to net three runs and the ball game. The Sox got an unneeded run in the ninth.

Two walks issued by Marberry figured in the scoring, as did two of three errors perpetrated by Rogell, Detroit shortstop. Each team got nine hits. Henry Johnson, Boston pitcher, helped win his own game by getting a double and scoring two runs.

Burl Battles Sarron to Draw

3,500 Watch Fast Clash of Featherweights at Twin City.

Syrian Goes Down for no Count; Bowen, Irving Win on Card.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

DISPLAYING the same unfailing courage, dogged determination and two-fisted fighting that crowned his efforts with success during the winter months, Pete Sarron last night battled Eddie Burl to a draw in their 10-round battle, feature of the Twin City Arena card. It was a grueling and thrilling fight, and it topped the best card offered ring fans hereabouts in several months.

It was a close fight, but according to The Post's scoresheet, Sarron was the winner. Referee Charley Baum voted it a draw, as did Buck Grier, a judge. Charley Short, the other judge, cast his ballot in Sarron's favor. The Post gave Sarron six rounds, with three for Burl and one even.

Thirty-five hundred fans, a gathering comparable in numbers to the audiences present at the Goldie Ahearn-Al Foreman and Martie Gallagher-Henry Lamar fights, saw Sarron come from behind and, apparently win the decision. But the main go was almost superseded in importance by Henry Irving's first-round knockout of K. O. Broide, a lad who not only had been undefeated in seven fights, but had kayoed every opponent in the first minute of the opening round.

Burl Takes Lead in Third.

Sarron came out fighting in the first round, swarming over Burl with a two-fisted attack to the head and body. He stood off and jabbed Burl with his left, following up with long rights to the head. Pete took the second with the same methods, but Burl assumed the lead in the third and won the round with stiff body punching.

Sarron went down for no-count in the fifth from a hard right to the head, but came up fighting. Burl's bulldog tenacity and aggressiveness was winning the fight for him at this stage, but Sarron had yet to fire his final volley.

The Syrian came back in the sixth, was held even in the seventh and was credited with the last three rounds on The Post score sheet.

Sarron's best round was the last when he drove Burl before him with a withering attack to the head that forced the latter back into the ropes. Burl retaliated with a brief flurry of blows, but it was Sarron's round by a wide margin.

The crowd howled and hooted Sarron for holding and roughing throughout the fight, and he was guilty of striking several low blows. Burl fought a clean, hard fight, and, in the opinion of many fans, should have won the decision.

Irving First to Go Down.

The Broide-Irving scrap was a honey, while it lasted. Running true to form, Broide floored "Popeye" with a short right in the first 15 seconds of the fight, and Irving went down for a count of nine. The local boy was wary of that right thereafter. Broide followed Irving around the ring, seeking another opening for a kayo punch.

He backed Henry up against the ropes, and was moving in with another punch when Irving uncorked a right that landed flush on the Baltimore boy's chin. Down he went for a nine count and the crowd leaped to its feet and cheered Irving to a man.

Still groggy, Broide arose. It was the first time he ever had been on the floor. Irving measured him and floored Broide with another right. The process was repeated four times, and the last time Broide

Browns Beaten By New York Team, 8-5

Yanks, Outhit, Stage Five-Run Rally in Fourth; Ruth Delivers.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 15 (AP).—The New York Yankees, opening their final Western jaunt of the season, 5½ games behind the league-leading Washington Senators, put on one of their old-fashioned "big" Yankee innings to defeat the Browns, 8 to 5, in the first game of their series.

The Yanks cuffed Young Jack Knott around to score five runs in the fourth inning. Then with the game apparently on ice, Johnny Allen weakened and had to be removed in the seventh. The veteran Herb Pennock held the Browns in check the rest of the way.

Babe Ruth, who declared himself "benched" for a two-day rest with the consent of Manager Joe McCarthy, was pressed into service on the first day of it as a pinch hitter in the eighth. He came through with a double that hammered in a Yankee run.

Gehrig Nears Record.

Lou Gehrig was in there all the way playing his 1306th consecutive game and putting him in line to tie Everett Scott's all-time major league durability record tomorrow. Lou led the Yankee attack with three singles.

The fourth inning, which was the whole game so far as the Yankee victory was concerned, started with a pass to Dixie Walker. Gehrig sent him to third with a hot line single and he scored after Ben Chapman's fly. Then Tony Lazzeri and Bill Dickey hit singles for another run and Frank Crosetti smacked a double that knocked in two more. After Allen beat out a bunt,

Mackmen Take 8-7 Slugfest From Tribe

Grove Outhurls Ferrell; Six Extra-Base Blows in Indians' 9 Hits.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Aug. 15 (AP). Lefty Grove outpitched Wes Ferrell today and the Athletics made it two in a row over the Indians. The score was 8 to 7.

Farrell was hammered for two runs in the first inning when Roger Cramer drove a home run into the right field stands after McNair had started the game with a walk.

Tribe Hits for 18 Bases.

The Tribe made nine hits off Grove, including four doubles, a triple and a home run. Bill Cissell led the attack with two doubles and a single. Joe Vosmik accounted for the triple and the homer, the latter coming in the ninth with Averill on base.

19th Victory Annexed by Crowder

Pitcher's Bat Prominent in Attack on Jones, Who Starts Well.

Chicago's One-Run Lead Erased in 6th; Double Play Aids Winners.

By Shirley L. Povich.
(Sports Editor of The Post).

COMISKEY PARK, Chicago, Aug. 15.—Like the chorine who snagged her stocking on the running board and wailed that she got only a run for her money, the White Sox had only a run in 'em today. The Nats had five, and won their seventh straight ball game, 5 to 1.

The Sox got their run out of their system early in the proceedings and then subsided completely before the talented right arm of Al Crowder, who also laid to heavily with his bat, and, all in all, had a very large afternoon, in the course of which he made three hits and hung up his nineteenth victory of the season.

The Nats' net gain for the day, however, was nothing, for the Yankees beat the Browns down in St. Louis, and clung to their 5½-game disadvantage. At that rate, though, the Nats figure to win the pennant by exactly 5½ games.

Sam Jones Smiles.

For five innings the doleful pan of Sad Sam Jones, the reformed Nat, was wreathed in the smile of the winner, but for five innings only. Crowder and the Nats hadn't been able to keep up with the Jones boy and they entered the sixth with a 1-0 deficit. They came out of it with a 3-1 lead.

The difference between the two clubs was that while the White Sox were wasting seven of their nine hits, the Nats were taking heed of one of the first rules in the baseball manual, to wit: It's not how you make the hits, but when you make them. Thus the Nats clustered four of their nine hits in the sixth inning and bunched three more in the eighth and rested comfortably thereafter.

Chisox Fans Doubters.

For five innings, 10,000 Chicago fans were beginning to doubt the stories from the East painting the Nats as the demon ball club that had been knocking over all opposition. Sam Jones was having no difficulties. The only hit he allowed was a single in the fourth when Heinie Manush beat out a bunt. The one-run lead of the Sox loomed larger and larger.

And then Crowder, himself, made the first legitimate hit off Jones, a screaming double down the left field line that opened the sixth. Buddy Myer sent him to third with a bunt past Jones that found all hands safe. Manush scored Crowder with the tying run on a single to center, and sent Myer to third.

Then elements intervened for the Nats. Fred Schulte, in a tragic hitting slump, popped a pitch over the infield. A high wind and a descending sun caught the ball and Appling staggered under it like a drunken man, finally permitting the ball to drop through his glove for a freak single that scored Myer from third, and Manush all the way from first. Schulte was out when he attempted to reach second.

Al Crowder Singles.

Crowder began to plague the Sox again in the eighth when he opened the inning with a clean single to center. Myer and Goslin slammed singles into right that scored Crowder, and Myer scored on Cronin's fly to Haas with the Nats' fifth and last run.

The Sox had threatened to make away with the ball game in the second inning, but Crowder extricated himself from a menacing situation to limit them to one run. With one out, Appling doubled past Bluege, and Jimmy Dykes scored him with a liner to right that was good for three bases. Crowder then hit Rhyne to put two on.

But at this point somebody, probably Dykes, missed the signal for a double steal, and with Dykes failing to move from third, Rhyne was

Jones Stable Scores a Double With Giggling and Signal Man at Hawthorne

Jockey Pool Pilots Pair To Victory

Signal Man Beats Out Postscript in Feature on Card.

War Glory Pressed by Keep Out in Headliner at Spa.

CHICAGO, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Audley Farm, owned by B. B. Jones, of Berryville, Va., sent two juveniles to the post at Hawthorne today and both home-bred youngsters scored, under good rides by Earl Pool.

In the opening dash, Giggling, a daughter of Pompey—Giggles, a first time starter, led the procession all the way, winning by 2 lengths and paying $4.54 in the $2 straight mutuels.

Signal Man in the Chicago Meadows Purse, the top race on the card, also triumphed in the 5½ furlongs dash.

Signal Man, like his stablemate, shot to the front, and had 1½ lengths to spare over Postscript. Dan Sabath was third. Signal Man ran the distance in 1:07 handily, and paid $9.44.

War Glory Spa Winner.

Saratoga Racetrack, N. Y., Aug. 15 (AP).—War Glory, chestnut son of Man o' War, carrying the Glen Riddle silks, followed up his recent victory in the Saranac Handicap with another triumph here this afternoon, when he drove to a hard earned score in the historic Kenner Stakes of a mile and three sixteenths. Keep Out finished second, a half length back in the racing livery of William Ziegler, jr. Catawba Farms' Mr. Khayyam was headed out of the place while saving third position by 6 lengths. Mrs. Dodge Sloane's Caesar's Ghost, surprise winner of the Saratoga Handicap, completed the small but select field.

Jockey Kederis in Comeback.

Coney Island, Aug. 15 (AP).—The return to the winner's circle of the veteran Joe Kederis, a decade back rated among the leading jockeys of the Midwest, far overshadowed all other events on a program given over in its entirety to selling platers and juveniles here this afternoon.

Kederis, who rode to success for "Uncle Dick" Williams until that stormy petrel of the turf was barred by the "powers that be," devoted his time to training horses for various interests after hanging up the tack. Eventually he purchased a horse known as Prose and Poetry and his was known as the one-horse stable until Eddie Naughton stepped in to claim his "pride and joy."

Since that time Joe has been an unhappy individual until the opening of Coney, when he decided to attempt a comeback in the saddle. His application for license approved, he accepted several mounts, but until this afternoon he had failed to grace the winner's circle. His success came astride M. Burton's Flag Flying, which led home Moane Keale, Our Grief and eight other 4-year-olds and upward platers to win the third dash at three-quarters and pay $10.40 for a $2 ticket.

Hollebaugh Winner.

Russ Hollebaugh scored a 75 yesterday to win first prize in a sweepstakes at Kenwood Golf and Country Club.

Other results: Maury Fitzgerald, 76; Bill Houghton, 80; Harlan Will, 80; Harvey Johnson, 80; Carlyle Vernan, 87—7—80; Boyd Tarey, 87—5—82.

Strange as It Seems —By John Hix

M. BOUSSARD, a French officer in the engineering corps at Fort St. Julian, near the historic city of Rosetta, in northern Egypt, gave to the world the key to the then hidden meaning of ancient Egyptian hieroglyphics when in 1799 he stumbled onto an odd-looking slab of black basalt in a trench of the fort. He had found the now famous Rosetta stone, which made possible the deciphering of Egypt's written history.

The stone, although its discoverer had no notion of its vast importance, was preserved by him and turned over to students who saw in its three scripts the key they had long and fruitlessly sought.

The script was divided into three parts: One in Egyptian hieroglyphics, another in demotic writing and the third in Greek. Each of the three parts is a translation of the others. By comparing the known Greek with the unknown Egyptian writings it was possible to translate other Egyptian scripts, which, up to that time, defied translation.

The writing itself is a decree of 195 B. C., honoring Ptolemy V Epiphanes. Hieroglyphics and demotic writings represent different periods in Egyptian history, although both were used when Rome ruled Egypt.

Joan of Arc, French martyr heroine, was not so named because she was of Arc, a French town. She was born in the Domremy district, almost 100 miles from Arc. The family name was d'Arc. In French her given name was Jean or Jeanette.

with Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Hawthorne, August 15.

I wish I was in Dixie. Down there I could at least pick some cotton. And that's more than I picked today. Mike had the dope right from the stables. But it evidently had been laying around too long. To tell the truth several of our horses were caught in the Westrope switches. And did that boy ride? Four winners again today. The Westrope players certainly made some unnatural prices. Take Victorium, for instance. Would have been 5 to 1 with another rider, but won for the fair-haired boy at a $3.94 mutuel. If you are with me or agin' me, I'm taking these for tomorrow. BILL.

First Race—Her Gold, an old friend, may show the way home to this group of wild fillies. She closed fast last out and I see no reason for a miss tomorrow. Esperanto figures close. Miss Flip for the show end.

Second Race—Rummond set a fast pace in that recent effort and weakened. I expect sufficient improvement tomorrow to bring a purse home. Monks Bela looks like the one to beat. Biltmore for the rest.

Third Race—Merry Chatter gets in this test with only 103 pounds and thus rigged may come romping to the main pay-off. No mistakes can be made, however. Aegis will be sent to the post a fit horse and ready to give a keen battle. Chat Eagle is a possible surprise.

Fourth Race—Sarazen II gets the Bennings call in this. He has only a slight margin over Gallop Along and Blackstrap. This looks like a hoss race. You can have the rest of the field.

Fifth Race—Don Manuel has done it for me before and gets another opportunity here. Baby Stare was scratched yesterday with this race in mind. Might be close. Swift Sport for the show end.

Sixth Race—Now that Surety won a maiden race and then came back to beat some fair racers, we must be on our guard. This race holds a lot of speed, but he may be the one to score. Crap Shooter has been groomed for this kind of a test. Burning Feet may be close.

Seventh Race—Don Tasker just failed to last for me the other day. May stick it out here to gather the chief onions. Oaten, should Westrope ride, will be dangerous. Lahor to show.

Eighth Race—Rowdy Boy appears the best suited in this cheap field. Anita Ormont figures to do the No. 1 chasing. Comet for the show and may be closer.

Williams Team in Workout.

Wash B. Williams players will assemble today at 5 o'clock to practice on the North Ellipse diamond.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—VICTORIUM, $3.94, $3.00, $2.70; LE BRUYERE, $6.10, $5.04; ROYAL PURCHASE, $11.62.

VICTORIUM, steadied along early while racing into contention and assuming command when ready, drew out easily. LE BRUYERE saved ground on the turns, held stubbornly when challenged, and though tiring badly in drive, outgamed ROYAL PURCHASE. The latter came with a rush on the inside and raced into third position right at the end. ONDOTT was allowed to loaf early, made up many lengths when urged in the stretch, to finish strongest of all. ST. LOUIS tired after racing strongly to the final furlong. THREAT also weakened after racing forwardly entire trip. LADYKIN was always far back. DROMBO probably needed the race.

THIRD RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:07½. Off at once. Winner, Sunshine Stable's b. f. (4), by Sun Briar—Teapot. Trained by E. J. Beauchamp. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24 4-5, 0:49 1-5, 1:13 4-5, 1:39 4-5, 1:47.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SUN TEATIME, $12.82, $7.86, $4.80; PHANTOM ROCK, $21.80, $7.46; REVERBERATE, $3.32.

SUN TEATIME, forwardly under slight restraint, got on even terms with PHANTOM ROCK at the final turn and, continuing gamely, just lasted. PHANTOM ROCK saved all possible ground, came again after being headed, but was not quite good enough. REVERBERATE raced evenly the entire trip and, though tiring near the end, had enough left to hold BARNEY SEXTON safe. BARNEY SEXTON tried to bear out at the first turn, again entering the back stretch, and failed to improve position when straight again. BLACK BULL closed stoutly. HEADS UP tired.

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 3:31½. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. H. McIlvain's ch. f. Two-dollar mutuels paid—DARK MIST, $8.36, $5.72, $3.80; ESKIMO, $9.94, $5.72; PEACE LADY, $3.58.

DARK MIST, under restraint early, raced around HARAMZADA when ready at the final turn and was never in serious trouble thereafter. ESKIMO was forced back at the far turn, reached quickly and responding well to the stretch, held the rush of PEACE LADY safe. The latter, slow to get going and losing ground, made up good ground, but was too far out of it. GAY BIRD also closed strongly under punishment. HARAMZADA tired badly in the final three-sixteenths. BETTY FARRELL and SYDKA retired after 6 furlongs.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. The Chicago Meadows. Purse, $800; allowance. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:57. Off at 4:04½. Winner, Audley Farm's ch. c. (2), by High Cloud—Sister Ship. Trained by J. F. Patterson. Value to winner, $625; second, $100; third, $50; fourth, $25. Time, 0:24, 0:48 1-5, 1:00 1-5, 1:07.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SIGNAL MAN, $9.44, $4.84, $3.84; POST SCRIPT, $3.88, $2.86; DAN SABATH, $7.44.

SIGNAL MAN, alert at the start and sprinting into a good early lead, saved ground on the turns and continuing gamely won with much in reserve. POST SCRIPT, always in nearest pursuit, responded well to hard urging, closed a good gap, but was overmatched. DAN SABATH, tractious again at the gate, broke well and raced gamely in the stretch to outfinish COFLIER. The latter was in tight quarters early, then weakened slightly when clear. LIGHT UP and THOMASVILLE dropped back after 3 furlongs.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:25½. Off at 4:27. Winner, Mrs. R. T. Flippen's ch. m. Two-dollar mutuels paid—TELA, $5.82, $2.82, $2.36; AL NEIMAN, $2.78, $2.46; ISLAM, $6.34.

TELA, closer up than usual, and responding gamely when ready at the final turn, raced around AL NEIMAN at the stretch head and drew out decisively. AL NEIMAN saved much ground under good riding, held on with determination to the finish. ISLAM was steadied when put to a drive. ISLAM was sent up with a rush entering the back stretch with a loss of ground and tired badly in the final 3 furlongs. OLD JUDGE swung wide at the final turn. ROCK POINT tired. DURVA was eased up when beaten off.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse $800; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won driving; place, same. Went to post at 4:49½. Off at once. Winner, W. H. Harris' b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—FOXLAND HALL, $12.36, $4.88, $3.16; HER ELEGANCE, $7.44, $4.18; INDIAN BOY, $2.94.

FOXLAND HALL, steadied along early, came over a bit sharply when taking the lead, continued gamely when straight again and outfinished HER ELEGANCE. The latter raced evenly in second position, took a momentary lead at the stretch head, and was tiring slightly when interfered with. INDIAN BOY saved ground while under slight pressure and gave way readily when headed in the final three-sixteenths. ALADDIN'S DREAM raced forwardly and had no excuses. UPON made up ground. HELEN BAB would not extend herself early. DODY had some early foot.

Shady Oak Wants Games.

A game Sunday at the Shady Oak, Md., diamond is sought by the recently reorganized Shady Oak baseball team. Call Manager Bateman between 5 and 6 p. m. at Capital Heights, 504-W.

The Bats Have It—Not the Batons

Phil Lampkin (left), director of the Fox Theater Orchestra, and Bill Strickland, leader of the Chevy Chase Lake music-makers, going through the preliminary motions that sent the rival bands into action on the diamond yesterday with the championship of the Musicians Union going to the winning team.

Billy Strickland's Fiddlers, or Chevy Chase Lake Orchestra, packed too much of a punch for Phil Lampkin's Fox Theater Horn Tooters, and the latter lost a 17-to-1 decision in an alleged baseball game, committed on the South Ellipse yesterday. The fray went seven innings, or six too many for the boys, who were staggering at the finish.

Jimmy Taylor hurled for the Chevy Chase musicians and turned in a nice effort. The hitting of Carl Van Sickler, Dave Legum, and Jack McCloskey featured the winners' attack. The victory gave Chevy Chase the championship of the Musicians' Union.

Thereafter Crowder was given brilliant support. Bluege started a fast double play after Simmons singled in the fourth, and when Dykes doubled to left field in the seventh following Appling's single, Cronin took Manush's throw in, and with a beautiful heave to the plate, nipped Appling at home.

With two out in the next inning, Swanson singled to right and attempted to go to second only to find Goslin's throw awaiting him in Cronin's glove, and the last White Sox threat expired.

Emerson Eleven Lists 10 Contests

Only Two D. C. Schools on Schedule With Four Games Out of Town.

An ambitious 10-game schedule, including games with only two local schools, was announced for the Emerson Institute eleven yesterday by Head Coach H. W. Sanborn. The card includes four games away from home.

Efforts are being made to arrange a suitable date with the Charlottesville fives for a game to be played in Washington. If successful, it means that the Emerson gridders will play the toughest schedule ever attempted by a local school.

September 20—National Training School (there); 23, Woodberry Forest (there); 29, Roosevelt (there); October 7, Greenbrier M. A. (home); 14, Harrisonburg Academy (home); 21, Massanutten M. A. Rasslers Warned To Stick to Work

Garibaldi - Zaharias Told to Stop Griping at Referee Tomorrow.

Though Gino Garibaldi and George Zaharias can eye-gouge and otherwise maim each other to their hearts' content tomorrow night, both have been advised that referee baiting will not be tolerated.

Matchmaker Joe Turner was authority for this announcement yesterday.

"I'm paying those fellows to wrestle and that's what they've got to do," Turner declared, "If they mind their own business they'll have no time for argument with the third man in the ring.

"This goes particularly for Garibaldi. In the past he's made it a habit to gripe at the referee to such an extent that the cash customers have complained. If he doesn't lay off tomorrow night, he's going to draw a suspension from Washington that will do him no good."

Braves Use All Hits to Down Cubs, 2-1

Cubs Outhit Foes, 10 to 5, But Drop Game Back of 2d Place Bucs.

BOSTON, Aug. 15 (AP).—The Braves used all of their five hits off Chicago Guy Bush in scoring runs today and defeated the Cubs, 2 to 1, in the series opener. The defeat dropped Chicago a full game behind the idle Pittsburgh Pirates in their second-place duel.

Up to the ninth inning Bush had given only two hits in a struggle with Ben Cantwell and the score was deadlocked, although the slim Boston flinger had yielded 10 blows and the Braves had made three errors behind him. Then Buck Jordan connected for a single after one was out, Wally Berger advanced him to second with another base hit and Randy Moore slammed a double to right center that sent the winning run home.

Netmen Decide 62 Newport Matches

Vines Leads Favorite in Advance; Several Enter Fourth Round.

By Bill King.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 15 (AP).—Running a day behind schedule, the unwieldy field in the Newport Casino Tennis Tournament was forced to do double duty today to reduce its membership from 82 to 20 and bring the high-class competition to the boiling point.

The opening play, held up for 24 hours by yesterday's rain, ran out without upsets and the only result that caused anything more than mild surprise was the straight-set elimination of Jack Tidball, the intercollegiate champion, by H. G. N. Lee, the young Britisher who topped the short foreign seedings list.

Officials Prod Entrants.

Ted Avory, other seeded English player, managed to keep a bracket ahead of Lee all day, as frantic tournament officials prodded the players into completing a total of 62 matches and fill 12 of the brackets in the round of 16. During this court orgy, seven of England's nine entries went down to defeat.

Two victories placed Ellsworth Vines, the national champion striving for his third consecutive Casino victory, in the third round. Seven other players, including the seeded Sidney Wood, Gregory Mangin, Johnny Van Ryn and Lee, as well as the unranked George Lott, America's Davis Cup doubles ace, Bryan Grant, the stubby Atlanta boy, and R. Norris Williams, kept company with the lanky Californian titlist.

Vines, engaging in singles for the first time since his collapse against Frederick J. Perry in the Davis Cup interzone finals with England, was not too impressive getting under way. He drew Russell Dana, 58-year-old Pawtucket veteran, in the first round and had to do considerable running to get past the grey-beard, whose only claim to tennis fame is his 40-odd-year record as a Casino competitor.

Good Repute.

WHEN all things are going right, and we know success' thrills, man should keep his credit bright, he should pay up all his bills; he should pay his bills when due, pay the verger for his pew, pay the dealer for his glue, and the druggist for his pills. He should go from shop to shop with a roll of bills in hand, paying for the soda pop and the sugar mixed with sand; pay up for the fountain pens and the plasters for his wens, and the pups and setting hens, and the quinces, fresh or canned. He should pay up all he owes, dodging or omitting naught; pay up for the furbelows that his wife and daughters bought; if he lets his credit rust, if he is not safe to trust, he'll be viewed with deep disgust by the merchants, sore distraught. When the evil times arrive, and depression is a bore, and it's hard to keep alive, with the wolf around the door, spotless credit is a boon that will cheer the sad gassoon, when he'd buy a pantaloon or a plug hat at the store. For the smiling merchant cries, "You may have whate'er you wish, have a pan or baking pies, or a rasp for scaling fish; you may have a patent churn, or ah andsome Go'hic urn, or some incense that will burn, or a useful pyrex dish. For when better times were here, and the outlook was sublime, you were certain to appear with your bundle, right on time; and you paid up like a gent, every kopeck, every cent, and you raised no sad lament, couched in prose or wailing rhyme."

New Yorker Today

By Mark Barron.

New York.—To escape from the bricks, concrete and steel of New York each person has his fancy, limited only by his purse. Yet for 4 cents you can get as far away from the atmosphere of Manhattan as you can with many dollars, for that is all it costs to take the ferry to Hoboken.

I am not championing, now, the advantages of the many German beer gardens, which are rightly famous, for you stroll past these, and past the wharves and continue onward for a few blocks until you come to inclined streets. Walking up these you are in a different land: the houses are those square, ugly but homelike dwellings of the American nineties; and beyond these are cloistered homes that seem far away from the rush of New York.

Dreamer's Paradise.

At the top of the bluff is the old Stevens Institute of Technology; and the ancestral home of the Stevens family, rambling, cupolaed and gabled, still stands there, commanding a view of New York, the bay, and, looking northward, the Hudson that is unrivaled.

You can sit on a bench, unworried by crowds, for there are none, see the liners come in, tugs straining, and, in fancy, watch the Hudson and the Half Moon sailing toward the Catskills.

The world is remote, the panorama of the world's greatest metropolis lies before you—and all for 4 cents. Eight cents, round trip.

Alarm-Clock Tim.

An unusual occupation is that of Timothy O'Malley. He's a waker-upper. He works for one of those for-men-only 25-cents-a-night hotels on the Bowery. The guests have to vacate their rooms by 9 a. m. Tim makes the rounds every morning tapping on each door with a rubber mallet. If the hammer doesn't do the trick, Tim invades the room and tosses out the guest personally.

A Fifth avenue restaurant is equipped with automatic waiters. In the center of your table is a small elevator shaft. You write out your order, shoot it down on the elevator and back up comes your dinner. The idea originated with one of the French kings who was annoyed because servants were always bounding in and out of doors at inopportune moments.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. W. A. Evans.

Twinning Gone Wrong.

These deformed calves that carry around an extra leg and deformed chickens that sport an extra wing are in reality twins. Instead of one calf the specimen is two calves, or one and a remnant of a twin.

Man is subject to the same kind of congenital deformity. Every now and then a three-legged baby is born. The extra leg may be near where a leg ought to be or it may be in some place where no leg is ever expected to be. Such babies are not individuals. In each instance they start out to be twins. Two embryos were growing side by side. There was not room enough and they began to crowd. A part of one grew over some part of the other, destroying it as it grew. In the illustration cited the extra leg is the only visible part of the overrun twin to survive. The specimen is merely an illustration of twinning gone wrong.

Twins like the Siamese twins, in which two individuals develop completely except for some unimportant parts, illustrate the same type of twinning gone wrong in the same way. The difference is that in the case of the Siamese twins there was very little overlapping of the developing embryos.

Most of the examples of congenital monstrosities are due to causes other than twinning gone wrong. The plan of development of the embryo is very complicated. It is not only complex as to its parts, but also as to its time schedule. If a part develops exactly according to the structural plan, but develops too late or too early, it throws the machine out of gear just as much as though the plan had otherwise gone wrong.

To guard against this the embryo is well protected in many ways. In fish the protection is far less perfect. Examine the specimens in a fish hatchery and note there are thousands of deformed fish—minnows with two heads, two tails and all manner of other deformities. While twinning gone wrong explains the duplication of legs, arms and even bodies, it does not explain all the other deformities or even the majority of them.

Why do some babies have six fingers? Suppose we answer by asking, why five fingers? The reply is that the plan calls for five buds on the end of the arm, each growing out of a finger. But that does not answer, why five. The only answer is, that was the inherited plan.

Injuries Kill Alan Winslow, First U. S. Ace

Decorated American Flier Succumbs to Hurts in Canada.

Alan Francis Winslow, 37, America's first war-time ace, a diplomat and writer, died yesterday in Ottawa, Canada, of injuries received in a fall last Saturday.

He fell from the third-floor room of a hotel when he became faint and went to the window to open it. His ankles were fractured and he received internal injuries.

Winslow left the Sheffield Scientific School at Yale University in July, 1917, going abroad to join the French Foreign Legion. He enlisted as a private in the Aviation Division.

He was sent to the front as a member of the 152d French Squadron at Corcieux. In February, 1918, he was transferred to the Ninety-fourth Aero Squadron of the American Army.

Shot Down Plane.

Lieut. Winslow, in April, 1918, shot down one of two German planes, the first German airplane shot down by an American Army officer.

He received the Croix de Guerre with palm and later was decorated with the Distinguished Service Cross by the American Government.

He was shot down July 31, 1916, while commanding the Ninety-fourth Squadron and was made a prisoner in Germany for a year. His arm, hit during his last encounter, was amputated.

In July, 1919, he returned to France as aid to Brig. Gen. William Mitchell. He returned after the war and entered the American Diplomatic Service in Prague, Berne and Mexico City.

He married Rosamond Castle, daughter of the former Undersecretary of State and Mrs. William R. Castle, jr. Mrs. Winslow died of pneumonia two years ago. Since then the Winslow children have been with Mr. and Mrs. Castle. They are now in Hawaii.

Published Experiences.

Last year a weekly magazine published Winslow's war experience diary under the title of "No Parachutes."

After five years with the State Department Winslow joined the Pan-American Airways. He flew north with Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh, who are surveying an air route to Europe, and was on his way back to New York when the accident occurred.

National Convention in Chicago Votes Support at First Session.

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—A resolution pledging the support of the 500,000 members of the Knights of Columbus Order to the policies of President Roosevelt was adopted as delegates opened the fifty-first annual convention today.

Presented by Supreme Secretary William J. McGinley, of New Haven, Conn., and seconded by Mayor Kelly, of Chicago, the resolution said:

"No emergency that has ever confronted the Nation has demanded greater sacrifice, more unselfish devotion to duty, or such universal cooperation."

Fifteen hundred delegates attended the opening session. They were welcomed to the city by Mayor Kelly, a member of the order, and the Right Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago.

Wheat Plan Told In Clarke County

Planting Small Crops Is Called Essential for Good Prices.

Berryville, Va., Aug. 15 (Spl.).—W. I. Thomas, of Washington, who is in the county to organize Clarke County Wheat Production Control Association, spoke to a large number of farmers at the courthouse.

He urged them to sign a contract and stand by the Government, and not to labor under the delusion that because the price of wheat jumped up this summer it will be the same next year.

Mr. Thomas showed that the raise was due to a shortage laid to weather conditions. He expected to see wheat next year down to 53 cents a bushel, he said. Clarke County's allottment is 109,637 bushels.

He insisted that to conform to the Government's plan, which was made to help the farmer, there must be cooperation and unselfishness and absolute honesty. If it works as planned it will increase the farmer's buying power greatly, he added.

J. M. H. Clagett, prominent county farmer and stock dealer, presided at the meeting, and Prof. Beard, of the Agricultural High School, of the county assisted Mr. Thomas with Clarke County data.

Mr. Thomas said that of the 28 or 30 cents a bushel cash benefit the farmers who signed the contract would get, 3 cents would be taken out as expenses for running the county organization.

Gangster, "Put on the Spot" In Love Feud, Bounces Back

Chicago, Aug. 15 (AP).—Back in Al Capone's heyday gangsters killed each other over the spoils of liquor warfare and kept mum about it. Today an underworld affair of the heart precipitated an attempted assassination, a gun battle between police and hoodlums and furnished a complete story of the whole thing from a captured gunman.

The man who violated the underworld's traditional code of silence and talked was John Tenuto. The girl he named as the "cause of it all" was Frieda Piatt, 26. Vincent Minneci, 28, was the man who was "put on the spot"—and got off it.

Vincent is a cousin of Leo Minneci, who is held with Mrs. Eleanor Jarman for the wanton killing during a petty holdup of Gustave Hoeh, elderly merchant.

Miss Piatt, who is being held with a companion, Julia Schneider in whose apartment the attempted assassination occurred, denied having any role in the affair.

The Old, Old Story.

Her part, as related by Tenuto, who is on parole from the State Penitentiary, was that of a fickle woman who tired of Minneci's affections and contrived to have him removed by a former sweetheart to whom she had transferred her love.

Louis Bangora, 25, said by officials to be a comparatively obscure Westside hoodlum, was named by Tenuro as the former sweetheart who attempted to execute his rival. Police sought him.

Tenuto told how Bangora had called a council of war during which Minneci's death sentence was returned.

"He called us into a poolroom last night," said Tenuto. "He told us about this fellow Minneci. He said he wanted to give him the works and that his girl would help him. She was going to call Minneci over to her house and then she was going to call us and let us know at the poolroom.

"About 3 o'clock Bangora got the call. We hopped into two cars and went over to the Schneider girl's house. Bangora's girl let us in. Then Minneci jumped out of the window and we let him have it."

A police squad came upon the scene just as Bangora and his accomplices were "letting him have it," but without the desired results.

From the window through which Minneci had leaped came bursts of gunfire. Minneci dodged down an alley, unscathed. Later, he sought the safety of a police station.

Police met the gunmen as they emerged from the Schneider home and scrambled into their two waiting automobiles. A terrific fusillade ensued. The underworld mediators of domestic affairs escaped, all but Tenuto who was pitched from the running board of one of the machines as it swerved abruptly.

It was not the first time Bangora had employed bullets in solving a love affair, police said. Two years ago he was arrested on a charge of shooting a 16-year-old girl. The girl identified Bangora as her assailant and later repudiated her testimony.

Machine Guns Guard Scene of Lynching Quiz

Barbed Wire Mesh Used With 150 Troopers at Tuscaloosa Court.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 15 (U.P.).—A special grand jury today heard details of the lynching of two Negroes Sunday, from a third Negro, who escaped the mob's attack with three bullet wounds.

Immediately after he had testified, National Guardsmen rushed the surviving Negro, Elmore Clark, 28, to an unannounced destination for safe-keeping.

The grand jury conducted its inquiry in a courthouse surrounded by barbed wire entanglements and a detachment of 150 National Guardsmen. Troops guarded the county jail with three machine guns and automatic rifles. Muttering crowds on downtown streets created an air of tension.

Accused of Killing Girl.

The three Negroes, who were snatched by a dozen masked men from deputy sheriffs taking them to Birmingham for safe-keeping Sunday, were accused of slaying an 18-year-old white girl, Miss Vaudine Maddox, on May 31.

Bullet-riddled bodies of two of them, Dan Pippen, jr., 18, and A. T. Hardin, 16, were found handcuffed together beside a highway in an isolated section between Tuscaloosa and Birmingham hours after they had been seized.

When thorough search failed to disclose any trace of Clark, officers developed the theory that he had been released. He was found in a Negro farm house a few miles away from the scene last night when a Tuscaloosa Negro doctor was called to treat his wounds.

Plays Dead, Escapes.

Sheriff Fayette Shamblin said Clark told him he escaped the hail of bullets that killed his two companions by crouching beneath the falling body of Pippen. He "played dead" until the lynch band left then forced off the handcuff that bound him to his dead companions and made his way to the shanty where he was found.

State's Attorney General Thomas E. Knight, jr., and County Solicitor Edward Degraffenreid conducted the grand jury inquiry today behind closed doors, promising to "sift this deplorable affair to the bottom."

Mrs. Schrodt's Death Blamed Upon Jealousy

Man Held After Former Actress Is Found Lifeless in Their Home.

Jealousy as a possible motive for the suspected murder of Mrs. Ella M. Schrodt, 58, 3906 Rhode Island avenue, Brentwood, Md., was being investigated last night by Prince Georges County police. John C. Mulligan, 39, alleged to be her common-law husband, is being held for investigation.

At the request of State's Attorney Alan Bowie, an inquest, scheduled for last night, was postponed until August 29. The postponement was requested, after several witnesses had been sworn, on the grounds that the State had not had sufficient time in which to prepare its case.

Those sworn in included Mulligan, Haden G. Heronimus and his wife, Lena H. Heronimus. Heronimus and his wife, next door neighbors, found Mrs. Schrodt's body when summoned by Mulligan at 3 a. m. yesterday.

Mulligan, according to Justice of the Peace Robert Joyce, acting coroner, quarreled with Mrs. Schrodt Monday afternoon because of her "drinking with friends while he was at work."

The friends, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Dyer and their two small children, of Cottage City, were visiting Mrs. Schrodt, a former actress, Monday night. The were heard to leave about 10 p. m. About 3 a. m. yesterday neighbors, summoned by Mulligan, found the woman lying lifeless on a bed.

Mopping Clue Found.

Dr. Henry Nalley, of Mount Rainier, summoned by Mulligan, said Mrs Schrodt died from a severe gash across the right temple. She was lying across the bed with her arms across her body, Dr. Nalley related. There was no sign of blood, although the gash must have bled freely, he said.

A large ring about the floor and carpet, according to Prince Georges County Policeman Claude Reese, indicated a recent mopping process. A rag was found in the kitchen which was believed to be the cloth used. On the door facing in the kitchen, and on the floor, were small bloodstains. Bloodstains were also found on Mulligan's clothes.

The only instrument that could have been used in striking the woman, Reese said, was a liquor bottle found in the kitchen. In the basement were more bottles and 6 half-gallon jars of alleged whisky. This resulted in a charge of illegal possession being placed against Mulligan.

Results of Autopsy.

An autopsy, performed by Dr. Nalley, revealed that the woman died from a cerebral hemorrage and a fractured skull, caused by a blow on the side of the head.

"Mrs. Schrodt went to bed and I laid down on the glider on the front porch," Mulligan told police. "I awoke about 3 a. m. to find Mrs. Schrodt unconscious."

Mrs. Schrodt, a native of Houston, Tex., was employed for many years as an investigator in a local jewelry store, but left its employ last January. Mulligan is employed as a collector for the same establishment.

At the age of 14 she began her theater career. Her husband, last heard of in Baltimore in 1925, was said to have also been on the stage.

Budget Cuts Again Urged For District

110 Employes Lose Jobs; Two Departments Face Difficulties.

District Auditor Daniel J. Donovan today will call upon department heads for their 1935 estimates, warning that economy again is the watchword.

Although several months late with the call, because of the failure of the Budget Bureau to issue instructions, the auditor demands the estimates be in his hands by August 25, so the economy committee and the Commissioners may finish their trimming in time to submit them to the budget director by September 15.

Last year department estimates were restricted to almost a maintenance-only scale, and it is expected a similar limitation will be applied this year. District revenues upon which the 1935 budget will be based are likely to be less than last year, because of the reduction in the tax rate and the 10 per cent discount on water rents.

May Cut $12,000,000.

Should the 1935 estimates suffer the same fate of the 1934 estimates, $12,000,000 will be lopped off between the time they leave the Commissioners and go through Congress and the Budget Bureau.

The Budget Bureau cut the 1934 estimates of $44,915,000 to $39,743,270 and sent them along to Congress, where the conference report carrying $39,239,147 emerged too late for passage. The new Congress finally appropriated $33,673,334.

Additional appropriations of $2,135,000 were authorized from the gasoline and water rent surpluses but these were made subject to approval by the Budget Bureau, which has not been accorded.

May Furlough More.

Because of the uncertainity of these appropriations, the highway and the water departments will be confronted with a difficult problem in drafting 1935 estimates. Both departments are facing the loss of several hundred employes because of lack of funds.

The highway department yesterday released 110 employes, principally laborers and truck drivers, and will be compelled to furlough as many more unless the Budget Bureau approves the gasoline fund surplus expenditures.

Eating It as It Should Be Eaten

Postmaster General James A. Farley serves watermelon to newspaper scribes and shows 'em how to handle a generous sample in most approved "dive-in" manner.

Faux Pas by Farley as Melon Carver Offset by Biting Etiquette.

Postmaster General James A. Farley cut the melon yesterday—but it wasn't the patronage fruit.

The melon came as a present from E. B. Dunlap, Georgia Democrat, of Gainesville. It was served at the conclusion of the Postmaster General's press conference. Right after the last question from some 20 reporters, Farley called for the melon. They carried it in, a 74-pounder, fresh from the patch. Then Farley showed he knew nothing at all about cutting melons—that is, watermelons.

He took the knife, sword-like. Everybody who's bothered with a melon knows that's the wrong approach for the initial stab. The blade should be held dagger-like.

Then the genial host made the unheard-of error of cutting the melon widthwise, rather than across its length. From this point, Farley blundered into his third melon-whacking mistake. He began to whittle at the fruit instead of slicing.

All the while, Harley Branch, executive assistant to the Postmaster General, and former city editor of the Atlanta Journal, a man who knows his melons, looked on with pain.

"General," he said, "you certainly don't know a whole lot about cutting watermelons."

"Don't I?" retorted Farley, as he began handing out large pieces to the ladies and gentlemen of the press.

Somebody chimed in that he knew the most important thing—getting the melon distributed, which every one agreed was just the thing Farley should know.

1,000 Women Out to Implant Eagle in Homes

Doorbells Rung, Pledge Cards Presented in Campaign.

An army of 1,000 women will set out today to enroll Washington housewives under the banner of the Blue Eagle.

With the determination of the most aggressive silk stocking salesmen they will ring doorbells, demand to be heard and present cards representing a promise to "cooperate in reemployment by supporting and patronizing employers and workers who are members of NRA."

The feminine army maneuvers under the leadership of Miss Etta L. Taggart, lieutenant general of the local NRA campaign, and Mrs. Charles H. Blair. Other women leaders are Mrs. Elizabeth Sullivan, major in charge of the citizens association group, and Mrs. George Ricker, major in charge of the business canvass.

Business Drive Planned.

The women were organized yesterday afternoon in a meeting at Board of Trade headquarters at which James G. Yaden, colonel in charge of the canvassing unit, spoke. The women will follow the house-to-house canvass with one through business establishments.

The educational bureau of the Washington NRA campaign at Board of Trade headquarters, in the Star Building, was swamped with inquiries regarding codes, as was the Chamber of Commerce.

Business men are reminded by Raymond J. Walter, who is in charge of the bureau, that only eleven codes, of hundreds submitted, have been approved so far. They relate to these trades: Advertising, specialties, ice cream, fluid milk, knitted outerwear, oil burners, optical, paint, varnish and lacquer, printing, toys and playthings, retail lumber, lumber products, building materials and building specialties.

Harry C. Davis, president of the Independent Taxi Owners' Association, sent a telegram to President Roosevelt yesterday, in which he charged that taxicabs in Washington displaying the Blue Eagle "are apparently not complying with the provisions of the President's reemployment agreement."

National Code Urged.

Davis said his company was sponsoring a country-wide code through the National Association of Taxicab Owners as requested by Malcolm Muir, NRA highway transportation administrator.

Taximen who attended a meeting at the District Building Monday night were advised by Miss Taggart and Yaden to adopt a code of their own, rather than try to follow a national system. They also were told to sign the President's agreement, get a Blue Eagle and thrash out their individual problems later with the local NRA.

Operators of large taxi companies point out it is simple enough for an independent driver to obtain a Blue Eagle, as he is his own employer.

The taximen will meet again at 8 p. m. tomorrow at the District Building with the view to organizing a board of trade, so that rates may be increased and zones changed. The Diamond Co., largest taxicab concern in the city, will be invited to participate, T. W. Fowler, organizer of the meeting, said. Representatives of the Diamond Co. were invited to the first meeting, but did not attend, Fowler added.

330 Drivers Get Eagles.

A number of taxi drivers were reported to have obtained Blue Eagles yesterday at the Ben Franklin Postoffice. The total number of Blue Eagles issued for the day was 330, bringing the grand total to 7,098.

The Hotel and Restaurant Employes Alliance of Washington asked District Commissioners to deny permanent licenses to sell beer to any establishment not displaying the Blue Eagle, and the license revoked from any establishment losing its emblem.

First day sales of NRA stamps was estimated to have aggregated more than $1,000,000 yesterday. Many of these sales represented advance orders. Sale of the stamps was opened with a ceremony at the city post office, at which Postmaster General James A. Farley sold the first sheet of 100 stamps to Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA administrator.

Relief Work Expenditures Here Increase

764 New Applications Boost City's Total to 14,653 Families.

Expenditures for unemployment relief in the District reached a new high last week and exceeded by $2,323.78 the $50,000 weekly maximum set by the emergency relief committee of the Board of Public Welfare, Leroy A. Halbert, director, reported yesterday to the committee.

New applications during the week ended last Friday totaled 764, only 1 of which was rejected. These brought the number of families under care to 14,653.

The committee discussed reorganization proposals suggested by the Federal Relief Administration. No decision was reached and action was postponed until Friday.

Despite increasing the weekly budget for direct relief by about $6,000 within the last few weeks, there has been no appreciable gain in the $20 a month average for each family, Halbert said.

Expenditures for unemployment aid since July 1 have amounted to $299,835.35, of which $250,925.55 was paid for work done on made jobs. Administrative expenses have amounted to $17,348.70.

Robert J. Rothstein, 1432 Montague street northwest, was elected president of the National Dental Laboratories Association at the annual convention in Chicago, it was announced here yesterday.

William C. Babbitt, also of Washington, former assistant manager of the trade association department, United States Chamber of Commerce, was named managing director.

C. C. C. Men to Clear Denver Flood Debris

The enlistment of two new companies in the reforestation army for the purpose of cleaning up the debris left by recent floods near Denver, has been authorized by Conservation Corps officials, it was learned yesterday.

The new companies, containing 200 men apiece, will be recruited in Colorado. Their enrollment was authorized after the Governor of Colorado and the Mayor of Denver had asked for help. The Labor Department is selecting the men.

William P. Lee, 50, of 1002 E street northwest, injured his right arm yesterday when he fell from his automobile in front of 518 Twentieth street northwest. He was taken to Gallinger Hospital in a Fire Rescue Squad ambulance.

W. H. Rapley's Wife Seriously Hurt by Blast

Gasoline Stove Explodes at Summer Home of Theater Owner.

An exploding gasoline stove in the summer home of William H. Rapley, owner of the National Theater, yesterday inflicted severe injuries on Mrs. Rapley and the family chauffeur, Julian Praveres, according to word from Keene, N. H., last night.

Praveres is believed to be the more seriously burned. Mrs. Rapley was given medical treatment for painful burns to her arms and hands, but her condition is not considered serious. Mr. Rapley escaped unhurt.

Praveres was cleaning a gasoline stove in preparation for closing the summer cottage and the family's return to Washington. Fire quickly spread following the explosion, but firemen from nearby towns succeeded in saving the main portion of the building.

Between $200 and $300 in Mr. Rapley's coat pocket was lost as well as a locket of Mrs. Rapley valued at $1,000. Praveres was taken to the Memorial Hospital at Brattleboro, Vt.

Cause of the explosion was not immediately determined.

Hoist Horse

Old Dobbin's Resentment to Machine Age Changes After Ditch Fall.

Old Dobbin has been gallantly struggling against the odds of machinery for a long time. He has resented its intrusion without complaint. Yesterday he was thankful for the queer contraptions of this modern age.

Old Dobbin is a horse owned by August Voigt, a contractor of the 4400 block of Grant road northwest. Yesterday he was plodding at a construction job in the 500 block of Conduit road northwest, when he slipped and fell in a deep ditch. He landed flat on his back and discovered he was unable to move.

Old Dobbin had visions of the fate that befalls such faithful animals when they become helpless and had just about resigned himself to the executioner's gun when he heard the screech of No. 1 Fire Rescue Squad siren—one of those newfangled devices.

He soon found that block and tackle had lifted him from the ditch and he hobbled away, showing less resentment to those horseless fire wagons.

District Phone Bills Are Cut by Snooping Rule

Method by Which Private Calls Are Detected Is Proving Effective.

The District Commissioners' telephone snooping order is proving a success—financially, at least.

Last month it saved the District $380.20 on its telephone bill, as compared with July, 1932, according to Walter E. Kern, electrical engineer. Calls last month totaled 33,436 and cost $1,470.80 as compared with 46,077 and $1,851.01 in the corresponding period last year.

The telephone snooping order was issued about six weeks ago by the Commissioners upon recommendation of the economy committee to halt the excessive use of District phones for nonofficial calls. Operators were instructed to listen in on outside calls and record the number calling and the number called.

Upon receiving reports on these calls, Kern notifies department heads if the number is excessive. Certain phones in each office have also been designated for interoffice calls only.

Several months ago the Commissioners ordered pay stations placed in all police precinct headquarters to reduce the unofficial calls from this quarter. The result was a saving of about $60 a month.

Truck Death of Boy Held as Accidental

A verdict of accidental death was returned by a coroner's jury yesterday investigating the death of Alphonso Grazano, 11, of 106 Quincy place, crushed to death Monday beneath the wheels of a Potomac Electric Power Co. tower truck.

Graziano was said to have been playing on the truck and released the brakes. He fell beneath the wheels in attempting to jump off. The accident occurred on First street near Quincy place.

Man Accused of Assault Is Held for Grand Jury

Charged with criminal assault upon Ruth E. Bellamy, 26, of the Dodge Hotel, Arthur W. Adams, 33, of the Westchester Apartments, waived preliminary hearing in Police Court yesterday and was held for grand jury action.

The assault is alleged to have taken place on a lonely road, where police say Adams drove Miss Bellamy after offering to take her home from a moonlight excursion. Adams pleaded not guilty and was released on $1,500 bond.

Two Hold Up Motorist, Rob Him in Takoma

John Fayde, 1008 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, was held up and robbed of $150 in Takoma Park last night.

Fayde told police he was driving along Ray road when he was halted by a car drawn up in the middle of the highway. A white man beside the car asked him for a trouble light and then drew a pistol and ordered him from the car. A colored man then stepped out of the other car and went through Fayde's pockets, taking $150.

Woman's Room Robbed.

Ellen Martin, of 1318 Eleventh street northwest, reported to police yesterday that $55 in currency and a diamond ring valued at $100 were stolen from a trunk in her room.

Lunchroom Robbed of $30.

Thieves obtained $30 from the cash drawer in a lunchroom at 912 Fourteenth street northwest early yesterday when they forced the manager, Clarence Panagiotou, into a rear room at the point of a pistol. The robbers fled in an automobile.

Use of "Police" Barred To National City Fair

Use of the word "police" in connection with the National City Fair was barred by the District Commissioners and Superintendent of Police Ernest W. Brown yesterday. Promoters of the fair announced that a former arrangement with the Police Charity Organization, whereby 50 per cent of the proceeds would go for police relief work, had been dropped.

The affair is sponsored by the Police and Fire Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. Money which has been received under the former arrangement wil be turned over to the charity organization, however.

Insurance Awaits One-Time Resident

Company Seeking Edwin Hacker or Beneficiary of His Policy.

If Edwin M. Hacker, one-time resident of Washington, is living, he can collect $885 from the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., of Philadelphia. If he died before January 30, 1931, his beneficiary can obtain $5,000. In an effort to locate Mr. Hacker, the company asked the assistance of The Washington Post.

Mr. Hacker, whose last address, according to the company records, was 1908 Belmont road, at one time worked in the Navy Department.

He purchased an endowment policy, but failed to continue the payment of premiums. Assuming him to be still alive, the company applied part of the cash value as a premium for term insurance and continued the policy until the original maturity date.

Civil Service Right To Fill Post Upheld

Biggs Says Chief Examiner and Secretary Can Be Named by Board.

The combined office of chief examiner and secretary to the Civil Service Commission may be filled by the commission itself instead of by a Presidential appointee, under a ruling yesterday by J. Crawford Biggs, Solicitor General and acting Attorney General.

The ruling reversed an opinion handed down by an Attorney General in 1886, holding the commission's chief examiner subject to Presidential appointment. The Biggs reversal held the commission is "an independent division of the executive branch of the Government," and as such entitled to select its own man.

The opinion was rendered at the request of the commission, which must fill the office created by the prospective merger of the jobs held by Secretary E. Claude Babcock, recently transferred to California, and H. A. Edson, chief examiner.
